

A New Political Party.

The London correspondent of the Boston Advertiser says that a new political party has come into existence in England. It is at present very small and feeble, but circumstances might tend to promote its rapid development. This is the democratic federation, which held its first annual conference in London last week, when delegates were present from Liverpool, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Newcastle, etc. This new movement is more or less of the continental socialistic type. Prominent among the planks of its platform are adult suffrage, free justice and the nationalization of the land. Its members are also in favor of the abolition of hereditary legislative authority, and of established churches, and they would give Ireland a national parliament. This new organization is supported by Mr. Joseph Cowen, the able and earnest, though eccentric, radical member of Parliament, while the president is Mr. H. M. Hyndman, whose articles on India and other questions in the "Nineteenth Century" have attracted much attention. Up to the present the federation has been working mainly against the coercive policy in Ireland, and has been pushing forward the land question. Many of the London radical and democratic clubs are affiliated to it, and scores of lectures are given mostly on Sundays.

The Repression Bill.

The steady opposition of the Irish party to the Crime Prevention bill has resulted in many important concessions by the Government. The right of search for arms by night has been abandoned, and some of the most objectionable press clauses have been thrown out. The limitations actually imposed on the right of seizure were already passed and exercised in the case of the United Ireland. The power to try men for treason-felony without a jury is only to be given for deeds committed after the passage of the Act. Aliens convicted under the bill are to be treated as first-class misdemeanors, not as ordinary felons; the Government must prove that an accused person is an alien before proceeding to expel him. These concessions are regarded by the Irish members as of great importance, and justifying the persistent opposition which has delayed the progress of the measure without affording the Government any pretext for charging the Parnellites with wilful obstruction. The result is due to Mr. Parnell's skilful leadership, as he has his party once more completely in hand.

Wealth of the United States.

The London Times says:—"The wonderful wealth-producing power of the United States defies and sets at naught the grave drawbacks of a mischievous protective tariff, and has already obliterated almost wholly the traces of the greatest of modern civil wars. What is especially remarkable in the present development of American energy and success, is its wise and equitable distribution over the shores of the Atlantic and Pacific, along the chain of the great lakes, the valley of the Mississippi, the coasts of the Gulf of Mexico, where the creation of wealth and increase of population is signally exhibited." Another paper says:—"With high wages Americans have been able to compete with us in the markets of the world. Should wages considerably decline the United States will become a formidable rival, not only of England, but of Europe."
