Finds Wife Was Wealthy

LONDON (Reuters) — Frederick Tuttle, 87, used to hand over most of his old age pension to his wife who often complained of their poverty. She told him she could not afford help in the house or the garden and made him get rid of his dogs because they cost too much to feed. Tuesday, Tuttle applied in court here for a reasonable share of the £100,000 fortune he never knew his wife possessed until she died last year. She left most of it to a charity, bequeathing him only £52 a year. The judge awarded him £20 a week tax free.

Gypsum Workers Return To Jobs

WINDSOR, N.S. (CP) — Manager M. E. King of the Canadian Gypsum Company said Tuesday that between 35 and 90 workers have been rehired at company plants and quarries here since a 13-month strike ended Nov. 20. The first few workers, members of the Nova Scotia Quarry Workers' Union (C.I.O.), returned to their jobs last week. The first sizeable group was rehired Monday. Mr. King said the company's work force now stands at about 190. One hundred men returned before the strike was settled. SOUGHT HIGHER WAGES About 400 worked in the plants when the union struck Oct. 31, 1957, for higher wages, union security, a shorter work week and other benefits. Mr. King said he hopes to have most of the men back by Dec. 15. The cases of about 30 workers will go before an arbitration board. The company said their actions during the strike were grounds for dismissal. Several demonstrations and rock-throwing incidents occurred during the deadlock. The 30-month work contract gives the men an immediate 11-cent hourly pay increase, eight cents more in six months and another five cents in 18 months. The union struck for a 15-cent increase.

Bridge Co. Blamed For Collapse

VICTORIA (CP) — The Dominion Bridge Company Limited was blamed by a royal commission Tuesday for the collapse last June of Vancouver's partly built Second Narrows Bridge. Eighteen workmen were killed. Dominion Bridge is the main contractor for the project. Two spans across Burrard Inlet collapsed June 17. A 1,100-page report by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett, chairman of the commission inquiry, also said there was a lack of care on the part of consulting engineers, Swan, Wooster and Partners, in not requiring the contractor to submit plans of falsework under the bridge. Evidence was given before the commission that a faulty section of the falsework—a temporary support under the outermost span of the bridge—was the cause of the collapse. Chief Justice Lett's report was released by Premier Bennett, who said Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi and the British Columbia highway and toll bridge authority were "absolved of all blame."

Revision Of Labor Laws Is Called For By CMA

By ARCH MACKENZIE Canadian Press Staff Writer OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association submitted Tuesday that the public, employers and individual employees are in "much more need" of legislative protection than unions are and called for revision of Canada's federal labor laws. Trade unions now possess the power to cripple the economy "at will," said a brief submitted to Labor Minister Starr. It asked that unions shoulder legal responsibilities equal to those carried by other groups in society. The 54-page brief was presented by eight representatives of the CMA. They spent about an hour with Mr. Starr to provide verbal elaboration of ideas first outlined last April. The minister has asked qualified groups for suggestions regarding possible revision of federal labor statutes. DENIES VICTIMIZATION Claude Jodoin, president of the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, commented that the CMA brief is "factually false," particularly in indicating that manufacturers are victimized by big trade unions. Mr. Jodoin said the brief seeks to weaken the union role of striving to obtain a fair share of profits for members. He said the group now is on record as seeking the right-to-work laws rejected in the Nov. 4 United States elections. The CMA brief said it accepts the principle of collective bargaining without reservation and the fact that most unions make an honest effort to obey laws. But enforcement of existing laws and addition of new provisions were required to modernize legislation passed when trade unions had been relatively weak. CIVIL REDRESS It suggested civil redress through courts for unlawful strikes and Crown prosecution where strikes occurred before the end of legal conciliation procedure. It asked the outlawing of secondary boycotts — or picketing against an employer not involved in the dispute in order to get an employer who is—and of picketing in disputes between unions on jurisdiction. The CMA said it does not seek legislation banning check-off arrangements set up in collective bargaining. But it did feel that legislation is necessary in the field of compulsory union membership.

