Fighting Raging Across Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting raged in nearly all sectors of South Viet Nam today in a continuing battle 50 miles east of Saigon one American was killed and 11 others wounded, including the son of the deputy commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam.

Communist guerrillas pressed the attack throughout the country in a bloody counter-thrust to U.S. air raids on North Viet Nam Sunday and Monday. A Hanoi broadcast heard in Tokyo urged the Viet Cong to "strike hard, very hard at the enemy on all battlefields."

recall to the witness box Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, for questioning in the Stonehill case.

EXPULSED FROM CANADA

American millionaire Stonehill, expelled from Canada and facing court charges in the U.S., has said he had a hotel meeting last summer in Ottawa with Denis, Al Williamson, Vancouver public relations man, and Doran, former Vancouver newspaper man, concerning his own case.

Mr. Pearson said last week Doran acted with "perfect propriety" in introducing Denis to Stonehill and Williamson.

The Doran inquiry is investigating allegations by Mr. LaMontagne that he has offered a $20,000 bribe by Denis July 14 and subjected to Liberal political pressure to agree to bail for Lucien Rivard, wanted in the U.S. on narcotics conspiracy charges. Denis has denied he made any bribe offer.

Mr. Fortier maintained Denis should be recalled so he could be asked about published reports he had said "how much is it for us?" in the Stonehill case.

Mr. Fortier said the latter quotation referred to the Liberal campaign fund.

INTERESTED IN PATTERN

He said the commission could determine whether there was a pattern in the way Denis carried out his duties as executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay.

"It is important to know whether Denis was in the habit of doing this," Mr. Fortier added.

The commission owed it to Denis to throw light on the published reports of what he had allegedly said in the Stonehill case.

Mr. Drouin said Stonehill in a Sunday night television program—the CBC's This Hour Has Seven Days—had spoken of $25,000 to $50,000 and said he had seen Senator Gelinias "to make the arrangements as they are commonly called."

Liberal Senator Louis P. Gelinias, treasurer of the Liberal party in Quebec, has testified before the inquiry that he doesn't know Denis.

500 British Doctors Talk Resignation

LONDON (CP) — While the British health ministry pleaded with them not to walk out, leaders of 500 Birmingham doctors announced Tuesday they will recommend a mass resignation from the National Health Service in protest against a new pay scale.

The General Practitioners' Association launched a campaign to organize a nationwide walkout to demonstrate their contempt for salary recommendations accepted Monday by the government.

"We are feeling extremely militant," said a spokesman for the Birmingham group. "It is our intention that we will resign. We hope to have that intention confirmed by a full meeting of the group next week."

Any of the 23,000 general practitioners, the backbone of Britain's free medical service, are free to quit and return to private practice. However, a health ministry spokesman said a doctor is expected to give three months' notice.

Any large walkout would bring chaos to the service. Many patients would be forced to pay for a private consultation with their doctor or go to a public hospital clinic, most of which already are overcrowded.

The uproar came when the government approved a recommendation to add £5,500,000 ($16,500,000) to the complicated pool system from which family doctors draw their pay. The doctors' representatives, in a long series of negotiations, had sought pay increases costing a total of more than £18,000,000.

Temperature Drops After Mild Spell

Islanders shivered yesterday to the tune of strong north winds and a sharp drop in temperatures following the previous day's mild weather.

Temperatures which kept well above the freezing point Monday started a downward plunge around 8 a.m. yesterday, when Charlottetown radio range recorded a 31-degree temperature. An hour later it had dropped to 25 degrees, and by 10 p.m. dipped to the 12-degree mark.

Winds at 10 p.m. were reported as north 26, gusting to 30 miles per hour.

Association For Retarded Has Speaker

Tom Royal, Toronto, co-ordinator for special projects for the Canadian Association for Retarded Children, addressed a recent P.E.I. association's committee meeting at Charlottetown Legion Home for the Flowers of Hope fund-raising campaign.

Films, informed speakers, television, radio and the press were some of the public education channels Mr. Royal listed to make the public aware of funds needed for the various services required for the welfare of the retarded.

Mr. Royal said that while the Flowers of Hope campaign was an inter-provincial fund-raising project, each provincial campaign must be tailored to suit its particular area.

Attending the meeting were John Kingston, Summerside; Olive Tuplin, O'Leary; Mrs. DesRoche, Tignish; Ronald MacKinnon, Alberton; and Wendell Cudmore, Charlottetown. Robert Younker presided.

Stability Of African States Seen Not Likely For Years

Brigadier Stephen Longrigg, OBE, D.Litt., of Tunbridge Wells, Eng., a specialist in Middle Eastern Affairs, spoke to the P.E.I. Canadian Club last evening on black Africa which he described as lying south of the Sahara Desert and north of the Zambezi River.

The brigadier told the 25 people who attended the monthly dinner meeting that the 25 or 36 recently independent states "have got a frightfully difficult task."

"The African states of today are at the beginning of a long, long road," he said, and he advised his audience that "all we can do is to show them a little decency, a little sympathy, and wish them well."

He didn't feel that any member of the audience, or their children or their children's children, would see the day when the African states were stable and sound nations.

PEOPLE DIVIDED

Brig. Longrigg said in Africa today there are more than 1,000 different languages and the people are divided, socially and politically, in hundreds of ways.

He said it was desirable that there be fewer political units, but the people of today would never see this happen because these new nations cannot abandon their new found independence which has given them great pride in themselves.

He said one or two states had tried joining together but it did not work. He felt the tendency is to break up. "If Nigeria, with its four states, survives, I'll be surprised," he said.

The speaker pointed out the Organization of African Unity was not successful and doubted if there would ever be a united Africa. "They can agree about nothing at all."
