THE CORONATION.
ALEXANDER, SON OF ALEXANDER, CROWNED AUTOCRAT OF ALL THE RUSSIANS—THE EMPEROR INVESTED WITH THE IMPERIAL MANTLE—PARTICULARS OF THE IMPOSING CEREMONY IN THE CATHEDRAL OF THE ASSUMPTION IN THE KREMLIN.

Moscow, May 27.—At 7 30 this morning the inauguration of the magnificent ceremonies attendant upon the coronation of Emperor and Empress of the Russians was announced by the ding of hundreds of bells and the thunder of artillery. The streets were thronged with people; a strong guard of soldiery patrolled all parts of the city.
Great bodies of military began shortly before 6 o'clock to deploy along the route of the procession, four miles in length, and occupy the streets on either side, keeping the people back on the walks. Every space was speedily filled by eager sightseers to view the procession. Those dignitaries of the realm who were to take part in the actual ceremony of coronation assembled, according to pre-arranged plans, at the Cathedral of the Assumption, within the walls of the Kremlin. At the request of Gen. Van Schweinitz, Ambassador from Germany, the eighty members comprising the Diplomatic Corps, here, assembled at his mansion and were conveyed thence to the Kremlin in superbly equipped coaches. The remainder of the Diplomatic body, consisting of attaches of various legations, were assigned to positions in the Tribune just outside the Cathedral proper, but inside the enclosure of the Kremlin, where the white walls of that wonderful palace enclosed all the crowd that could be admitted. The choir of boys chanted a Te Deum and amidst profound silence outside the church as well as in it, the clergy, accompanied by acolytes bearing a cross and

A FEW OF HOLY WATER proceeded to receive the Czarovitch. This son of royalty, who was in the midst of a brilliant cortege, took a place at the right hand of the throne. When the Imperial procession started, it was made known to those inside by a renewed ringing of bells, by sonorous music from scores of bands and by the shouts of those outside. As the royal pair appeared at the doors of the palace the multitude uncovered their heads and burst into loud acclamations, and the enthusiasm was as unaffected as it was spontaneous and hearty. At the head of the royal procession, which now entered the Kremlin, was the Master of Ceremonies, flanked by heralds, richly clad and mounted upon white horses. It was of immense length, and comprised deputies from the Asiatic States of the Empire, students of the university, the clergy, judges, the nobility and prefects from every section of the Empire. When its front rank reached the doors of the palace it was met by the Emperor, wearing the white uniform of the Imperial Guards, and by the Empress, dressed in a Russian national costume of black velvet, richly embroidered with diamonds and her zone girdled with a magnificent belt of precious stones. The Empress leaned on the arm of her royal consort. The pair placed themselves beneath a canopy richly wrought in silk and gold and borne by 32 gentlemen. They then took their place near the head of the procession, being directly after the regalia.
At this moment the entire body of the clergy emerged from the Cathedral in order to get the regalia, which they sprinkled with holy water and perfumed with incense.
Upon entering the portals of the Cathedral, the Emperor and Empress were received by the Metropolitan of Moscow. The Metropolitans of Novogorod and Keif presented to them crosses to be kissed and sprinkled with holy water first the Emperor and then the Empress. Before the sacred images which flanked the doors of the Cathedral they knelt and bowed their heads, after which they were conducted to the ANCIENT THRONES OF IVORY AND SILVER.

Alexander occupied the historical throne of the Czar Vladimir Nonomague, while the Empress was seated in an arm chair gilded and encrusted with jewels. The thrones were placed upon a dais erected between the middle columns of the Cathedral. In front of the thrones were two tables covered with gold cloth, upon which were placed the crowns, the orb and the sceptre. None but foreign Princes were accommodated with seats. The Russian Princes and dignitaries stood during the ceremony according to the custom of the Greek Church. The dignitaries of the realm who were carrying the standard and seals of the Empire, took their stand upon the steps of the dais after their majesties had been seated. The Metropolitan of Novogorod asked the Emperor in a loud, distinct voice, "Are you a true believer?" The Emperor falling on his knees; read in reply, in a clear voice, the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles Creed of the Greek Church. The Metropolitan responding, "May the grace of the Holy Ghost remain with thee," descended from the dais. The following customary summons was then three times repeated by the Bishop—"If there be any of you here present, knowing any impediment for which Alexander, son of Alexander, should not be crowned, by the grace of God, Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russas, let him come forward now, in the name of the Holy Trinity, and show what impediment there is, or let him remain dumb forever."

