MR. AND MRS. GILBERT EGAN

Pledge Vows At Southport Honeymoon In Quebec City

The marriage of Genevieve Estelle, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Coady of Hazelbrook, to Gilbert William Egan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Egan of Charlottetown, took place Saturday, September 14, at Our Lady of the Assumption Church, Southport. Rt. Rev. Monsig. P. McMahon performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated the nuptial Mass.

Baskets of mixed flowers and gladioli adorned the altar. The guest pews were marked with fall flowers caught with white net bows.

Paul Egan, brother of the gloom, and Maurice MacIntyre served the mass.

Mrs. Joseph Dougan, organist, accompanied James Flanagan who sang appropriate hymns during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length sheath gown of white silk taffeta with detachable train. It featured a bateau neckline, three quarter length sleeves trimmed with guipiere lace, which also accented the hip line. Her tiered, shoulder leigth veil of silk illusion was held in place by a coronet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Leo MacMillan, matron of honor, Miss Lynda Egan, sister of the groom, and Miss Phyllis Coady cousin of the bride, as attendants were dressed alike in red peau de sole street length sheath dresses, with matching overskirts. They carried white and red carnations.

Flower girls were Janet Gallant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gallant, and Jo Anne MacMillan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo MacMillan. They wore matching white peau de sole dresses and carried baskets of red and white flowers.

James Bentham was the best man. The ushers were Billy Coady, brother of the bride and Gerald Soy.

Mrs. Coady, the bride's mother chose a knit dress of Hunter green with beige accessories, and wore a corsage of carnations.

The mother of the groom chose a beige lace sheath dress with matching accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow roses.

The reception was held at Dalvay Hotel for 140 guests.

The bride's table was centred with a three tier wedding cake, topped by a cross with interlocking rings.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Dr. Frank MacMillan and was responded to by the groom. Telegrams were read by the best man.

Amid showers of confetti and best wishes the newlyweds left on a honeymoon to Quebec City, the bride wearing a cranberry wool knit two piece dress with black fox trim, and a red and black picture hat. Black accessories and a corsage of red and white feathered carnations completed her outfit. Upon their return they will reside at North River Rd., Charlottetown.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Don't Permit Vitamins To Go Down The Drain

WE DON'T have to struggle to "keep up with the Joneses" or strain for family food status.

There is one sure way to accomplish both, so far as good eating goes:

Keep up with the progress in foods!

Read the food advertising in newspapers and magazines. Really look at the foods displayed in the supermarkets. If they seem unfamiliar, take time to read the labels.

BE ADVENTUROUS

Note the improvements many food processors are stressing. You will find the names of new processes described on many package.

Forget any prejudices. Be adventurous; try one or two packages each week.

Find out, by taste-testing yourself, what new cupboard-stored or convenience foods have to offer — foods such as freeze-dried mushrooms, chicken, shrimp and crab, new dehydrated (dry) soup mixes, more varieties of dried fruits, including strawberries.

Ready-To-Cook Potatoes

Try all the ready-to-cook potato products.

Concentrated apple juice — a pantry spacesaver — will debut soon; just add 1 can of juice to 6 cans of water.

Dried cooked beans, peas and lentils come packaged to cook in 20 minutes.

Old-time soup kettles are out; canned or powdered broths, consommes and bouillons are for everyone.

New deep-frozen foods of all types are appearing every day.

More varieties of cheese are on sale.

Improve Texture

Use tenderizer to improve the texture of so-called tough meats; the best restaurants are doing it.

Try whipped butter or margarine for fewer calories per serving.

Even the familiar quick cake, bread, pancake and pastry mixes are constantly being improved.

New flavoring extracts are enticing.

Look at the selection of spices and the new crackers and cookies.

Follow this column for news of modern techniques and how to use the new foods. It's interesting and it's fun!

Couple Feted At Summerside

Autumn flowers decorated the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mobed Bynon, 323 Argyle Street Summerside, when friends and relatives gathered to fete them on their 40th wedding anniversary.

