A LONG FARE.

(Concluded)

'is ten pounds worth, at least, so I catches up the reins and turns the 'orse round and goes up Ludgate 'Ill and through to Liverpool street; then I strikes north Enfield way, and by and by we gets out into the country. The gent he sits there, and never says a word. Once I lifts up the lid and looks down at 'im; 'e 'ad 'is cap down over 'is eyes and seemed to be asleep. When evenin' was comin' on, and I gets no orders, I lifts up the lid again and finds the gent awake with 'is arms folded across 'is breast and a-lookin' out at the fields.

"'Sir,' says I to 'm, 'the 'orse is gettin' a bit done up.'

"'Very well,' says the gent, 'stop at the first public 'ouse that is respectable, and ask if they can give me accommodation for the night.'

"'So I pulls up at a 'ouse called the Royal George and looks down from the cab, and a man comes to the 'orse's 'ead, and everybody comes and stands round, surprised like to see a 'ansom out there. The gent 'e steps out and says to the proprietor: 'Give this man everything 'e wants to eat and drink, and attend to the horse, as he orders you to, and charge it on my bill.' Then 'e goes inside, but 'e turns to me at the door and 'e says: 'I'll expect the cab ready for me at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning.'

"'Very good, sir,' says I, 'but I've got a wife and family, and I'd like to let 'em know where I am, so's they won't be anxious like.'

"The gent 'e takes a shilling from 'is pocket and says, giving it to me: 'Telegraph them, and give your address as Pibroch Lodge, Loch Skirling, Highlands of Scotland. Then, taking another shilling from his pocket e' says: 'Perhaps you'd like to hear from them tonight, so tell them to telegraph an answer here. Of course we can't tell just where we will stop at night, but I will give you two shillings every evening, so you can hear from them each day. Tell your wife not to gossip too much about this journey, but then,' says the gent, as if speaking to himself, 'what's the use tellin' that to a woman?'

"Well, sir, that's the way it went on, day in and day out. Every evenin' I sends a telegram, and gets an answer before I goes to bed. At 8 o'clock sharp every morning the gent was ready, and after the first day, I didn't have the portmanteau on top, for the gent used it to put 'is feet on; 'e would lean back in the corner of the cab and put up 'is feet quite comfortable like. When we were at a rummey old town called York with a wall all around it, a policeman stopped us, and asked what number this cab was, for 'e'd never seen a number as big as mine. 'E wanted to see my own number, and the license for driving in York, too. The gent 'e gives the policeman a gold piece, and says: 'It's all right, officer, we've come from London, and are just driving through. So the policeman just stood there with 'is jaw dropped, for the gent 'e says to me quite sharp: 'Drive on, cabby.'

"When we stopped that night on the other side o' York, for this gent, e' never would stop at a large place, but always at some old coaching inn, 'e 'ad a man come and unscrew the number from the back of the 'ansom, and e' took off the plate of fares. 'E put them all in 'is portmanteau, along o' my badge and strap. 'We'll put them on again before we reach the four-mile radius,' he said.

"Well, sir, we crossed the Tweed, and were in Scotland before I knew it, and the gent 'e never says a word, but I tell you, sir, Scotland is a bit 'illy; it's worse than Ludgate 'Ill to go up some o' the places. My eye! you ought to see the 'ills there; they are the biggest in the world. When we drove up to the gates of Pibroch Lodge an old 'Ighlander 'e opens the gates and we drive down to the mansion along a fine evenue, all going this way and that way, and not straight like as the roads in Epping Forest.

"The old 'Ighlander 'e waits on the gent, and I tell you we 'ad a good time while we were in that 'ouse. There was the beautiful lake in the front, and the 'ills all around. I asked the man one day who the gent was, and the next day the gent comes to me and he says: 'Cabby, if you want to know anything, you'd better ask me. Now, what is it you want to know?'

"'Well, sir,' I says, 'I don't know as I want to know anything, as long as the money is all right.' And, sir, if you will believe it, that night, never saying a word about the £10 not, 'e gives me 45 shillings for every day we'd been away, and I sends all the money to the missus a tellin' 'er to keep up the installments on the cab, for I see we'd soon 'ave the cab paid for at this rate, and sure enough it was, for before we'd left Pibroch Lodge the cab and 'orse was all paid for, and I was a puttin' money in the bank. Every afternoon the gent 'e 'ad the 'ansom before the door, and we took a drive, sometimes around the roads, and sometimes out in the country, and over the 'ills. Most o' them 'Ighlanders I don't suppose ever see a 'ansom before, for they stood beside the road with jaws dropped and watched us go by: they seemed to think it was sort of a cart up on end, and me on top.

"One night, the gent, 'e says to me: 'Cabby, 'ave the 'ansom ready in the morning at 8 o'clock,' and at 8 o'clock the 'ansom was at the door, and the 'Ighlander 'e comes out with the portmanteau and puts it inside. Then for a moment the gent 'e stands there with 'is foot on the step, and says: 'Cabby, Charing Cross.'

"'Right you are, sir,' says I.

"'And, Cabby,' 'e says, 'take the west coast this time. We'll go down through Glasgow, and by Westmoreland, and on to Liverpool and London.'

"So we started, sir, and yesterday, when the number was put on the cab again, and we were come within the four-mile radius, I says to 'im:

"'What number, sir?' and 'e says:

"'Drive to your cab-rank on the Thames embankment.'

"With that we drives there, sir, and the gent 'e takes 'is portmanteau in 'is [illegible] allow anybody to carry it for 'm. 'E pays me up, and says: 'Never mind the £10 note Cabby, keep that for yourself.' And with that away 'e goes. 'E looks over 'is shoulder two or three times, to see if I'm a followin' of 'im, but he turned at the last I see of him."—Robert Barr, in Detroit Free Press.

THE TIDE TURNS.

Great Improvement in the Health of a Well-known Peterboro' Lady.

PETERBORO, Aug. 5.—General satisfaction is expressed here at the greatly improved condition of health of Mrs. K. Stephens, the well-known music teacher of this town. Her friends have been much exercised over her condition for a long time, and a number of remedies have been tried during the ten years that she has been a martyr to a complication of complaints, which recently became very severe. She suffered frightfully with pains in the back, nervous prostration and swelling of the limbs. She has been taking the new remedy for kidney troubles, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and has already experienced the most beneficial results.

A DEPARTURE.—A curious mode of worship was introduced by the Salvation Army at Detroit on Saturday, July 20. A lecture was delivered by two "Captains" on the analysis and dissection of the devil's body, the parts being pride, whiskey, etc., immediately after which the lights were suddenly extinguished and the form of his satanic majesty was brought out, made of paper, and colored to suggest the analytic description. Red lights were thrown upon the stage to represent the fire of hell, and the horns, hoofs and tail were terrific in appearance. A red bonnet decorated with roses represented pride, while cards and liquor indicated ruin and destruction. The effigy was then set on fire, amid shrieks and yells which reminded the beholders of Milton's Pandemonium.

Don't Wait for the Sick Room.

The experience of physicians and the public proves that taking Scott's Emulsion produces an immediate increase in flesh; it is therefore of the highest value in Wasting Diseases and Consumption.

The bicycle of the Khedive of Egypt is a gorgeous machine, almost entirely covered with silver plating.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
