HAPPENINGS

The end of the year brings the graduation balls. One of the loveliest of these was the dance for the graduating class of the Prince Edward Island Hospital sponsored by the Nurses' Alumnae Association and was held Wednesday evening at the Y.M.C.A.

Conveners of the Centennial Y's Menettes "Spring Fashion Show" to be held next week are Mrs. J. O. MacLean, the commentators for this event will be Mrs. Brian Cudmore, Mrs. David Scales and Mrs. Ronald Woodgate. Miss Ruth Boswell will be pianist. The daily refreshments, conceived by Mrs. George Burgess and Mrs. Robert Mayhew, will be served at small tables covered with pastel luncheon cloths.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lidstone and young son David, have returned to Montreal after spending the weekend with the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Love. Mrs. Agnew, who accompanied them is remaining on the Island for a few weeks, the guest of her mother, Mrs. Dr. Fullerton and family.

Mrs. F.M. Cannon, Brackley Point Road, entertained Wednesday evening at bridge. Four tables were in play.

The front page of a leading Montreal paper carries a column photograph and story of a lovely family group. It is of particular interest to this province because of the Island connection. The group are: Danny Gullivan, top flight sports announcer of Radio station GJAD, whose voice brings the Canadians hockey games to millions of radio and TV listeners and viewers, his charming wife and three children, Danny Junior, Paul and Patsy.

Mrs. Gullivan is the former Miss Eileen MacPhee, daughter of Mr. J.F. MacPhee, Q.C., and Mrs. MacPhee. Mr. Daniel Leo Gullivan was born in Sydney, N.S.

eight of eleven children. He received his B.A. degree from St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish and spent one year in post graduate teaching. Mr. Gullivan is now a top sports-caster. His wife is also a graduate of St. of X. Mr. and Mrs. Gullivan and their interesting children reside in Montreal.

Dr. Elmer MacIsaac, Mrs. MacIsaac and their three children, have left for Balcarres, Saskatchewan. They have been visiting Dr. MacIsaac's aunt, Mrs. Annie Clarkin, Dorchester Street, Balcarres Dr. and Mrs. MacIsaac and family will visit in Balcarres their former home. In Balcarres they will be the guests of Dr. MacIsaac's father, brother and sister. Dr. MacIsaac is receiving congratulations upon having received at the Dalhousie Convocation his doctor of medicine and master of surgery degrees.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gordon of Montreal are visiting in this province at present.

Mrs. Martin Bushell of Halifax this week has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. K.M. Martin, Ambrose Street. Mrs. Bushell returns this weekend to Halifax.

Mrs. John R. Fraser, Belleville, assisted by Miss Jessie MacNaughton, entertained with a bridal shower in honor of Miss June Dickson at the Tea Hour on Monday, May 20.

Melvin Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Anderson of St. Peter's Harbour, left on Wednesday morning for Regina for training with the R.C.M.P. Prior to his departure the Y.P.V. of Bristol and Marie United Churches held a farewell gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Webster and presented Melvin with a beautiful bible. All Melvin's friends wish him every success in his new adventures.

Graham-MacNevin Wedding Solemnized At The Manse

Rev. C.R. Webber was the officiating clergyman at the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Audrey Ethel MacNevin and James Herbert Graham at Trinity United Church Manse on Wednesday afternoon, May 8, at 4.30.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil MacNevin, Mount Royal, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Graham of Greenwood. The winsome young bride was attractively gowned in nylon net over taffeta, topped with a strapless lace bodice and tiny bolera jacket. Matching gloves and other accessories in white completed the ensemble, and she carried an arm bouquet of red carnations. Mrs. Layton Profit attended her cousin as matron of honor, wearing pink nylon sheer, the skirt patterned in blue velvety floral design, white accessories and carrying pink and white carnations. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Layton Profit.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Keith Adams, Burlington. Assisting the hostess in serving a buffet supper were Mrs. Alva Jolley, Mrs. Edna Brown, Mrs. Foster Ellis and Mrs. Howard Livingstone, aunts of the bride. Miss Dorothy Graham, sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

Many lovely gifts, including a sum of money were received by the popular young couple. They will reside in Greenwood where the groom is engaged in farming.

