

NEWS of the WORLD in PICTURES

Mrs. Magdalene Rick holds section of the 100th quilt she has made during lifetime in the homestead at Powassan, Ont. With her is a granddaughter, Kathleen Rick. Huge boulder called "Romance Rock" hit by lightning 10 years ago is credited for the happy marriages of the Rick and Kunkel families.

Four Kunkel brothers married four Rich sisters and their romances all started at boulder that used to be just inside the gate of Rick homestead. If the Kunkels, the Ricks and their relatives were taken out of Powassan school there would be a big drop in enrolment. These children are all related. They will attend Mrs. Magdalene Ricks' birthday party. In all there are 63 grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren and most of them will be at the reunion.

Scottish veterinary surgeons are baffled by this two-toned penguin "Blackie Boy," whose speech faculty is the talk of the village of Ceres. He says "hello," "yum yum" and a few other barely understandable words—and usually at the right time.

Flames gutted one apartment and damaged several others in a three-story emergency housing unit in Toronto. Fast action of Jack Abram, 29, above right, saved Mrs. in a fire which forced 100 out. While he sounded the bells and knocked on apartment doors, his wife phoned the fire department, then escaped with their son, Brian. This night clothes and bare feet were poor protection in the zero cold. Pat and Glenda Ferguson and Linda Irvin, above, were among those forced to flee the George St. apartment. Alarm was spread by Mrs. Jack Abram, Bryan, shown lower right, who lived in rooms above.

Twenty-two people ran barefoot and scantily dressed into the sleet and rain to escape flames that destroyed a double-house which housed seven families at Alderwood, Ont. Fire, said by firemen to have been caused by defective wiring, began in kitchen of one of tenants and quickly spread throughout rest of double-house. Robert Barlow, who turned in alarm, is seen with his wife escaping sleet storm by seeking sanctuary in his car. "We're lucky to be alive," said Mrs. Harold Bates, shown with her three children, Lynda, seven months, Anne, four, and Fred, two. Many parents carried their children from the two adjoining houses through slush and snow to unheated parked cars. Firemen fought blaze for over three hours, only to have it break out again a couple of hours later.

Two detectives fought furiously in the lobby of a Toronto theatre to overpower Arnold "Baby Face" Byers, 30, wanted in Vancouver to face charges of staging a one-man crime wave in Vancouver. Police said they have recovered almost $2,000 of $3,000 stolen in a recent holdup of a Vancouver bank. Byers had boasted he wouldn't be taken alive. He struggled to get a loaded .22 revolver from his hip pocket, but was brought down by a blow from Det. Herbert Thurston. Det. Walter Johnson grabbed him around the neck. Money and guns said taken from "Baby-Face" Byers after his arrest are seen above.

Burned to death in cab of this transport was Stewart Allan of Cornwall, Ont., after collision with another transport west of Napanee. Passing a halted bus, Allan applied brakes, the vehicle jack-knifed, was struck on side.

One of 38 women running as Labor candidates has seven other children. Wife of minister of British general election, Lady Pakenham is shown here with her son, Kevin, two years old. She

Shouting that he "wasn't afraid to slide," Roger Trotter, six, left, went on thin ice of a Cornwall, Ont.,

creek, drowned in 10 feet of water. Because of ice, first efforts to recover the body were unavailing. Police rounded up crew shown cutting openings in the ice for rescue operations, right. Two young friends of boy aged seven and nine, made unsuccessful rescue attempt. They then