BRILLIANT TECHNICOLOR MUSICAL AT THE CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

"Down Among the Sheltering Palms." Twentieth Century-Fox's new Technicolor musical which opens today at the Capitol Theatre, Summerside, is a beautiful, bright, melodious production packed with hitting song hits, a lush South Sea island background and loaded with eye-filling savoury-clad native girls. Gay and hilarious entertainment from start to finish. "Down Among the Sheltering Palms" concerns a contingent of G.I.s who are assigned to occupation duty on a Pacific island only to find themselves the victims of a military order barring fraternization with the natives. How the resourceful G.I.s circumvent the rulebook provides their humor in abundant quantity. Handsome William Lundigan scores effectively as the military governor who has to set an example for his men although he is the romantic target for three lovely ladies, Jane Greer, Mitzel Gaynor and Gloria DeHaven, as pert and lusty as a trio one can desire. The attractive young ladies are superb as they sing, dance and romance their way into Lundigan's heart. Miss Gaynor, who won stardom in "Golden Girl," excels as the naive beauty with her dancing and acting providing some of the film's outstanding moments. Reliable David Wayne completes the starring unit in fine fashion as Lundigan's wise-cracking junior officer.
