

IN DISTRESS PROPELLER FOULED

RESCUER COMES ALONGSIDE

TOWED ASHORE FOR BEACHING
DISTRESS SIGNAL ANSWERED

Lobster fisherman Stewart Ross of Flat River had just hauled two traps over the side of his thirty-eight foot "Elizabeth R" when he had to have another fisherman raise the "distress flag" (top) in the craft at the time were Dan Cook and Jim Singleton of Belle River and Winston Smith of Pownal. Mr. Ross's boat was the only craft out at the time and two other fishermen had to come out from the Belle River "run" to assist the disabled craft.

The centre photo shows Angus MacLean and Martin Stewart of Hopefield coming to the assistance of the "Elizabeth R", which was then several hundred yards off shore.

The bottom photo shows the rescue craft towing Ross's boat into Belle River Run. On arrival Mr. Ross had to beach his craft to find the cause of the trouble. It turned out to be a jute bag that had somehow become entangled in the propeller shaft and brought the lobster boat almost to a standstill.
