IN MEMORIAM

MRS. L. A. COOPER
Mrs. Stanley Murchison, North River, received the sad news of the passing of her cousin Mrs. Lucy Ann Cooper, 87, a resident of Malden, for 66 years, the last 25 of which she made her home at 48 Webster Street. She died at her home March 9th. She was the wife of Alexander J. Cooper, retired Malden carpenter and builder. She was a native of De Sable, Prince Edward Island. She was active in Malden affairs for a number of years, and was a past noble grand of Majestic Rebekah Lodge and a past chancellor of the Pythian Sisters. She was a member of the First Baptist Church and for many years taught a class of girls in the Sunday School there. The funeral was held March 11th at the Margeson Funeral Home, with Rev. Baptist Straton of the First Baptist Church officiating, and burial was in the family plot in Forest Dale Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. ISAAC LAWSON
There passed away after a short illness at the P.E.I. Hospital on March 17, 1957. Mrs. Isaac Lawson, formerly Miss Maggie Ethel Carr of Stanhope in her 71st year. She leaves to mourn beside her sorrowing husband, one son Harry, at home, three daughters Irene, Mrs. W. A. Bolser, Charlottetown; Helen, Mrs. Ivan Bernard, Bellevue Court and Mabel, at home. Also surviving are one brother, Ray, Stanhope and one sister, Mrs. Wallace MacDonald, Covehead Road; two grandsons and two granddaughters. Two brothers and two sisters predeceased her a number of years ago.

Mrs. Lawson was, up until her death an active member of her community and was always happy to assist friends and neighbors in any way that she could help. The many beautiful floral tributes, letters and cards of sympathy were silent testimony of the high esteem in which Mrs. Lawson was held by a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral which was largely attended, was held in the West Covehead United Church and the service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. William Forsythe. The music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Warren Marshall. The hymns sung were, "The Lords My Shepherd", and "Unto the Hills."

The pall bearers were: Rupert Ross, Joseph W. Harry MacLauchlan, Joseph Robinson, James Allan, Horace Marshall. Interment took place in West Covehead Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Isaac Lawson wish to extend many thanks to Dr. Lea and Dr. Farmer, to nurses and staff of the P.E.I. Hospital, and to the many friends and neighbors who were kind and helpful during their recent sad bereavement.

People Will Get Smarter, Is This Inventor's Belief

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor
People will get smarter. That's the opinion of Richard Kobler, inventor and proponent of office automation.
He gave the opinion to newspaper men when his forecast of the future would be "decision-making" and "programming."
"It's no accident," said Mr. Kobler, "that a 10-year-old boy on a television program is bewildering people with his knowledge of astrophysics. There are quite a few like him."
"Our kids do things which would have amazed their grandparents, their children and grandchildren may do things out of this world. Heritage and tradition have taken over from evolution. We do in decades what took aeons before. Things so outrageously complicated that they hit you like a brick are invented today and are on the market tomorrow."
MACHINES REPLACED BICEPS
The industrial revolution, Mr. Kobler continued, started with the wheel and attained fantastic velocities with the invention of the steam engine. It led, however, only to the replacement of biceps by machines.
The newer and "more serious" revolution of automation would help the human brain.
"Man now was developing from a "doer" into a "thinker" and the two main functions of the executive and super-officer-worker of the future would be "decision-making" and "programming."
"Any repetitive or memory work could be assigned to a computer and the fact that the computer was called a "memory" was "hair-raising" in itself.
"Without knowledge one couldn't even touch the jobs of the future. Mr. Kobler indicated, however, that there still would be some place for the ordinary worker. The functions of a dictating system, for instance, could be learned in three weeks as compared with a year for stenographers' course. And he was keen enough to say he didn't think automation would replace newspaper men.
DICTATING SYSTEM
Mr. Kobler, born and educated in Vienna, is the inventor of the Thomas A. Edison Company's remote-controlled dictation system and, from the range of his early engineering activities, seems to have been somewhat of a prodigy himself.
The difference between the bet-

Bushel May Be On Its Way Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bushel may be on its way out as a unit for measuring grain.
Both American and Canadian governments as well as trade groups in both countries are pushing moves to measure grains by the hundredweight instead. The United States agriculture department has made a study of the matter and will make a report on its recommendations at a convention of the American Feed Manufacturers Association in Chicago May 1.
The Canadian board of grain commissioners is also reported looking into the proposal.
Confusion in the use of the unit of the bushel arises in part from the fact that in different parts of the world it is used for different things and also because of the fact that there is great variation in the weight of a bushel of various grains.
The standard bushel in the U.S. contains 2,150.42 cubic inches. The Canadian bushel contains 2,219.6 cubic inches. In the U.S. a bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds, rye, flaxseed and shelled corn 56 pounds, ear corn 70 pounds, barley 48 pounds and oats 32.
In recent years the U.S. agriculture department has succeeded in getting the hundredweight adopted in place of the bushel in measuring potatoes, sweet potatoes and fresh vegetables.
Grains are sold in domestic markets now on the basis of bushels, but exports are made on the basis of tons.
The steel mill wharves. The last barge is usually cut adrift and the towing tug skipper informed.
When the tug slips the tow-line to go to the rescue of the drifting barge the tugmen slip in, pick up the tow and dash into one of the rivers or canals where accomplices unload the barges.
Any tugboat captain who fails to fall for the ruse usually has his craft boarded at pistol point and is severely handed before the barges are stolen.
The harbor police have 500 men and 50 patrol vessels. Police launches, some capable of 40 knots, are armed with searchlights, machine-guns, and 303 Lee Enfield rifles. Each of the larger vessels carries a crew of eight.
During a patrol, the crews supervise a daily shipping traffic which includes at least two ocean freighters, about 35 coastal and inter-lake cargo vessels, and 3,000 tons, collars, water-and-oil-lighters as well as well more than 25,000 ferries, fishing vessels and barges.
A few shallow draft police launches patrol the rivers and canals which are crammed with barges, houseboats, floating bars, restaurants and brothels.
The most common method of operation is to string a line of barges being

