

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH McQUAIL

Wedding Vows Solemnized Recently At Tracadie Cross

Admired a setting of yellow and white mums at St. Bonaventure's Roman Catholic Church, Tracadie Cross, Catherine Bernice McQuail became the bride of Joseph Edward McQuail, Bedford Station. Rev. Kenneth MacMillan officiated at the ceremony in late February. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McQuail, Tracadie Cross and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McQuaid of Bedford Station.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie with a scoop neckline and long sleeves. A train of the same material was held in place by a bow at the waist and a fabric rose held her bouffant shoulder length veil. She carried red sweetheart roses mingled with ferns and ribbon.

Edwina McQuillan was maid of honor for her sister while two other sisters, Mrs. George MacLaren and Judy McQuillan were bridesmaids. The flower girl was Debbie MacLaren niece of the bride. The attendants were all dressed in identical floor-length dresses of turquoise peau de soie. They wore wedding ring headresses of similar material with short veils. The flower girl carried a basket of mixed flowers while the bride's other attendants carried white and turquoise mums.

John Bernard McQuaid was a best man for his brother, Leonard McQuillan, brother of the bride and Phillip Hughes, cousin of the groom, ushered guests to pews marked by white bows.

The organist, Bernardine Smith accompanied George MacDonald who sang "On This Day O Beautiful Mother". Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Basilica Recreation Centre for 75 guests. The bride's mother received wearing a royal blue wool dress with black and white accessories and a corsage of white mums. The groom's mother wore a royal blue wool dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The bride's table was decorated with yellow and white mums and centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Phyllis Smith, cousin of the bride, circulated the guest book. A number of telegrams were read from friends and relatives in Toronto and the USA.

For a honeymoon trip to Dartmouth N. S. the bride donned a three piece suit of blue tweed and matching cloak. Her accessories were of black leather. Mr. and Mrs. McQuaid now reside at 7 Micmac Drive, Dartmouth, N. S. (Photo by C. D. MacKay)

ELLEN'S DIARY

A Beef Producer Visited Our Farm And Stables

The rose of promise of the sunrise was being reflected in the swinging mirror on the old dresser in the room above the kitchen when the new day came in the window this morning. "Let us not lie here, Ellen," James said, turning back the bed-covers and setting his feet to the floor. "We've things to do, remember?"

A beef producer from Upper Canada today a guest of Island contemporaries was to include this farm this morning, among other similar ports of call. Accordingly, the animals must be fed and tended, before the visitor should come by.

Quite pleased, our farmers were to take this man on that tour of the stables, to enjoy with one or the other of the farmers or with the children including Mack. By the calves, we so, past the yearlings and older, inspecting the herdshires, and all that keep along the aisles of the barns. Members of the herd he would see. But not notice as do we the sturdy old beams above, hewn and set in place in years now long gone, by those of James' forebears. Nor would he see a dancing sunbeam, gold-moted fall aslant a sill, there where at a pan, the barn-cats lap up the warm new milk. The bantams, avowedly more or less of a nuisance to the men in that they homing happily in the stables "are always underfoot"; marking the new days blithely, homing as returning pigeons to roost on a high water-pipe, would hush their singing at the sound of visitors, and retreat to some shadowy nook. So he would not see them, we fancy, or note the tiny egg in its soft nest the most industrious hen ever, likes to lay for our breakfast - the same that Alex or Peter brings in, with a little apology over its size, in the smile.

So the farmers were pleased with the visitor and other visitors of today, not so much to have them enjoy viewing the animals, as that in the younger farmer's words, "One can usually learn something" from this or that stock-man, who may chance to drop by.

"The month is spending away Ellen," James offers, now from the old armchair. "No more short days!" he smiles. March according to Indian lore was the Crow Moon - so named we suspect because of the increased number the sun and warming

Veteran Is Heart-Broken As Wife Seeks Divorce

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About nine years ago my wife signed me into a Veterans' Administration hospital with a minor nervous condition, service connected that I acquired while in the Army in 1943.