LET'S EAT

Salads Are Essential For Many Reasons

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN
"The dinner menus we give in this column, Madame," said the Chef, "often include a mixed green salad or something like a tossed salad, a salad bowl, or a Chef's salad. Do most readers understand why these are included?"
"They all know that green salads are good for them," the Chef replied, "but many don't stop to think that they supply that fresh natural flavor that makes a substantial meal more appetizing. Green salads contain essential minerals and vitamins and contribute part of the food bulk necessary to help along intestinal action."
"Many homemakers consider a green salad a luxurious extra, when in reality it is a necessary vegetable, counted as one of the green leafy vegetables needed each day."
"If it is too rough for some digestions, a green salad can be tossed with French dressing, then fork-stirred over a low heat until slightly wilted. It should be eaten hot."
"To keep a variety of salad greens available, Madame, I suggest buying several kinds when doing the weekly shopping—such as head lettuce, romaine chicory, cress, young dandelions, and bunch each of scallions, and radishes to slice and mix in. Maybe some tomatoes, although in France we did not toss many in salads."
"TRIM EXCESS LEAVES
"To keep fresh, up to a week, trim out excess leaves, sprinkle the greens with a few drops of water. Then, without washing, slip and refrigerate."
"To toss a Salad: From the refrigerator, take out the greens you wish to use, cut off the required amounts and return the unused portions to the refrigerator."
"Wash the greens and drain dry. Toss, first with 3 parts olive or other salad oil, and salt and pepper; then with 1 part vinegar or lemon juice and minced scallions, chives, parsley or sliced cucumber or diced tomato. Serve at once in a chilled bowl or plate. A good salad is never watery."

The dressing should be absorbed by the leaves.

Savory Turnips: Peel and small dice enough cooked spring turnips to make 3 c.
Add 1/4 tsp. butter or margarine, 1 tsp. each lemon juice and minced parsley, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/4 tsp. pepper. Heat slowly. Mix 1 envelope unflavored gelatin with 2 tsp. cold water. Stir 2 tsp. chocolate bits into 1 1/2 c. hot strong black coffee.
When melted add the gelatin, stir until dissolved. Stir in 1/2 c. sugar, 1 dash salt and 1/2 tsp. vanilla. Cool.
Refrigerate until beginning to thicken.
Add 1 1/2 c. marshmallow whip, beaten by hand or electric beater until spongy and light colored.
Rinse custard cups with cold water. Turn in the mocha spoons. Refrigerate 4 hrs.
Unmold. Garnish with marshmallow whip.
Marshmallow Whip Topping: Whip 1/2 c. cream until beginning to thicken.
Then add and beat in 2 tsp. marshmallow whip.

A MOTHER'S CREED

Again we are indebted to the Kirk of S. James bulletin for the following:
I believe that my children are a trust from God, the most solemn trust He bestows on human beings; that in their creation and in their guidance to manhood and womanhood, I am a coworker with Him; and that in my motherhood, God has revealed and will reveal Himself to me, in so far as I put my faith in Him.
I believe my children should have the security which comes from the knowledge that someone cares; they should have a home where love rules; they should have such food and clothing as such care and play that their bodies may become beautiful and resourceful instru-

ELLEN'S DIARY

The New Baby Is Home And Everyone Is Happy

"It's today!" Mack said coming by this morning, his happiness written large in step and on face. Now the hours which sometimes had stretched lengthily in his mo-ah absence in hospital were spent. No more would he return from school, or come in at night-fall to a house where the heart-beat was missing. Mother would be home today.

James took the weather readings from the bright May-sky and the keen wind blowing into the valley above wooded hills "up the creek."