Chinese Find It Hard To Popularize Cremation Idea

By DAVID CHIPP
PEIPING (Reuters)—The Chinese government is trying unobtrusively to popularize cremation of the dead.
There have been several references in the press to the effect that cremation is a good thing. Writers have emphasized that the seed of the idea must merely be sown and allowed to spread slowly. For cremation is opposed to the traditional bliss of the majority of Chinese for their reverence for ancestors, which is still, in spite of Communist materialism, strong throughout the country.
NOURISH BODY
Ancestor worship, though perhaps not so openly ritualistic now, continues psychologically at least among large sections of the population and probably materially in backward country areas.
It involves belief in two souls. One the higher soul, ascends on death. The other remains in the coffin and is nourished by the offerings made at the time of burial.
The life of this soul is limited (though decomposition can be retarded by the burial of a piece of jade in the coffin), but it must be nourished as long as possible.
Thus, the cremation of the body by burning would seem to many Chinese to be courting disaster.
LONG ABOLISHED
It has been stressed that cremation was fairly widespread in certain areas of China during the Sung dynasty (960-1279), but the last of these emperors was petitioned to prohibit the building of furnaces for cremation.
The Mongols, who wrested the empire from the Sung dynasty, also practised cremation but never succeeded in imposing it completely on their Han subjects. Marco Polo frequently used the phrase: "They are idolaters and burn their dead."
The Communists are unlikely to make the mistake of forcing cremation on the people. They will try to achieve it by education and persuasion.
LEADERS EXAMPLE
One writer suggested it would be a good thing if the leaders arranged that an example should be made of their remains after death.
One method being used to try to get people to accept cremation is to stress that cremation would mean that more land would be available for cultivation and building. At present, the government often has great difficulty in persuading peasants to move the graves of their ancestors when a site is needed.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Peter Parnell Murphy wish to extend their thanks to all those who sent messages, spiritual enforcements, and messages of sympathy in any way during their recent and bereavement.

ter-known single dictating machine and the remote-controlled system is this:
With the single machine one executive has it with him and dictates to it.
The remote-controlled system, a score of executives can use the same dictating equipment at their convenience. This provides service to executives who may dictate only two or three or a half-dozen letters a day.
Each has an instrument on his desk like a telephone which connects with the central dictating equipment, and a single system which tells whether there is a clear line.
He simply picks up the instrument and talks into it. At the central equipment a typist takes out his dictating instrument and sends it to him for signature. If the office is super-modern, the letter appears at his desk on a teletype.
If things get super-super-modern the letter may not have to be mailed. Communication companies may transmit the system. Conferences within an office or industry may be done away with as such. Through closed-circuit and television systems, conferences may be called at any moment without any one leaving his desk.

IN MEMORIAM

PETER P. MURPHY
On Monday, February 4th, 1957, relatives and friends were shocked and saddened to learn of the sudden death of Peter Parnell Murphy of 104 Burnside Drive, Toronto, Ontario.
Although he had a heart condition for the past year, he was feeling well when he retired in the evening prior to his death, but his wife was awakened at an early hour to a heart attack from which he did not recover. He was in his 60th year. He was a faithful member of the Roman Catholic Church and Holy Name Society.
Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Felix Murphy, he was born in Freeport, P.E.I., where he spent his early days.
In December 1953, he married the former Ellen McKenna and they made their home in Toronto, where he was employed, until the time of his death, as Interior Decorator at St. Michael's Hospital.
He leaves to mourn his beloved wife, one step-daughter, Mrs. Pat Meehan; four brothers, Daniel, Norborn, P.E.I., Felix E. Charlottetown; Emmett, Emerald, John L. on the homestead in Freeport; and three sisters, Beatrice, Mrs. John Cash, Emerald, Pearl, Mrs. George Hughes, Norborn, Lillian Boston, Mass. Three sisters predeceased him.
The remains of the late Mr. Murphy rested at the Rosair funeral home until Wednesday morning when they were taken to St. Michael's Church where Reverend John E. Cash, Vernon River, Prince Edward Island, nephew of the deceased, celebrated Requiem High Mass and officiated at the grave, where all that was mortal of a kind husband, and loving brother was laid to rest at Holy Cross Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were P. J. Greenan, James D. McCarville, Louis Croken, Preston Connolly, Jack Deignan, William Long.
The many floral tributes, messages of sympathy, telegrams and spiritual enforcements showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held.
