Canada's Great Opportunity.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER TALKS ABOUT THE COLONIAL EXHIBITION TO BE HELD IN LONDON NEXT YEAR—HIS OBJECT IN VISITING CANADA

(Montreal Star.)

Sir Charles Tupper, unchanged by his year of absence, except that his side whiskers have grown grayer, talked with the enthusiasm of a schoolboy about the Colonial and Indian Exhibition to be held in London next year to a group of journalists at C. S. Stevenson's office this morning.

"Such an opportunity to enlighten the English public as to the resources and manufactures of Canada may not occur again in twenty-five years. We have in this exhibition a means of bringing home the importance of Canada to the minds, not only of the English, but also of the continental nations of Europe, and it is to see that every step is taken to make our exhibit as complete and excellent as it can be that has brought me out here. That is my sole object in coming out.

"You will understand why Canada should not let this opportunity pass when I show you the plan of the exhibition grounds." Here he showed a plan of the Kensington Gardens, and pointed out that the Canadian area spread across the building from side to side. "All persons entering by the fashionable entrance at Prince Albert Hall must pass through the Canadian court to visit the other exhibits, while those who enter by the public entrance will also require to pass through it to reach the gardens. In 1862, when we exhibited in the same grounds, we only had 4,000 feet allowed us, now we have 54,500 feet; India has 58,000 feet, and none of the other colonies have over 18,000 feet. This shows how completely Canada is recognized as the premier colony.

SOME OF THE EXHIBITS.

"I have this morning received a letter from the Prince of Wales, informing me that we can have as much of the aquarium as is required for our fisheries exhibit. Two years ago, it will be remembered, our exhibit of our fish hatcheries and our different species of fish excited great attention at the fisheries exhibition in London. That exhibit is now in Ottawa, but it will be removed to London and will form one of the attractions of the Canadian section next summer. In the main entrance I have secured several spaces, nine feet by eight, in which instructions about Canada will be given in a novel manner. I am securing the best pictures of the cities of Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Victoria. These will be enlarged and placed on exhibition on these spaces together with statistics of population, manufactures, etc.

"Special prominence will be given to educational exhibits. I have already seen Mr. Blanchet, of the Quebec Government, and propose communicating with the administrations of the other provinces, asking them to aid me in my endeavor to give to the English public an accurate representation of the excellence our systems of education have attained. There is across the sea an impression that while Canada is richly gifted with great natural resources, she lacks the polish of a highly cultivated country, and nothing would so surely destroy that idea as an exhibition of our educational systems. In the same direction we propose having a section devoted to the fine arts, and I think we can show some paintings, drawings and other works of art which will considerably impress the spectators. I also propose having the

LITERATURE OF THE COUNTRY on exhibition also. All the prominent Canadian newspapers will be on file and in addition to this there will be a large collection of books treating of Canada, its history and its resources. We will draw on the parliamentary and other libraries for them.

"Our object is to give an accurate representation of the wealth of our forests, mines, fisheries and fields. I am taking steps to secure from British Columbia an exhibit representing of its vast mineral and natural resources. If possible I will reserve a section in which to place nothing but specimens of the mammoth pines of the Pacific province. There will also be a collection of the different kinds of woods grown in Canada, together with the articles made from them. Our coals and our cereals will all be fully represented, and I am trying to induce the proprietors of our stock farms to send over some specimens of the kind of cattle which Canada can grow.
Senator Cochrane, Hon. J. H. Pope, and others will, I think, adopt the suggestion.

But above all we want the most complete representation of our manufacturing industries. On that point erroneous ideas are prevalent in England. They are accustomed to regard us as purely an agricultural country. Our magnificent cereals have been exhibited on many occasions, but they never had an opportunity of ascertaining how far advanced we are in manufactures. We have exceptional advantages offered to us, for making such an exhibit, as our section includes that portion of the building which is usually devoted to mechanics, and there is plenty of motive power which can be utilized in running the machines. I do not see why quite a trade could not spring up between England and Canada in agricultural implements. The lightness of our machines, the excellence of the wood and other materials of which they are constructed should make them prime favorites with the English farmer. Americans have quite a trade already, and I am sure our native manufacturers can compete with them successfully. Many of our manufacturing establishments have intimated their intention of sending over handsome exhibits, and I have no doubt our machinery department will do honor to the manufacturing industries of our country. After the Colonial exhibition has drawn to a close, the agricultural implements will be displayed at the Royal Agricultural Exhibition, and in that way they will be directly introduced to the farming classes of England. Another feature will be a representation of

