French Union Forces Hammer Reds Near Hanoi

HANOI, (AP) - French union forces hammered several Viet-minh strongpoints in the Red River delta Wednesday, killing or capturing 100 of the Communist-led rebels within a few miles of Hanoi.

Planes, tanks, and artillery joined fire to clear infiltrating fighters from as many key points as possible before the main Viet-minh forces launch their expected all-out assault on the delta.

The rebels were tightening their grip on a semicircle threatening the delta's rim defences from three sides. A French spokesman said the high command conceded the Viet-minh were all around Hanoi on the west, north and south in positions generally only 40 miles from here.

When they attack remained anybody's guess.

MAY ATTACK SOON

Some believe the Vietminh may attack quickly, while others hold they may delay until the monsoon rains end late in September.

Gen. Raoul Salan, former commander-in-chief in Indo-China and now director of operations under the new commander, Gen. Paul Ely, arrived Wednesday. Salan is a specialist on delta defence and the French apparently are pinning on him their hopes of repulsing any Viet-minh attack.

In a Saigon, official reports said that Ely, who arrived Tuesday to inspect the war theatre, expects to return to France within the next 10 days to report the situation to Premier Joseph Laniel's government.

WARNS TROOPS

Gen. Henry Navarre, retiring commander-in-chief, warned his troops their difficulties may mount "for if an honorable solution does not appear possible, the fight—in which the enemy, like ourselves, will throw all his forces—must continue."

The French command announced it will return 267 seriously wounded and ill Vietminh prisoners June 11 and 302 others June 14. They will be returned in exchange for French union wounded, all hostilities will stop in both areas from midnight before the exchange begins until the following midnight.

Psychologists in Agreement Juvenile Delinquents Are Made Not Born

MONTREAL, (CP) - Psychologists generally are of the opinion that juvenile delinquents are made, not born.

Dr. Elise Frenkel Brunswick, psychologist at the University of California, says few in her profession believe children are born bad.

In an interview during the International Psychological Congress here, she said that what is important is the child's environment; and especially his relations with his parents.

She said psychologists are divided on the question of whether working wives and mothers contribute to delinquency.

"There is no doubt that the presence of a mother is vital to the child—especially up to the ages of four and five," said Dr. Brunswick.

"On the other hand, women must be allowed to exercise their abilities in work."

EXAGGERATED INFLUENCE - She expressed belief that the influence of comic strips and television on juvenile delinquents has been "rather exaggerated."

"When you think of it, TV and comic strips are rather like fairy tales brought up to date," she said. Fairy tales could be frightening.

The congress was told by two United States psychologists—Dr. D. C. McClelland of Wesleyan University and Dr. D. Miller of the University of Michigan—that children most likely to succeed are those who are taught by their mothers to be independent.

Lindberg Hopes For 2nd Queen's Plate Victory

TORONTO (CP)—Jaunty Herbie Lindberg, a horsebacker from Gottenberg, Sweden, has been waiting 19 years to win his second Queen's Plate. Back in 1935, when he was a comparative innocent of 24, Herbie rode Sally Fuller to victory for the Seagram Stables of Waterloo, Ont.

Next Saturday, a wise-cracking veteran of 43, Lindberg will have the mount on the favored King Maple.

Lindberg and King Maple formed an almost unbeatable combination since they met for the first time at Fort Erie in August, 1953. King Maple, an unprepossessing colt, known affectionately around the Ontario racing circuit as "The Country Bumpkin," still was a maiden.

Then trainer Johnny Hornsby tossed Lindy on King Maple's back one afternoon at Fort Erie and the big, rough colt galloped home. Hornsby and owner Mrs. Gordon MacMacken promptly arranged to have Lindberg ride their horses in all future engagements.

HY BULLER MAY QUIT HOCKEY

CLEVELAND, (AP)—Hy Buller, defenseman who was traded Tuesday by New York Rangers to Montreal Canadiens, says he may quit hockey entirely for a year-round salesman's job.

Buller, who formerly starred with the American Hockey League's Cleveland Barons, said his position as salesman demands most of his attention.

He said he might possibly continue in hockey for "three or four" more years, though he seems pretty certain about quitting now.

Kensington Legion Buying Building

At an executive meeting held last evening of the Canadian Legion Kensington branch arrangements were finalized for the purchase of a building which will in future be used as the Legion home in Kensington. The structure is at present situated near Tignish and as soon as the concrete foundation is completed it will be moved to Kensington.

It is understood that due to the size of the building (24 x 130 feet) it will be necessary to cut it in three sections in order to move it to the new site.

A lot has been purchased on Victoria Road from Mr. Elmer Bernard and excavation operations will begin at once.

A concrete basement will be erected and it is expected a bowling alley will be installed.

When the building is moved to Kensington, renovations will begin, which when completed, will provide the members with a splendid home for the future. Hardwood floors will be laid.

The Kensington Legion, during recent years, has shown a most encouraging increase in membership, which now stands at 74.

Through their efforts a soldiers monument was erected in the town and unveiled two years ago. Last year the Legion also provided a concrete base for this monument. -S.
