Pullets Should be Laying.

Young pullets hatched in March and April ought all to be laying this month. Later hatched ones if not laying in November will probably, if left to themselves, not lay before spring when eggs are down to fifteen cents per dozen. A well known poultry farmer showed us his account for December with 125 pullets. The net profit for that month from eggs alone was $39.79; from the same pullets in April following, the profit was $14.97, and he got 50 dozen more eggs in April than in December. Now this is a striking lesson to all who keep hens for profit. Get all the eggs you can at this season; if other crops are short, eggs always bring cash. Probably 45 cts. per doz. by Christmas. Therefore get the pullets to laying early when prices are highest. Rev. S. W. Squires, of Franklin, Mass., says: "For the purpose of seeing how many eggs I could obtain last winter from twelve hens, I used four large cans of Sheridan's Condition Powder. I believe it is the best preparation known to increase egg production. I saved part of the eggs for hatching after forcing the hens four months for all they were worth with the Sheridan's Powder, and I never had a greater per cent. of fertile eggs or more vigorous chickens. In brief, I do not believe I can afford to be without the powder to give health and vigor to young hens." If you cannot get it near home, I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., the only makers of Sheridan's Powder, will send for 50 cents two 25 cent packs, five packs for $1.00; or for $1.20 one large two pound can of Powder, postpaid; six cans $5.00, express prepaid. Sample copy of the best poultry magazine sent free.

According to a German authority the total length of railway lines in the world is about 1,006,000 miles, of which 540,000 are in America and 380,000 in Europe; in the United States there are about 400,000 miles, which is the greatest in any one country.

A PRINTER'S ILLS.

A Brantford Compositor has Diabetes—He Drops 40 pounds in weight in a short time—How he was Cured.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 15—Thomas Hazelhurst, a compositor in the Courier office in this city, has seen some ups and downs in health within the past few months. Last spring he found himself suffering from diabetes in a very severe form. In a few weeks, he lost forty pounds in weight. His system kept on running down and Mr Hazelhurst was very naturally alarmed. After trying many remedies without benefit, he began using Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes made a big change in his condition, and six bottles worked a complete cure. Mr. Hazelhurst is to-day better than he has been for years. Add one more to the list of diabetes cases cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

WONDERS OF THE HAND.

ONE OF THE MOST PERFECT PIECES OF MECHANISM.

Prof. Henry Drummond Gives the Scientific Uses and Value of the Human Hand and the Various Movements Necessary to Its Perfect Action.

One of the most perfect pieces of mechanism in the human body is the hand. How long it has taken to develop may be dimly seen by a glance at the long array of less accurate instruments of prehension which shade away with ever decreasing delicacy and perfectness as we descend the scale of animal life. At the bottom of that scale is the amœba. It is a speck of protoplasmic jelly, headless, footless and armless.

When it wishes to seize microscopic particles of food on which it lives, a portion of its body lengthens out, and, moving towards the object, flows over it, engulfs it, and melts back again into the body. This is its hand. At any place, at any moment, it creates a hand. Each hand is extemporized as it is needed; when not needed it is not. Pass a little higher up the scale and observe the sea-anemone. The hand is no longer extemporized as occasion requires, but lengthened portions of the body are set apart and kept permanently in shape for the purpose of seizing food.

Watch, in the next place, the hand of an African monkey. Note the great increase in usefulness due to the muscular arm upon which the hand is now extended, and the extraordinary capacity for varied motion afforded by the threefold system of jointing at shoulder, elbow and wrist. The hand itself is almost the human hand; there are palm and nail and articulated fingers. But observe how one circumstance hinders the possessor from taking full advantage of these great improvements—this hand has no thumb, or, if it has, it is but a rudiment. To estimate the importance of this apparently insignificant organ, try for a moment without using the thumb to hold a book or write a letter, or do any single piece of manual work. A thumb is not merely an additional finger, but a finger so arranged as to be opposable to the other fingers, and thus possesses a practical efficacy greater than all the fingers put together. It is this which gives the organ of power to seize, to hold, to manipulate, to do higher work; this simple mechanical device, in short, endows the hand of intelligence with all its capacity and skill. Now there are animals, like the colobi, which have no thumb at all; there are others, like the marmoset, which possess the thumb, but in which it is not opposable; and there are others, the chimpanzee, for instance, in which the hand is in all essentials identical with man's. In the human form the thumb is a little longer, and the whole member more delicate and shapely, but even for the use of her higher product, Nature has not been able to make anything much more perfect than the hand of this anthropoid ape.

Is the hand then finished? Can Nature take out no new patent in this direction? Is the fact that no novelty is introduced in the case of man a proof that the ultimate hand has appeared? By no means. And yet it is probable for other reasons that the ultimate hand has appeared; that there will never be a more perfectly handed animal than man. And why? Because the causes which up to the point have furthered the evolution of the hand have begun to cease to act. In the perfecting of the bodily organs, as of all other devices, necessity is the mother of invention.

As the hand was given more and more to do, it became more and more adapted to its work. Up to a point it responded directly to each new duty laid upon it. But only up to a point. There came a time when the necessities became too numerous and too varied for adaptation to keep pace with them. And the fatal day came, the fatal day for the hand, when he who bore it made a new discovery of tools. Henceforth what the hand used to do, and was slowly becoming adapted to do better, was to be done by external appliances. So that if anything new arose to be done, to be better done, it was not a better hand that was now made, but a better tool. Tools are external hands. Levers are the extensions of the bones of the arm. Hammers are callous substitutes for the fist. Knives do the work of nails. The vice and pincers replace the fingers. The day that cave man first split the marrow-bone of a bear, thrusting a stick into it and striking it home with a stone—that day the doom of the hand was sealed.

But has not man to make his tools, and will not that induce the development of the hand to an as yet unknown perfection? No. Because tools are not made with the hand. They are made with the brain. For a time, certainly, man had to make his tools, and for a time this work recompensed him physically, and the arm became elastic and the fingers dexterous and strong. But soon he made tools to make these tools. In place of shaping things with the hand, he invented the turning-lathe; to save his fingers he requisitioned the loom; instead of working his muscles he gave out the contract to electricity and steam. Man, therefore, from this time forward will cease to develop materially these organs of his body. If he develops them outside his body, filling the world everywhere with artificial hands, supplying the workshops with fingers more intricate and deft than organic evolution could make in a millennium, and loosing energies upon them infinitely more gigantic than his muscles could ever generate in a whole lifetime, it is enough.

Evolution after all is a slow process. Its great labor is to work up to a point where invention shall be possible, and where, by the powers of the human mind, and by the mechanical utilization of the energies of the universe, the results of ages of development may be anticipated. Further changes, therefore, within the body itself are made unnecessary. Evolution has taken a new departure. For the arrest of the hand is not the cessation of evolution, but its immense acceleration, and the reduction of its energies into higher channels.—Prof. Henry Drummond, in The Expos. of Man.