"I'm sure it would be better for her if she stayed in the hospital a while longer," he commented. "For a ten day period at least. But in the years" he smiled, "why, they'd hardly allow a new mother to put her hands above the bed-covers, before then. But now," he shook his head.

"They say they maintain strength better to be up and about a bit," he offered.

"Maybe at the same time, there's danger of catching a chill." A sparrow flew up to an eave's nook with a broad hen's feather gripping it tightly to save it safely from the breeze.

"The wind may calm—and the day warm up," he said. "Warmup or not, we're going to bring them home this afternoon." Mack declared with a pleased chuckle.

So it was. With her other children in attendance, Jennie and the babe came home to the house a little less than the afternoon, about six days from the time she left it, to fill again with her small self, the vacancy her little ones and all of us of Alderlea, had felt in her absence.

Lights are brightening the windows, there now and a hope-a-hope, the old swinging cot which before this sleep small ones of several generations of the name.

MARY HAWORTH

Help Is Ready When Needed

Dear Mary Haworth: I wrote in the hope that my story may help and encourage the dependent girl (in her late twenties) who wrote you recently, asking for a way out of her "unforgivable" situation. Unmarried and pregnant, she has thought of killing herself, she says to spare her family embarrassment.

I, too, once faced the same problem, and finally my parents had to know. They were compassionate and helpful and I went to a Florence Crittenton Home to await the birth of my child. I was given the finest medical care and treated not as an outcast, but as a human being who had made a mistake.

The social workers are understanding and always ready to listen to your worries and answer questions. Your identity is kept confidential; others know you by your first name only. As I felt it would be unfair to my baby to keep him, I arranged for his adoption, and he was given to very carefully selected parents.

NOW HAPPILY MARRIED

Since then, I have married very happily. And I feel if it weren't for the excellent guidance that I was given at the Florence Crittenton Home, I never would have been able to marry my husband—who knows of my mistake, and understands, and forgives me.

So, my experience indicates that the problem can be solved, if one doesn't fall into a depression. Do not feel too sorry for yourself; cross the line over because of this transgression. Make it a turning point for the better. A.B.

SALVATION ARMY

Dear Mary Haworth: In your recent exchange with an unmarried girl who expects a child, you failed to mention the Salvation Army Booth Memorial Homes and Hospitals for Unwed Mothers—of which there are 13 in the United States, and one in Honoments of the inner life; they should be so educated that they will appreciate the good, the true, the beautiful; that they will have the will and the ability to work; and that their highest motive in life will be to know God, to love Him, and to serve Him.

I believe every wish of my heart for my children should be my wish for all children; that I even though it is my particular task to secure the best for my children, it is also my task to share in securing the best for all children; and that this is the task of every mother, whose heart the love of God has touched.

Blames Working Mother For Lot

VANCOUVER (CP)—The head of evangelism and social service for the United Church of Canada Tuesday blamed a working mother for much teenage crime and drinking.
"She is the most serious threat in the home," said Dr. James E. Mutchmor of Toronto. He was interviewed while here to attend the British Columbia United Church conference.
"Women whose husbands earn more than $3,500 a year should not be working," Dr. Mutchmor said. "They are working to buy television sets, wall-to-wall carpeting, cars—not for necessity."
"If the mother was home where she should be, she would be providing emotional security which every child needs."

MORNING SMILE

A conversation at a party was about dieting. "Yes," said a guest, "I've eaten beef all my life and I'm strong as an ox."
"That's strange," said his companion. "I've been eating nothing but fish for six months and I can't swim a stroke."

and the care and consideration given me were wonderful. Do you have something against this splendid organization? S.C.

Dear S.C.: There is no prejudice against any benevolent organization not mentioned here. But in suggesting possible sources of professional help for girls in trouble, it is necessary to consider what agencies are accessible to the plaintiff. Also, we try to provide information that may be useful to the overall audience.

And, as it happens, the Florence Crittenton Homes Association virtually blankets the nation—with a network of more than 50 homes, hospitals and shelter services—whereas the Salvation Army has but 13 such "hospices" in the United States (according to J.J.'s letter above).