Keith Thompson as master of ceremonies, spoke briefly and a humorous poem composed by Mrs. George Ramsay, New Annan, was read by Mrs. John W. Thompson. The verses told of the bride and groom who were married at Malpeque in 1923 by the Rev J.M. Murchison, minister of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Bynon is the former Matilda Ramsay, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Ramsay of Hamilton.

A coffee table from the Ramsay families was presented by Mrs. Lorne Waite, and a matching step end table was presented by Willard Thompson on behalf of the Bynon and Thompson families. A table lamp from the MacGougan families of Malpeque was presented by Mrs. Jorgenson.

Individual gifts were presented by Mrs. Herbert D. Simmons and included a ruby vase, the traditional gift for the 40th wedding anniversary, from Mrs. Irene Simpson and Miss Mary MacNutt of Charlottetown.

"How Great Thou Art" was sung by Mrs. Horace Paynter. Mrs. Lorne Waite and Mr. Keith Thompson, and was followed by other favorite selections, instrumental music and readings.

A decorated wedding cake, made and presented by Mrs. Lorne Crozier, was cut in traditional manner and served with ice cream.

MARY HAWORTH

Bride Is Rudely Treated By Slyly Hostile In-laws

Dear Mary Haworth: Mine is an in-law problem, having to do with my husband's mother, his aunt and their close friends.

We have been married for a year, we are very happy and my husband considers me to be a good wife.

I can cook and keep house well but I am not crazy about needlepoint and things of that sort which the women of his family thrive on.

They address me continually as a sort of scapegoat, with sarcastic remarks such as: "Aren't you getting on weight?" Or "Do you ever work?" In short they act as though I am completely foolish, incompetent, etc., for no good reason.

I am a college graduate of a well respected family and have many interesting friends. In short I don't deserve this.

If they are joking, I feel their humor is lacking. I am considering breaking off from my in-laws and would have done it before now if my husband wasn't so nice and didn't like to visit them so much. Do you have any advice for me? Thank you! O.P.

Dear O.P.: I think most perceptive, worldly-wise, morally balanced adults, evaluating the gist of your female in-laws' jibing comments, would feel obliged to conclude that they are jealous of you. It appears they are acting in catty conspiracy, tacit if not pre-planned, to "take you down a peg or two," as the phrase is.

There isn't a spark of wit, humor, good will or good nature implicit in their rude questioning, as quoted. The underlying spirit is hostile and clawing. And the manner is very bad form.

Politeness is to do and say the kindest thing in the kindest way; and kind-hearted people don't speak with such snide presumptuous familiarity to a newcomer to the family.

Whether your badgering female in-laws realize it or not, their transparent intent is to wound, disconcert, put you on the defensive, frozen with dismay, and possibly also challenge your powers of self-control and competence to take care of yourself against baiting forays.

They may be hoping (unconsciously) to spoil your image, of glowing happy bride, by vexing you into a helpless withdrawn sort of attitude — meek, subdued and uncertain in their presence, and chilled and despondent in relation to your bridegroom.

At present you are young and pretty, I gather, You are in love and beloved, in a happy marriage. You have a sound background, academically and socially. You possess a healthy appreciation of your worth.

Moreover, you tend to have a mind of your own and to consult it respectfully, in new situations where new adaptations are required — as witness your maturing resolve to be true to your tastes, rather than resort to appeasement as the price of false peace.

I think it is this combination of positive factors in your personality, with special emphasis on your characteristic self-confidence, perhaps that disturbs your female in-laws and elicits their efforts to beat you down, psychologically.

As for how to cope, my advice is, speak up; talk back. Reflect on the substance of their digs, and when you go to see them, go prepared to give as good as you get, in the way of conversational thrust and parry.

But don't be ill-natured about it. Just be quick on the draw. As for example when one asks: "Aren't you putting on weight?" you might reply "Aren't you imagining things?" Or, to the question: "Do you ever work?" you might say: "Yes, very hard at minding my own business, how about you?" M.H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or by personal interview. Write her in care of The Guardian.
