SMALL BUNGALOW PROVIDES THREE BEDROOMS

Architect J.L. Blatherwick of Toronto has created a pleasing new scheme with the long, low roof and wide wall arrangement of this three-bedroom bungalow.

Careful study of the floor plan will disclose many features. First of all, there's the separation of sleeping area and main bathroom which, by the way, should appeal to anyone who dislikes present-day open planning. Note how the front entrance is protected by the roof and brightened by the planing area. Just inside the front door is a handy coat room and wardrobe and then the dining room with a door to the garden. The side entrance is protected by the carport and leads direct to the kitchen or basement.

The floor area is 1,295 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 40 feet, nine inches by 33 feet. Working drawings for this house known as design 2113, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Moncton at minimum cost.

Hoover Urges Peace Council Of Free Nations

WEST BRITAIN, Iowa (AP) From this peaceful village, a peace council has called for a "council of free nations" to work for world peace.

The former U.S. president, made the suggestion from a flag-raising platform he shared with one of his successors in the White House, Harry Truman.

The scene was the dedication of the Hoover Presidential Library in a park adjoining the two-room cottage where Hoover was born 88 years ago Friday. At least seven high school bands and thousands of fellow Iowans who had come to honor the 30th president in, as he noted, the gathering shadows of his life.

Hoover said he did not mean such a council should replace the UN. But he said it "should step in" when the UN fails to act or "is prevented from taking action" to preserve peace.

FIRST AID FOR THE HOME

DISCOLORED WALL
Question: What makes my walls discolor over my baseboard heating system? I have a five-year-old ranch house that is equipped with copper, p.l. and aluminum fin heating system. We also find the house very dusty.

Answer: Dust may be due to this collection and accumulation on the baseboard as heat rises it causes air circulation which carries dust along. This should be vacuumed if possible. Also there is probably air leakage between the baseboard and the wall permitting dust to seep in. Wash these thin asbestos paper, or heating pipe, from floor to top, and lapped over on top for one-half inch; then nail quarter-round wood molding on top of the floor.

PAINTING WOODWORK
Question: We recently bought a five-year-old home and have been repainting, etc. We want to repaint the living room, dining area and hall. The woodwork has been painted once and the entire area has carpeting which is securely tacked down. How can we

GREASE STAINS
Question: I bought semi-assembled birch kitchen cabinets, ready to wax. I waxed them and now around the handles there appears to be a greasy stain. When the kitchen is damp they show very much; when dry they almost disappear. How can I remove these stains before varnishing? I am not sure if they have penetrated into the wood.

Answer: I'm afraid you will have to remove the wax you applied to the cabinets. A varnish can successfully be applied only to absolutely clean surfaces free of any trace of foreign matter such as wax, grease, soil, etc. To clean the wood surface rub with fine steel wool and turpentine; this cleaning may also remove the stain. If not, apply a flammable material of fuller's earth and a nonflammable liquid spot remover the sure room (well ventilated) to the stained areas; allow to remain until dry, then brush off, repeating treatment, if necessary, until stain disappears.

BROKEN CHAIR
Question: We have an antique "ice cream parlor chair." One of the side pieces had broken off and we can't make it fast as it was with the original bolt. A "cutline" on the end was held in the seat with a bolt and that broke off. How can it be attached again? It's made of iron; hard to bend as it pops out every time. Must be welded, and if so, by whom? I hate to throw it out as we need it badly... and money too!

Answer: For goodness sake, don't throw such a nice old antique out. Take it to a good machine shop (consult your classification).

PEKING (Reuters) — A serious drought has damaged rice crops in large areas of south-west China. People's Daily said.

The drought has affected more than 300,000 acres in Kweichow province and scattered areas in neighboring Hunan province, the official Communist party newspaper said.

In some drought-stricken areas of Kweichow, the newspaper said, water-rice crops have a 1/2 acre of altogether and farmers are planting sweet potatoes, buckwheat and other quick-maturing crops in an effort to compensate for the losses.

Too much rain, the report said, has been the problem in the northwestern province of Szechwan. Farmers there were busy harvesting spring-wheat crops whose growth had been delayed by a month of continuous rain. (Reports in Hong Kong said reports damaged rice crops in various parts of Communist China. The reports quoted a Peking radio broadcast Thursday night.)

REPAIRING PIPES
Question: We built a recreation room in the basement, enclosing the ceiling and all of the heat ducts leading upstairs. When the furnace stops blowing (forced air type), there is a noise coming through our baseboard heating from contraction and expansion of the pipes. What can be done to stop this noise? We cannot find the source for it seems to start at the furnace and goes through the pipes.

Answer: Since the noise started if possible, should be enclosed, I suspect it is due to expansion of the pipes causing them to rub against the enclosure at some point, or at holes through the enclosure which are not quite large enough. Isolator hangers on the pipes or sleeves around the holes, if possible, should be installed; or plastic strips of felt or foam chinking wherever the ducts rub on wood (available large plumbing supplies houses).
