Puck-Icing Rule Change Is Proposed At Meeting

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Proposals for a drastic rule change regarding the puck ran into lengthy discussion Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The plenary session finally decided to send the question to its rules committee and, in turn, to the joint rules committee of the amateurs and professionals.

The working agreement between the pro and amateur bodies—now in effect—has been observed—the amateurs must get approval for playing - rule changes from the pros.

This point in itself provided most of the discussion. The question arose whether the amateurs should jeopardize the advantages they already receive from the pros by flirting with an out-and-out break over one rule change.

"We get certain things and we give certain things. We will have to decide if we will sacrifice what we get regardless of what the pros want."

The general meeting approved a resolution from the Ontario branch regarding release from a club of a youngster finishing school. It provides that a player quitting school at the end of a scholastic year and entering employment for the first time may be released if he is transferred by the same employer and continues working for him.

Two resolutions from the rules committee were approved. A misconduct instead of a major penalty will be imposed if a player throws his stick or broken part of it, except when the penalty-shot rule is applied.

LENGTHEN SUSPENSION
The rule regarding striking and molesting of game officials by players or club officials was tightened. Suspensions may range from three games to five years.

Pompey Goes On Beer Diet

LONDON (AP)—Challenger Yolande Pompey went on a beer diet Tuesday to gain weight. Champion Archie Moore stepped up his roadwork and cut down on food to lose weight.

The two meet in Harringay Arena June 5 for the world light heavyweight boxing title. Moore would not tell what the scales said after he finished a busy session of training but his weight is believed to be down to about 185, 10 pounds over the light heavyweight limit of 175.

IN THIS CORNER

The Golfer's Alphabet

The epic poem below was first printed in an issue of the Guardian in May exactly 25 years ago. The author was and is an anonymous soul. We present it again for your perusal.

A is for alibi, which we insist, is a thing without which golf simply couldn't exist.

B stands for boob and brassie and bald.

C is for caddie who carries the clubs.

D is for duffer, with gall in his cup, who does not play golf but can't give it up.

E is excitement, which harries the soul.

F is for fairway which seldom we see.

G stands for grip and the green where we strive to get a ball.

H stands for hazard and likewise for hook.

I is the iron. With hardly a tax on the strings, it will cut a ball as clean as an axe.

J is the jigger and jungle, where it will deposit the ball if you slice it a bit.

K is for kickers and knickers and such.

L is asserted, by golfers demoted, to stand for the land where the game was invented.

M is the mashie, with which you can pitch.

N is the niblick, a club we commend.

O is the osseous matter one thinks must be under the caps of the duds on the links.

P stands for putter and also the pro.

Q is for quality, something which you, Through, long years of your life hope perhaps you may do.

R reads for rules by which robbers may rook.

S is for stance and the small who will stand.

T is the trap, just a cove in the loam.

U is the uhlan, who cannot keep still.

V is the victim we think we can take.

W's the wallope we take at the ball to drive it where bushes and grasses are tall.

X is the mark we set down on the score.

Y is the yell we emit from afar when the shot from the rough bounces in for a par.

Z is for zany. We think on and off, That most truly it stands for the guy who plays golf.

BRAVES SCALP DODGERS 7-3

Tigers Claw Yanks 3-2; Reds Topple Giants 6-3

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS
Home runs featured day action in the major leagues Tuesday as Detroit Tigers edged New York Yankees 3-2 in the American League and Cincinnati Redlegs doubled New York Giants 6-3 in the National.

At New York, Frank Robinson slammed a homer, double and single to lead the Redlegs to victory and into the thick of the battle for first place.

Three unearned runs in the first inning helped defeat Cleveland starter Early Wynn. Goodman led off with a single, and scored on errors by Bob Avila and Vic Wertz and a wild pitch. A single by Don Buddin drove in two more runs.

Brewer, who hasn't lost to the Indians since May 1 of last year, wasn't in serious trouble until two were out in the eighth. A double by Al Smith and a single by Vic Wertz scored Cleveland's first run.