After reading selections from the gospel, the Metroplitans of Novogorod and Keif again ascended the dais and invested the Emperor with the Imperial mantle of ermine, the Metropolitan of Moscow saying at the same time:—
"Cover and protect thy people, as this robe protects and covers thee." The Emperor responded, "I will! I will! I will! God helping."
The Metropolitan of Novogorod, crossing his hand on the head of the Emperor, then invoked the benediction of Almighty God on him and his reign, and delivered to Alexander III. the crown of Russia, who placed it upon his own head, and assuming the sceptre and orb, took his seat on the throne. He then returned the insignia of his title to the dignitaries appointed to receive them, and called the Empress, who knelt before him. He touched her head lightly with the crown of the Emperor and then formally

CROWNED HER WITH HER OWN CROWN.
The expression and the attitude of the Empress as she knelt was one of sympathy with her royal husband and touched deeply the audience. The Czar preserved throughout a grave and decorous dignity and nobleness of demeanor which also provoked the admiration of all. After the Empress had been duly invested with the Imperial mantle and their Majesties were both seated again on their thrones, the Archdeacon intoned the Imperial titles and sang Domine Salvare fac Imperatorem, which was taken up and thrice repeated by the choir.
Directly this part of the ceremony was finished, the bells in all churches of Moscow rang, a salute of 101 guns was fired and, inside the cathedral, members of the Imperial family tendered their congratulations to their Majesties. The Emperor then knelt and recited a prayer, at the end of which the clergy and all present knelt before the Emperor. The Bishop of Moscow said aloud, in behalf of the nation, a fervent prayer for the happiness of their Majesties; shouts of "Long live the Emperor," then rent the cathedral, and were taken up by the thousands outside and were carried from mouth to mouth until the multitude outside the Kremlin caught the sound and waved it in a huge voice of gratulation to the remotest parts of the city, where it was speedily known that another Czar of Russia had been crowned. The Cathedral choir then sang a Te Deum, after which the Emperor, accompanied by the Empress and numerous dignitaries, proceeded to

THE GATE OF THE SANCTUARY.
There the Metropolitan of Novogorod then anointed the Emperor's forehead, eye-sides, nostrils, lips, ears, breast and hands, at the same time exclaiming, "Behold the zeal of the Holy Ghost, may it keep thee ever holy." The Empress was anointed only on the forehead. Both partook of the sacrament, and then left the Cathedral wearing their crowns and mantle, the Empress also bearing the sceptre and orb.
After praying in the Cathedral of Michael the Archangel, their Majesties returned to the palace escorted by a procession which presented even a more splendid appearance than that which escorted them to the Cathedral, being now augmented by the gorgeous state carriages of the Imperial family.

Canadian Exhibition of Arts.
The annual exhibition of paintings of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts was opened on Wednesday last, in the Normal School Museum, Toronto, Ontario. The standard and quality of the pictures on exhibition are reported as being far superior to any ever yet exhibited in Canada. The total number of pictures hung is about 400.
R. Harris' best picture is a head illustrative of the lines:—
"And marked the conquered patriot's pensive brow
When Caesar's triumph thronged the streets of Rome."
Referring to Mr. Harris' picture, the Toronto Globe says: "It is a strong, spirited head, very freely handled, and with an expression of combined firmness and melancholy, which bears out the conception of the poet. A head which many will consider more pleasing is that of the 'Romany Girl,' vigorously drawn and effective. The countenance is a typical one—displaying the gypsy characteristics and instinct, with an air of wild freedom and abandon. The flesh tints, though high, are not unduly exaggerated. Other heads are those of a soldier and a Roman model, both well rendered. 'Chaff' represents a soldier in helmet and cuirass, exchanging pleasantries with the serving maid of a tavern; the careless, jovial expression of the man's features, and the half-petulant, half-pleased countenance of the girl are effectively portrayed, and the naturalness of the surroundings well maintained." The Toronto Mail says:—"R. Harris' 'Chaff' is a very good tavern scene, in which a capitably drawn, burly trooper is joking a small maiden, who seems half coy and unbelieving, and half impressed by Monsieur's addresses. The distribution of the lines, and the general harmony of color preserving the texture of metal, cloth or wood, are admirable. The great improvements made by this artist in style and manipulation are most marked, and we hope to have the pleasure of welcoming many more pictures of lasting interest from the same case."
Two studies of heads by R. Harris are very fine in conception and execution. The military figure is grand, and the countenance well expresses the idea conveyed by the quotation,
"And whatsoever the fight's event, he keeps His honest soldier's name." Its companion picture, the captive in the train of some victorious conqueror, with downcast and dejected expression, is a good study.
The memory of Father Secchi, the Italian astronomer, is so highly respected by his countrymen that, in a dispute as to how best to honor him, there is fear of his not being honored at all. Disputes are rife as to whether to give him a monument, to erect meteorological instruments of great size, or raise a gigantic telescope. In the face of this state of things, it is well that Father Secchi, prior to his death, raised his own monumentum aere perennius in his own way.
It is rumored that Sir Charles Tupper will retain his position as Minister of Railways, and will also act as High Commissioner in London without salary. Mr.
Pope will be acting Minister of Railways while Sir Charles Tupper is in England during parliamentary recess.
