

THE FAIR GOD.

BOOK SEVEN.

CHAPTER X.

The preparations of Escobar, as we have seen, had been under Io's view; so the prince, divining the object, drew after him a strong support, and hastened to keep the advantage of the stairways. On one of the eastern terraces he met the 'tzin ascending. There was hurried salutation between them.

"Look you for Huapipa?" asked Io, observing the 'tzin search the company inquiringly.

"Yes. He should be here."

"The boy's face and voice fell. "I would he were, good 'tzin. He left me on the cotztes. With the look of one who had devoted himself, he embraced me. His last words were, 'Tell the 'tzin I have gone to make for him a way into the palace.' And thereupon Io told the story through, simply and sorrowfully; at the end the listener kissed him, and said:

"I will find the way he made for me." There was a silence, very brief, however, for a burst of yells from below warned them of the fight begun. Then the 'tzin recalled himself, gave orders.

"Care of the gods is mine now. Leave me these friends, and go, and with the people at command, bring stones and timbers, all you find, and heap them ready for use on the terraces at the head of each stairway. Go quickly, so may you earn the double blessing of Huiztil and Tezca!"

In a little time the 'tzin stood upon the last step of the lowest stairway; nor did he lift hand until Escobar, half spent with exertion, confronted him: shield to shield. The result has been told.

And then were shown the qualities which, as a fighting man, raised the 'tzin above rivalry amongst his people. The axe in his hand was but another form of the mangachalil; and that his shield was of the Christian style mattered not—he was its perfect master. With a joyous cry he rushed upon the arms outstretched to save the fallen captain; played his shield like a shifting mirror; rose and fell the axe, now in feint, now in foil, but always in circles swifter than eye could follow; striking a victim but once, he amazed and dazzled the Spaniards, as in the Moorish wars El Zagal, the Moor, amazed and dazzled their fathers. Nor did he want support. His followers, inspired by his example, struggled to keep pace with him. On the flanks poured the masses of his countrymen in blind fury, content if, with their black hands, they could clutch the weapons that slew them. Such valor was not to be resisted by the lessening band of Christians, who yielded, at first in by inches, then step by step; at length, in disorder, almost in rout, they were driven from the sacred enclosure.

The victory was decided; the temple was safe, and the insult punished! The air shook with the deep music of the drum; in the streets the companies yelled as if drunk; the temple was beautiful with waving shields and tossing shields and banners; on the cotztes of the great pile, in presence of the people, the priests appeared and danced their dance of triumph—a horrible saturnalia. The fight had been a trial of power between the gods Christian and Aztec, and lo, Huiztil was master!

The 'tzin felt the sweetness of his victory, and his breast filled with heroic impulses. Standing in the gate of the coatlapanitl, he saw the breach Huapipa had made in the wall enclosing the palace, noticed that the accent to the base of the gorge was easy, and the gorge itself now wide enough to admit of the passage of several men side by side. The temptation was strong, the possibilities alluring, and he fixed his purpose.

"It is the way he made for me, and I will tread it. Help me, O God of my fathers!" So he resolved, so he prayed. And forthwith messengers ran to the chiefs on the four sides of the palace with orders for them to pass the wall. From the dead Spaniards the armor was stripped, and arms taken; and the robbers, fourteen caiques, men notable for skill and courage stood up under cuirass and helm or morion, and with pike and battle-axe of Christian manufacture, covered, nevertheless, with pagan trappings.

Still standing in the gateway, the 'tzin saw the companies in the street begin the assault. Swelled their war-cries as never before, for the inspiration of the victory was upon them also; rattled the tambours, brayed the conchs, danced the priests, and from the temple and house-tops poured the missiles in a darkening cloud. Within his view a hundred ladders were planted, and crowded with eager climbers. At the gorge of the breach men struggled with each other to make the passage first. He called a messenger:

"Take this ring to the prince Io," he said. "Tell him the house of the gods is once more in his care." Then to his chosen caiques he turned, saying: "Follow me, O countrymen!" With that he walked swiftly to the breach; calm, collected, watchful, silent he walked. His companions shouted his war-cries. From mouth to mouth it passed, thrilling and inspiring.

"Up, up, Tlatelco! Up, up, over the wall! The 'tzin is with us!" Meantime the besieged were not idle; over the crest of the parapet the Tlascalans fought successfully; through the ports and embrasures the Christians kept up their fire of guns great and small. Nevertheless, to the breach the 'tzin went without stopping.

"Clear the way!" he cried. The guns within made answer; a shower of blood drenched him from head to foot. Except of the dead, the way was clear! A rush through the slippery gorge—a shout—and he was inside the enclosure, backed by his caiques. And as he went in, Cortes passed out, marching to storm the temple.

No doubt or hesitation on the 'tzin's part now; no looking about uncertain what to do, while bowmen and gunners made a mark of him. He spoke to his supporters, and with them faced to the right, and cleared the banquet of Tlascalans. Over the wall, thus cleared, and through the breach leaped his people, and as they came, the iron shields covered them, and they multiplied rapidly. About eight hundred Spaniards, chiefly Navarres men, defended the palace. They fought, but not with the spirit of the veterans, and were pushed slowly backward. As they retired, wider grew the space of undefended wall; like waves over a ship's side, in poured the companies; the Aztecs fell by scores, yet they increased by hundreds.

Again the sick and wounded staggered from their quarters; again De Oid brought his reserves into action; again the volleys shook the palace, and wrapped it in curtains of smoke, whiter and softer than bridal veils; still the infidels continued to master the walls and the space within. By and by the gates fell into their hands, and then, indeed, all seemed lost to the Christians.

The stout heart of the good Captain Christoval was well tempered for the trial. To the windows and lesser entrances of the buildings he sent guards, stationing them inside; then, in front of the four great doors he drew his men back, and fought on, so that the palace was literally girt with a belt of battle.

As he was like that I write of, seems a long time to a combatant; on this occasion, however, one there was not a combatant, to whom, possibly, the time seemed much longer. In his darkened chamber sat the king, neither speaking nor spoken to, though surrounded by his court. He must have heard the cries of his people; knowing them so near, in fancy, at least, he must have seen their heroism and slaughter. Had he no thought in sympathy with them? no prayer for their success? no hope for himself even? Who may answer?—so many there are dead in the midst of life.

Here We Are Again! McLEOD & McKENZIE, STAR MERCHANT TAILORS, The Original and Peerless Artists of Our Day. THE ABOVE HAS BEEN A SETTLED FACT FOR YEARS, and to keep before the public what is so well known to every good dresser in this Province, may seem superfluous. But as a good dinner tends to give a quietus to the disturbing influences within the inner man, so a thorough knowledge of our capabilities will give a quietus to anyone who may have had the good fortune of being dressed by us. The sun rises and sets, and it appears to the ordinary judgment that the sun revolves around the earth instead of the earth revolving around the sun; so we, through the immense strides we have taken in our art, would appear to be uneducated to be moving around our many friends, instead of they moving around us; like the sun imparts its warm rays to revive drooping nature, so we are the benefactors of our people, by aiming high and attaining to a STYLE and FINISH in our Garments, which cannot but command us as the MERCHANT TAILORING PHILANTHROPISTS of our day. Are you anxious to test the foregoing? Come in, then, and see our line of Goods, which are superior, in every sense of the word, and we will fit you out with a Suit which will doubtless draw the loving remark from your best girl that she has "the best dressed young man in town."