'Fake Confession' Opinion Said Backed By Documents

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial police say documents they received Tuesday from Miami police back up their opinion that a Canadian Indian is inventing the story that he is responsible for the 1953 deaths of two American hunters in the Gaspé Peninsula bush. But the family of Wilbert Coffin, 43-year-old prospector who was hanged in 1956 when convicted of murder by Miami police, is hoping that the new developments will prove him innocent. The case of three Pennsylvania hunters whose mangled bodies were found five years ago became a topic of speculation again after Francis Gilbert Thompson, 35, a Mohawk Indian, was picked up last week by Miami police. He told them he and a companion, Johnny Greene, shot two of the hunters. PURE INVENTION Monday, Quebec's deputy attorney general, Charles-Edouard Cantin, said a summary of Thompson's answers to a series of questions his department sent Miami police made the story appear "pure invention." After looking over the complete replies to questions which arrived from Miami Tuesday, a department spokesman said they "confirm the opinions already given on the subject of Thompson." The department also received Thompson's picture and fingerprints. The fingerprints were being sent to RCMP headquarters in Ottawa in an attempt to determine Thompson's movements. Thompson was charged by Miami police with grand larceny and breaking and entering in connection with thefts from a luxury yacht. CONVINCED OF INNOCENCE At the Coffin family home in York Centre, near the tip of the Gaspé Peninsula, the convicted man's mother said Tuesday she has always been convinced her son was innocent. Francois Gravel of Quebec, one of Coffin's attorneys, said 70-year-old Mrs. Albert Coffin telephoned him asking if there were any developments. He quoted her as saying: "We're all still praying down here. We always knew that some day someone would clear our boy's name." Coffin was convicted specifically of murdering Richard Lindsey, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., in June 1953. Slain at the same time were Lindsey's father, Eugene Lindsey, 45, and a friend, Frederick Cleary, 20.

Lutman, 35, of Bound Brook, N.J., was arrested Sunday at Hanscom air force base in Bedford when he pulled a wrong lever and set off an explosion which knocked the canopy off the jet.

No Additional Anthrax Cases Are Expected

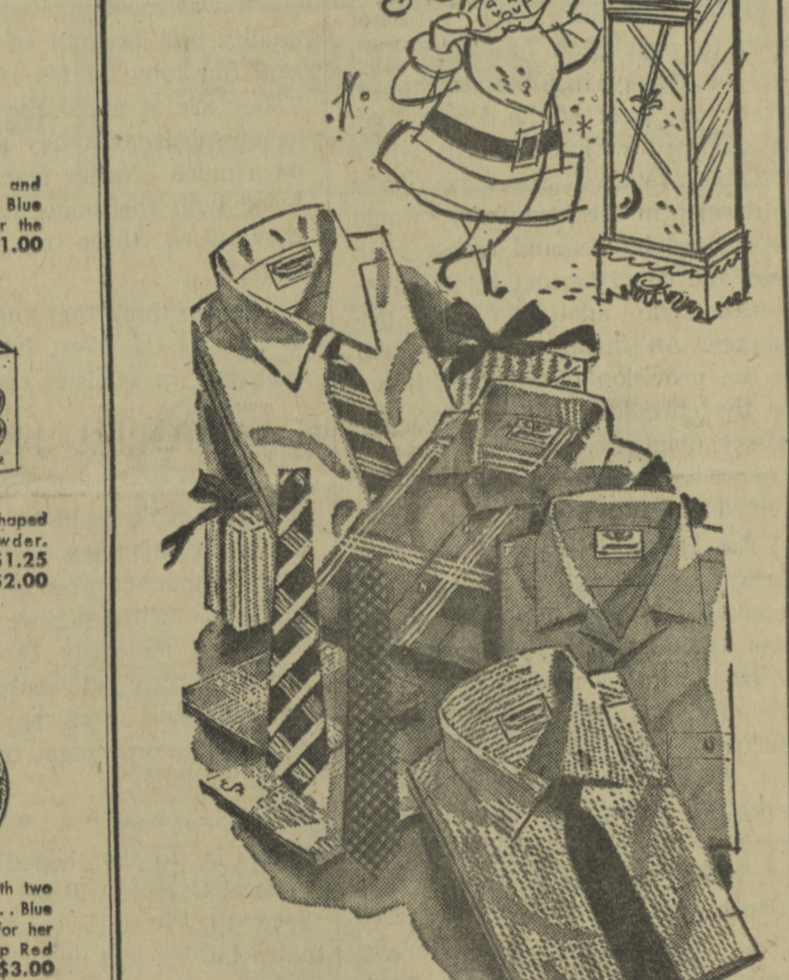

REGINA (CP) — Deputy Health Minister Dr. F. B. Roth says there will probably be no more cases of anthrax in Saskatchewan. The province's first human victim of the disease in years, Lind Gail Apland, 6, was released from hospital Monday at Langeburg, 150 miles northwest of here. The girl suffered cutaneous anthrax, a mild form believed spread by a cow that died weeks ago on the Apland farm. The animal died five weeks before the girl caught anthrax and district veterinarian Dr. E. E. Carlson, said the carcass may be too old for the laboratory to discover cause of death. Dr. Roth said further outbreak of the disease are unlikely, but warned that the spore can last "for years and years" under the right conditions. There has never been an anthrax epidemic among humans in Saskatchewan.