Thus, in assessing the social services of a community from which a girl has written, we usually find a Crittenton service either in the vicinity, or within travel distance; or as an alternative, a Family Service unit. And for this common sense reason lulu. In the year 1887, in Oakland, Calif., the social service department of the Salvation Army established the first home for unwed mothers in the United States—the Booth Memorial Home and Hospital. It has been at the present location for 34 years.

The door is open to any girl in need—regardless of age, creed, color, race or financial circumstances, and without any geographical limitations. The home affords social concealment and general protection—including best possible medical care, warm understanding, and help towards finding a new way of life, and courage to face the future. Please transmit this information to your readers. J.J.

SPLendid AGENCY
Dear Mary Haworth: I am wondering why you never recommend one of the Salvation Army Hospitals for pregnant unmarried girls? You always tell them to go to a Florence Crittenton Home, or some other agency.

The Salvation Army has some of the best maternity homes I know, because I was helped by one. The medical care is the best.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD STEWART

Marriage Solemnized At Dominion United Church

The marriage of Leading Aircraftsman Donald Stewart and Mrs. Stewart was solemnized at Dominion United Church, Ottawa, on Saturday, March 30, 1957, at three o'clock. The bride is the former Mary Jean Lozochuk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lozochuk, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and the groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Stewart, Montague, Prince Edward Island.

Reverend D. McLuhan officiated at the double-ring ceremony and the wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. C. Yeo.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length wedding gown of white nylon net over satin, fashioned with a fitted bodice, full skirt, square neckline and short sleeves. Her long sheer mitts came to knuckle points over the hands and her chapel length veil, studded with tiny sequins, fell from a headdress of matching material. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Amelia Ross, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, wore a floor-length gown of blue nylon net over satin with matching headdress and mitts and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. A reception for thirty guests was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephens, 167 Nepeau St., and a buffet luncheon was served. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Stephens and responded to by the groom. The table was attractively decorated with tall white tapers and centered with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and cut in traditional manner.

Following a short honeymoon trip, the groom left for Thule, Greenland, where he is serving with the R.C.A.F. During his absence, Mrs. Stewart will reside in Ottawa. Prior to their marriage the young couple were entertained on several occasions by their friends and were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

THE EXPERTS SAY

"Homemakers" Are Blessing In Case Of Sudden Illness

By CAROLYN WILLET
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—The motherly woman who prepares breakfast, gets father off to work and the children to school may be just a short-time visitor in some Canadian homes.
She may be "auntie" to everyone in the family. Her services as a part-time homemaker are more and more in demand, say social welfare experts.

Social workers discussing the already important role of "homemaker" services during the Canadian Welfare Council's annual meeting in Ottawa agreed that future possibilities for the services are almost unlimited.

Canada's 40 homemaker services now deal chiefly with the care of children in the home during the mother's illness, said Mrs. F. A. Cumyn of Montreal.

"The homemakers, usually women who have raised families of their own, were often the "blessing" of homes threatened by a mother's sudden illness.
Homemakers were not expected to do heavy housework. But their presence in a home keeps a family together and keeps the wage-earner on the job, said Mrs. Cumyn, who heads a homemaker services committee for the Montreal council of social agencies.

Some agencies have extended services to the aged, she said, but there is a pressing need for larger staffs to provide longer service. These services, which may in future demand semi-professional status, more training and defined work standards, already open new fields of full or part-time employment for older women whose main qualifications are their "homemaking" abilities.

Homemaker services should become an integral part of social work programs, said Marjorie Bradford, director of Ottawa's chronic sickness and geriatrics study.

Miss Bradford said there is a need for some type of reliable and continuous home-help service for middle-aged and senior citizens living alone or with one elderly relative or friend.
The immigrant mother also could benefit from homemakers services—a helpful, friendly visitor could bring assurance and welcome from a new, strange community.
