We suspect that in years to come, when the children in the primary grade are now attending the little rural school down the River Road, look back to their schooldays, it will be to recall and relate, we think, more or less with pride, that on a beautiful November morning in the year 1965 they moved in to occupy the "new room" there. They will remember something of the bright anticipation with which they gathered up their books and belongings in the basement of the Church nearby, which had been their classroom since the first of the year, and stepped over the threshold of this hall of learning which had been designed and built on their account. This is a sizable addition to the school, James often entertains nostalgic memories of attending in his schooldays, and where a paternal aunt now long gone, born at "The Mills" was years before this a teacher. Now in shinning new quarters attractively decorated, and abounding with the senior grades, a modern heating unit and lavatories, the younger ones, including Alex, took up their studies today. He was obviously pleased with the turn of events which was to give him this, an all in all pleasant classroom. Happy

The retiring president, Mrs. Emmett Bernard received a hearty vote of appreciation for the effort she had put into the work during her term of two years. Hypersensitive Wife Feels Husband Losing Interest

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 44, married, with children grown and married. I've enjoyed all my married life, and for the last three years at a job that is unsatisfactory though well paid. I am afraid I am a source of unhappiness to my husband. He is a completely kind and considerate person and always has been very understanding, but I feel that he, too, is drawing away from me. In earlier years I have become drunk at social gatherings much to his embarrassment. I learned that I can't drink with other people, as I always overdid it, probably by giving myself confidence. I don't drink at present. The crux of my problem is: I am leading a completely lonely life due mainly to painful shyness and hypersensitivity. I draw close to Him, in spirit, for strength and guidance and success. Thus trusting, with conviction and expectation, your ensuing experience will prove that His spirit is with you, available to you giving you safe journey through oceans of adversity, if it comes to that, or leading you into pleasant places. And thus fortified and refreshed by the practice of faith, your own individual potential health powers, or inherent forces for good, will begin to show forth, in terms of thoughtful, prudent, progressive self-help activity

Island Couple Pledge Vows At O'Leary United Church

A quiet but colorful wedding took place on Saturday, Oct. 30, 1965 at the O'Leary United Church when Francis Lillian Coulbren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Coughlin, of Coleman, was united in marriage to Walter Clark Schurman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schurman of Traveller's Rest.

Rev. S.E. McKillop performed the double ring ceremony. Bouquets of bulrushes, snow drops and fern decorated the altar.

The bride was in a turquoise beaded suit designed in modern style with a white ruffled blouse. Her headpiece was a white sheer organza pillbox wreathed with a veil, and her corsage was of white carnations.

Attending the bride was her sister, Sylvia Coughlin, who wore a powder blue woven suit styled as that of the bride.

Anthony Lockhart attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at Coleman, where pink and white streamers, white bells and Autumn flowers decorated the room attractively. A decorated wedding cake made by Mrs. Ronald Macdonald, was topped with a miniature bride and groom and festooned with white swans and white buds centered with silver beads.

The newlyweds will reside at Traveller's Rest. Mr. Schurman is employed by the Enman Plumbing Company.

After the signing of the register Mr. McKillop presented the couple with a Hoffman's Portrait of Christ.

Gold Wedding Anniversary Celebrated At New London

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Ramsay, New London, were "At Home" on Wednesday afternoon and evening, October 27 on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, when relatives, friends and neighbors called to offer felicitations to the worthy couple who have made a creditable contribution to the life of the community, through the years of church and community endeavors.

A daughter, Mrs. Hillard Woodside, planned a corsage of yellow carnations on her mother and presented her father with a white boutonniere.

Bronze and yellow mums formed the centerpiece for the table which was covered with a lace tea cloth. Gold tapers and a three tiered anniversary cake, decorated with white and gold roses completed the arrangement.

Presiding over the silver tea service in the afternoon were Mrs. Justin Woodside, Clinton, and Mrs. Stanley Brown, New London with Mrs. Everett Ramsay and Mrs. Leslie C. Ramsay, Hamilton, pouring in the evening. Mrs. Scott Woodside, a granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Healey, Mrs. Alton Ramsay and Mrs. George Pickering served and replenished.

The couple's daughter, Mrs. Hillard Woodside, welcomed the guests and a grandson, Barry Woodside had charge of the guest book.

During the afternoon the honored couple were the recipients of an address and presentation with Francis Murray as chairman. A suitable address was read by Mrs. Stanley Brown, while James E. Cole presented gifts on behalf of the neighbors.

Mrs. James E. Cole presented Mrs. Ramsay with a gift on behalf of the New London United Church Women, and numerous other individual gifts were received. The family also presented their parents with a suitable
