WHAT A TONGUE

Each one has talents of his own Peculiar to himself alone. —Old Mother Nature.

Many folks forget that. Anyway they seem to. They think that because they can do a certain thing others should be able to do it just as well. Of course this is a silly idea. Short legs may be able to move as fast as long legs, even faster, but they can't cover the ground as fast. Just remember that folks are different. And how!

Over in the Green Forest, Peter Rabbit and his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, were watching Logcock the Pileated Woodpecker, largest member of the Woodpecker family anywhere but way, way down in the great swamps of the Sunny south. He was nearly as big as Blacky the Crow, so big that it was difficult for Peter to believe that he really was a Woodpecker until he saw him at work. Then the way the chips flew left no doubt at all. It looked to Peter as if that tree would be chopped all to pieces if Logcock kept on. He even accused the big Woodpecker of destroying a good tree.

"What do you mean by Handy Tongue?" Peter wanted to know.

ANOTHER ARGUMENT

"Dear Mrs. Culbertson: The row raised over the following hand will not subside until you have 'fixed the blame' for the 1400 point penalty!

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

♠	A Q 7 5 4	♣	K J 8
♥	J 6	♦	K 10 7
♦	7	♠	8 6 4
♣	A J 8 4 3	♥	K 10 9 7

♥ A 8 4
♦ A Q 10 9 3 2
♣ 6 5

"This is how the hand was bid:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Dble. Pass Pass

"West led his fourth-highest heart, and the debacle was soon under way! South took exactly four tricks, so the opponents took a neat 1400 points!
"South claimed that the fault was at least 90% North's—that he should have started the bidding with one club, then shown his spades. South pointed out that North's actual sequence of bids guaranteed a strong holding, tantamount to reverse bidding; when, in actual fact, of course, North had an absolute 'minny'.
"North countered that he had simply shown his true distribution, and that South was way out of line in bidding three notrump—that he should merely have rebid diamonds."

It is true that North should have had considerably more for his sequence of bids, but this writer does not agree that starting with one club would have been the solution. Many experts do bid a spade-club two suiter in this fashion, but the results are not invariably what they should be! With a one-club opening, a one-diamond response and a one-spade rebid—how about South's problem? Wouldn't he be strongly tempted to then bid three diamonds, since a two-diamond rebid would not come close to announcing his holding? And, over three diamonds, North would have to bid three spades, and then, as before, South would probably "shoot" at three notrump.
"No trouble was not with North's opening, but with his rebid! He simply should have bid two spades over two diamonds, 'suppressing' the club suit because of the bidding level. Over two spades, South could not afford a bigger bid than three diamonds—and North should pass. South would go down a couple, but undoubted—which would not be a tragedy.
