

Campus People of all Kinds Participate DRAMA ADVENTURERS ENTHUSIASTIC

The adventure undertaken by UPEI drama enthusiasts this year is Oliver Goldsmith's play, She Stoops to Conquer. Rehearsals are well under way in preparation for the three performances on March 16, 17 and 18th in the Steele Recital Hall.

A theatrical performance is a sure way of bringing people together and this theory holds true for She Stoops to Conquer. People from all aspects of the university community are involved with the production. Both full time and part time students, faculty, staff, and numerous other interested people are combining their energies and talents in order to make the show a success.

The rather male-dominated cast features Tom Clow, who has made a graceful move from the football field to the theatre stage; Stanley McDonald, an ol' prop from the music department; Hugh Roberts, a part-time student who adds life to the play both on and off stage; and Education professor, Dr. Edmonds, who enhances the play with his theatrical finesse.

Mickey Place returns to the stage in the role of a thick-headed plowhand turned butler. Charlotte-town lawyer, Raymond Moore, takes the part of Sir Charles Marlow. Lachlan MacQuarrie plays the role of an inebriated servant, and Fr. Wendell MacIntyre, Prof. Robert Mills, Brian Walsh and Dave Connaughton bring life to a rowdy town scene.

The female characters develop the dramatic action in the play. Business student Lori Mullin plays the role of a lively girl who conquers her suitor through crafty schemes. Tracy Mahar, a UPEI Freshman takes her place as proper young lady in a complicated situation, and recent graduate Pam Stevenson, plays the part of the foolish, doting old mother.

Manpower officer, Suzanne De Jong, is the comical family maid, while Cathy Parkman and Anne Reynolds are the household servants. And landlady Anne MacEwen reigns over the fellows at the tavern.

Besides the actors on the stage, there are lots of behind-the-scene people who put the whole production together. Terry Pratt is producer-director. He is assisted by Jennifer Tweddle and Claire Nantes. The set is being designed by Sandra Hodge and constructed by Prof. Andy Robb. Ron Irving is production consultant; Carl Mathis is technical director; Marylou Ellis is wardrobe mistress; and Joan MacFarlane is in charge of properties.

Anyone wishing to offer their assistance should contact Dr. Pratt (ext. 220.)

She Stoops to Conquer is a lighthearted, farcical comedy set in the 18th century - a play that you will surely enjoy.

NEW YORK NEW YORK

For the third time, UPEI students will be flying from Charlottetown to New York to spend their spring break on Broadway.

Bookings for the annual UPEI New York Theatre Tour are now being accepted at the Dept of Extensions, tour coordinator Don P MacDonald has announced The Seven Day package planned for mid-term break, Feb 24- March 3 79 will cost 375.00 (Cdn). This includes the rate of exchange on the American dollar. It covers airfare, accommodations (four to a room) for seven nights at Hotel Taft, and tickets to five Broadway productions. Single and double occupancy rates are slightly higher.

This tour is limited to 45 people, and they are taken on the first come system. An advance payment of 100.00 is due on Friday, Jan. 26 with the balance to be paid by Fri Feb. 16.

Prior to departure the Dept of Extension will offer an orientation session to the city of New York and an introduction to the plays by members of the Faculty and Administration.

Among the shows planned are the award winning musical ANNIE and Bigets opera CARMEN performed by New York City Opera Company.