My wife is 49 and I am 51. She is a primary school teacher, having taught for 29 years. We have a lovely home on the East Coast and a new car.

Our 28th wedding anniversary will be next June. We have a wonderful daughter, a graduate nurse, now on the staff of a mid-Western hospital.

I love my wife with all my heart and have lived for the day when I would get out of the hospital and go back to work to try to renew my life as it once was. However, when she came to the hospital on my birthday, last fall, she told my doctor, my social worker and me that she wants a separation. That was a blow, as I had thought she loved me as I love her.

After her visit I got my brother to get me out of the hospital for a 90 days trial visit, and I am now at his home and hope to go to work soon. If I am working at the end of the 90 days trial visit, the hospital will extend my leave.

My wife and I are church members and our church (Baptist) frowns on divorce, as I do too. But when I wrote to our pastor, asking him to come to the hospital to counsel me about my wife's wish for separation, he never answered. So talking things over with him is "out". And I don't know why my wife wants a divorce.

In a recent letter our daughter tells me that my wife is getting a divorce and feels there is no chance for reconciliation. We have been married so long that I feel she is part of me. If you know of any counselling service that you think might help, please let me know. J.R.

DEAR J. R.: "Every cloud has a silver lining," a proverb says. And the shock, to you, of your wife's decision to get a divorce may startle you into rallying all your forces and making the concerted effort necessary to get back on your feet in the "outside" world.

As to why your wife is divorcing you, I suggest the essential reason, deep down, however she argues it to herself, is that she has reached the conclusion, over the years, that you are better off wrapped in the psychological security of veterans' hospital care, without family responsibilities weighing upon you, than you would be in trying, belatedly, to pick up the harness of domestic partnership where you dropped it nine years ago.

Even so, the fact that you are comparatively safe and comfortable in the hospital routine, with a doctor and social worker to take a personalized interest in your feelings, needs and concerns, hasn't alleviated the emptiness and loneliness of being

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

"Education" Theme Of Talk Heard By Success WI

Mrs. Waldron Ferguson, convener of education, gave informative views on the topic of "Education" at the March meeting of Success Women's Institute held in the Graham's Road School recently. In her talk, Mrs. Ferguson dealt with the different fields of education, reason for education, and where education is acquired. She also read a paper by Mrs. Frank Ross, convener of Citizenship and Education.

With the president, Mrs. Louis MacLeod, presiding, the meeting opened with 11 members answering roll call by quoting a number of lines of poetry remembered from school days. Correspondence included a letter from Mrs. James Haggerty, regarding Unesco Gift Coupon plan. Mrs. Waldron Ferguson reported on behalf of the resolutions committee, stating that the resolution had been sent to the chairman, Mrs. Reg MacEwen.

The theme for the April meeting will be "Home Beautification" with Mrs. Roy Brown as convener. Mrs. Marshal Whitehead will prepare "fun and nonsense" and roll call will be answered with a "house keeping hint".

SOUTH WINSLOW WI South Winslow WI met recently at the home of Mrs. Glynis Maund. The president chaired the meeting and roll call was answered with "a name of a great Canadian and his achievement".

Satisfactory reports of committees were heard and dealt hand to one of the parishioners. A nominating committee was then appointed as follows: Mrs. Gerald O'Brien, Mrs. Cecil Cahill and Mrs. Stephen Burke.

Rev. G. Steele then spoke on "Community Life In The Church", after which the weekly CWL card party took place. Gents' 1st prize was won by Lawrence Arsenault; ladies' first by Mrs. Nelder Costain and consolation prizes were awarded to Mrs. Arnold Avery and Everette Kelly. Freezout was equally divided by the winners, Mrs. Ralph McNeill and Wilfred Dunn. The next card party will be held at the home of Mrs. Stephen Burke.

The family of the late Gordon F. Wayne of Toronto and formerly of Hunter River, wish to thank all their kind friends and neighbors for Cards of Sympathy, Letters, Flowers. To all those who phoned and visited our home, many thanks.
