TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

CANADIAN.

MONTREAL, Oct. 10.

Our weather prophet, Vennor, says: "Give notice at Newfoundland and ports in that direction of the probable approach of very stormy weather, with cold and snow, for the period between the 15th and 20th of the present month. The indications at present existing make the occurrence of this winter period almost certain and of unusual severity. Include also Nova Scotia."

HALIFAX, Oct. 10.

One of the seamen of the steamer Alhambra, named Joseph Sutton, left here on Saturday at midnight, for St. John's, Nfld., in the steamer. A despatch received to-day states that the man died at North Sydney from injuries received while on the voyage, and it appears that the Alhambra called into that port to land the injured man. No further particulars have been received. The deceased was married and leaves a wife in this city.

UNITED STATES.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., Oct. 10.

Willet, found guilty of murder in the first degree, was sentenced to be hung 2nd December.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.

The special session of the Senate to-day was called to order by Mr. Harris. After prayer by Chaplain Bullock, who feelingly alluded to the death of President Garfield, Senator Burnside and Secretary Burch, President Arthur's proclamation convening the session was read.

Mr. Pendleton (Democrat) moved that Thomas F. Bayard (Democrat), of Delaware, be chosen President pro tem of the Senate. Edmunds (Republican) thought the Senators elect, two from New York and one from Rhode Island, should be first sworn in, and made a motion to that effect, which was defeated 34 to 33. Amendments providing that Bayard be chosen presiding officer for to day only, and substituting the name of Senator Anthony (Republican) for Bayard, were respectively defeated. The original motion then prevailed, and Bayard was elected by 34 to 32. The Senate adjourned till to-morrow.

IRELAND.

LONDON, Oct. 10.

The Times' Dublin despatch says Gladstone's speech has brought light and hope to loyal people who felt that the Government had abandoned them. The Midland counties are still very lawless. "Boycotting" is proceeding with unrelenting vigor and incendiarism is frequent.

Parnell concluded his speech at Wexford on Sunday thus: "I trust the result of the League movement will be that just as Gladstone by his acts in 1881 has eaten all his old words and departed from all his former declared principles, so we shall see that these brave words of his shall be scattered as chaff before the united and advancing determination of Irishmen to regain their lost legislative independence."

A serious riot occurred at Ballyraggle, County Kilkenny, on Sunday. One man died from bayonet wounds inflicted, and another was fatally wounded. A serious collision occurred between the police and people at Athenry, yesterday, in which several injuries were sustained on both sides.

LONDON, Oct. 10.

A despatch from Dayseling says fever is epidemic in Umritsir. In the Punjab the mortality is from 200 to 300 daily. The total number of deaths for eleven days ending 1st of October, is 2,265, of whom 1,138 were children.

Sir Samuel Baker, the African explorer, arrived in New York on Friday last from the Rocky Mountains. When the annexation of Cyprus to England occurred there was much discussion regarding the advantages of the new acquisition. To investigate the resources of the country, Sir Samuel Baker went there in January, 1879, and for ten months he lived on the island. He has since published a book giving the result of his investigations, which has had a large sale in England. Since then the explorer and his wife have travelled around the world. They went to Syria Madras, China, Japan, and other places in the East. Last month they arrived in San Francisco, and in a few days will start for England, after an absence of nearly three years.

The text of the convention between Her Majesty and the Sultan for the suppression of the African slave trade was published in London on the 16th ult. It bears testimony to the intense earnestness which animates the people of Great Britain and Ireland in favor of the colored races of the world.

Sir Alex. Galt.

THE HIGH COMMISSIONER ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT THE NORTH-WEST.

(From the Globe's Correspondent.)

Reporter—'How did you like the North-West?'

Sir A. T. Galt—'Very much indeed It is a wonderful country; I have become quite enthusiastic about it. Before I went there I had opinions, of course, but I could not realize what a magnificent country it is. I believe there is a great future for that country, that it will be the making of Canada. Nothing can excel the richness of the soil, and the climate is splendid. I feel quite a new man since my trip there, it built me up wonderfully. I have not seen enough of it yet, and shall try and go back there next fall. A remarkable thing is the contented feeling of every one I met. There is no grumbling. It is quite natural for many people to grumble; you know (smiling), especially for Englishmen, but I did not hear a single grumble. The air is invigorating, bracing, and tends to hopefulness and energy.'

'But the winter climate must be severe?'

'As to that I made enquiries of a great many Ontario people whom I met there and you know the Ontario climate is much milder than farther east. They say they don't mind it at all; they find less discomfort than in the rain and sleet storms of Ontario, where one working out doors must have wet clothes and wet feet. They say that there is scarcely a day but they can work out of doors all winter, and it is their own fault if they don't put on clothes enough to keep warm.'

'What are our prospects as regards immigration?'

'We are doing fairly well this year, and I hope shall do much better next year. It takes time to produce results in this matter. The Americans had so greatly the start of us, and had worked the immigration field so thoroughly, that they had got the stream turned toward their country, but once the richness and the vast resources of the Canadian North West become known it must attract an increasing share of immigration. I shall be able to deal with the question better from having seen the country for myself, and (smiling) I shall do what I can."

Diphtheria.

TERRIBLE RAVAGES OF THE FELL DISEASE IN RUSSIA—SEVENTY-SEVEN PER CENT. OF THE CASES FATAL—PEOPLE FLYING FOR THEIR LIVES TO OTHER PARTS OF THE COUNTRY.

The reports from Orel, a province of Central Russia, show that diphtheria still prevails in that distressed community. No outbreak of which the history of the place has any record has been worse than this. It is actually stated by the local doctors that in seventy-seven cases out of a hundred the persons attacked by the disease die. It attacks all classes and baffles the skill of the oldest physicians. The epidemic has not seriously affected the adjoining provinces so far, and as the boundaries of Orel are exceedingly irregular many of the outlying districts are yet unattacked. The Province covers about 20,000 square miles, and is one of the most thickly populated in Central Russia, containing no less than 1,500,000 people. The soil is productive, and there are rich mines of iron and copper ore and other minerals. The people are panic-stricken and all who can do so are flying for safety to other parts of the country. The despatches received are by no means full, but the scenes now being enacted in the devoted province must be distressing beyond description.

Long ago it used to be supposed that those who were from childhood inured to hard work and coarse living, were healthier than the classes who enjoyed more ease as well as more culture. Investigation and experiment has proved that this notion is groundless. At the late meeting of the British Association Professor Leoni Levi, in seconding a motion of Mr. Galton for the reappointment of the Apthropometric Committee, said that the economical condition of people had much to do with their stature and weight. In support of the statement he gave the following figures: Town artisans appeared from the returns to be of an average height of 66.55 in.; the laboring class, 67.15 in.; the commercial class 67.79 in.; and the professional class 68.70 in. In weight the town artisan again stood lowest, with 136.2 lb.; the other statistics being—laboring class 137 8 lb.; commercial 143-9 lb., and the professional class 152.7 lb. The general population had an average weight of 145.2 lb. and a stature of 67.63 in.

A national hospital at Washington, built by subscriptions from every part of the civilized world, is proposed as Garfield's monument. Mrs. Garfield, it is to be hoped, has ended the doctors' controversy by telling Boynton that she believed the wound to have been mortal, and requesting him not to publish his statement."

Seventy-seven per cent. of the cases of diphtheria in Central Russia are fatal.