OUR SHIPPING,

by means of models of our vessels. I want to secure models of as many of our ships and steamers as possible. Then in the restaurant, everything except such things as tea and coffee, which are essentially products of tropical climes, will be Canadian and fresh fruits and meat will be daily received from Canada and exposed for sale.

The Press Censorship.

The persistent efforts on the part of the Turkish and Russian authorities to prevent the spread of information as to their own proceedings have been so repeatedly baffled by the enterprise of newspaper correspondents that it seems strange that men who consider themselves statesmen should not perceive the uselessness of such a policy.
The censorship order is sometimes issued even after a full account of the facts prohibited to be divulged has appeared in the London papers. The consequence is that the people of St. Petersburg and Constantinople, instead of looking for important home news in their own journals, await the arrival of the foreign mails, when they find full intelligence of the transactions which native journalists are not allowed to publish. In these days of rapid communication a few days' delay at the most is all the Government gains by its obsolete restrictions, so vexatious to journalistic enterprise. The bargain made some time ago with Krupp's agent by the Porte was not to be revealed in any Byzantine sheet on pain of prosecution, and yet on the very day the order for silence was issued the Times brought complete particulars of the business with liberal comments.

About Canals.

The Erie canal when first constructed had a depth of only four feet, and a width of forty, the cargo of boats navigating is being limited to seventy tons. Though it has since been enlarged, it is yet only navigable by barges, the heavy wash of steamers causing too great damage to the banks to permit of their use. The object of the present agitation is to have the canal improved so as to make it navigable by iron steamers carrying from eight to ten times as much as the present boats, and making the trip from Buffalo to New York in less than half the time now consumed. The proposed enlargement of the Welland canal to allow the passage of vessels drawing fourteen feet, the cost of which will be comparatively small, though a step in the right direction, unless followed up by the improvement of the St. Lawrence canals between Kingston and Lachine, would be of as much benefit to the trade from Chicago to Ogdenburg, as to that of Canada, whose people would be called on to pay for it.

The Iron Duke's Keys.

In a garret at Strathfield, says a large box was found the other day, the existence of which was unknown. Opening it, were presented the Great Duke, the Conqueror of the World. Wrought-iron keys from Spanish cities, magnificently worked silver gilt keys from Italy and France, jewelled keys from Scotland and England were stowed away with their emblazoned addresses and lying forgotten under the roof of a country house. They have been sent to London to be arranged in the museum that is formed in the gallery at Apsley House, where the Waterloo warriors used to dine (the windows of which were broken by an infuriated mob in 1832 and left un-mended till Wellington's death, by his desire), and where many other relics of the great commander have already been collected.

The Irish Nationalists.

Commenting on the statement of Sir G.
O. Trevelyan, in his vindication of the late Government's Irish policy, that for three years the Nationalists had been working to upset Lord Spencer and that they had at last succeeded, the Cork Examiner says:— This is an illustration of the importance of the policy which the Nationalist members have adopted. It is a proof they have not exaggerated what they claim that whoever is to rule in Ireland must rule with their permission, and must conform to their desires. This sounds haughty and dictatorial, but it simply means that the National party represent the people of Ireland, and that their good will and pleasure will have to be consulted by those who sit in the high places of the land.

Practice and Precept.

Liberal practice, as illustrated in Canadian politics, always falls away behind Liberal precept. The latest instance of this truism is the case of Mr. James Mc-Mullen, M. P., who raised his single voice in Parliament against the proposition to increase the indemnity to members in consideration of the extreme length of the session requiring their continued absence from their homes long beyond the usual time. Mr. McMullen then announced that if the motion passed he would devote his share ($500) to benefit the agricultural societies of his riding. He has just fulfilled his promise in the usual Liberal way, and given the societies $180.
