

MISCELLANY.

"THOU HAST WOVEN THE SPELL."

BY GEO. P. MORRIS.

Thou hast woven the spell that hath bound me,
Through all the sad changes of years;
And the smiles that I wore when I found thee,
Have faded and melted in tears.
Like the poor wounded fawn from the mountain,
That seeks out the clear silver tide,
I have lingered in vain at the fountain
Of hope—with a shaft in my side.

Thou hast told me that love's rosy fetters
A pang from the thorns may impart;
That the coinage of vows and of letters,
Comes not from the mint of the heart.
Like the lone bird that flutters her pinion,
And warbles in bondage her strain,
I have struggled to fly thy dominion,
But find that the struggle is vain.

DISAPPOINTED GALLANTS.

A gallant young cavalry officer, stationed not a hundred miles from Clonmel, was returning to his quarters on escort duty, on a certain day, in the early part of last week. His party were proceeding quietly along the road, when the officer rode up to a remarkably fine, intelligent, well-dressed young woman, who was proceeding in the same direction as the military heroes. The officer engaged in conversation with the sprightly fair one, and he was so "taken" with her engaging manners and appearance, that he dismounted and walked by her side, until they reached the avenue gate leading to the residence of the Rev. Mr. Heffernan, parish priest of Clerihan.

"It is here my father lives," slyly said the lady; "and as it is just dinner hour, you will be welcome to join us," (she well knowing that the enamoured swain could not leave his troop.)

"It would be impossible for me to accept your kind invitation, as I am on duty," replied the gallant son of Mars.

"Well, sir," said she, "you will confer a high compliment on me by accepting my invitation to dine with us on to-morrow evening; and as my father, who is advanced in years, is very particular, don't be later than five o'clock."

"May I bring a friend with me?" inquired the officer. "Your friend shall be as welcome as yourself," was the answer.

The parties separated; and the next evening, about five o'clock, two martial-looking youths might be seen wending their way towards the hospitable residence of Father Heffernan, dressed in the most captivating style, their Hyperion curls and mustachios shining brightly and scented oederiferously with 'Rowland's Macassar.'

They arrived at the door—the double tantarara is answered—the visitors walk into the parlour, and see before them, not the 'object of their fond wishes,' but Father Heffernan himself, with spectacles on nose, engaged reading a work on dogmatic theology.

"Well, gentlemen," said his reverence, "can I do anything for you?"

"We come to dinner," was the answer. "To dinner! who invited you?" said the astonished priest; "I am done dinner this hour."

"Your daughter," was the reply.

"My daughter!" said Father Heffernan, "why, I'm only a poor priest, and I never had a daughter, nor never will."

An explanation took place—a full confession of the whole affair was made to his reverence—a description of the fair one was given, and, after an immoderate fit of laughter, the priest exclaimed,

"Peggy Quinn, Peggy Quinn, you'll never be done with your tricks;" and then, looking at the chief actor, he said, "Go home, you fool, and learn sense."

The humbugged Lothario, with his no less chapfallen comrade, bade the poor priest a good evening, and wended their way home in no very agreeable or comfortable mood.—Tipperary Constitution.

JUVENILE PRECOCITY.—A little boy about six years of age having been told by his mother that it was impolite for children, when visiting other people's houses, to ask for cake or other things which they might happen to see preparing, improved on the lesson as follows. Calling at a house in the neighbourhood where the good woman was making cake, and which he eyed very wishfully, at last he said, "Mother says it is not polite to ask for cake." "No," was the reply, "it does not look well in little boys to do so."—"But," said the urchin, "she didn't say I must not eat a piece in case you gave it to me." It is needless to add that he got a piece.

A LIAR.—Among the many anecdotes of Buena Vista, one beats all others. An Arkansas soldier, wounded, asks an Indianaman to help him off the field. The latter does so by enabling him to mount his horse, riding himself before. During the ride, the poor Arkansian had his head shot off unknown to his companion. Arriving at the doctor's quarters, the Indianaman was asked what he wanted.

"I brought this man to have his leg dressed."
"Why," replied the doctor, "his head is off!"

"The—liar?" exclaimed the man of Indiana, looking behind him, "he told me he was only shot in the leg!"

By an amusing error (of the press, of course,) which occurred in a late edition of Davidson's popular English grammar, the variations of the verb to chide were given thus: 'Present infinitive, to chide; past finite, I chid; past infinitive, to have children!' An Irish paper accounts for the mistake by saying that the compositor must have been a bachelor who had recently got married.

SHIP-OWNERS, AGRICULTURISTS, & MILLERS, are respectively invited to inspect the following valuable articles respectively, at the PHOENIX ESTABLISHMENT, where orders are received, and will be executed according to priority.

THE IMPROVED PHOENIX WINDLASS, (secured by patent,) not surpassed by any other for power or speed, in weighing Ship's Anchors in a heavy sea, which may be done at any time with not more than one third of the Ship's company.

THE PRIZE DRILL, so much approved of last season, for sowing Turnip and other seeds; to which was awarded the Prize by our Royal Agricultural Society.

AN IMPROVED SMUT MACHINE, by which Wheat is perfectly cleaned from all impurities: one of these may be seen in operation at the Sydney Mills, near Charlottetown.

Farm for Sale.

NINE Miles from Charlottetown, with a long lease, and situated in the old and pleasant settlement of Covehead Road. The usual custom in advertisements of this kind, is to designate all lands under tillage, as being in a high state of cultivation: in the present instance, the growing crops, consisting of about 15 acres of wheat, oats and barley, 3 of potatoes and 9 of hay, very little inferior to the crops around Charlottetown. 6 acres of fallows preparing for wheat next year, 8 acres of grass depastured two years. 10 acres have been reclaimed from a wilderness state within the last four years, and 40 acres more can be, at the trifling expense of about eight shillings per acre. The house and buildings are not new, but they are warm and convenient. There is also a large and productive garden, secured by a dyke, and a paddock of 2 acres of permanent pasture, similarly fenced, with a never failing stream of water running throughout. About 500 longers will complete the enclosure of the whole farm. A diary can be produced, showing the management of every acre of the cultivated land for the last four years; therefore, even a stranger to the soil of the Island, will be enabled to judge of what should and what should not be done hereafter. This property embraces many rare advantages, with only one material disadvantage, e. i., the rent is two shillings per acre; yet it is now cheaper than many farms, even were they free from rent altogether.

Further particulars can be known by applying to THOMAS PREEDEY, Keeper of the Colonial Building, Charlottetown. August 6, 1847.
