THE CHINESE EMPEROR.—That Tsoi-shun Aisin Kihlo T'oung Chi, the Emperor of a country twice the size of Great Britain, and whose population numbers some 425 millions of souls, was reported to be ill, was nothing very remarkable, and when the telegraphic news of his illness was read, the probability is that it was straightway forgotten by the majority of newspaper readers at this distance from the vast empire over which T'oung Chi reigned. Yesterday, however, the wires flashed across to us the intelligence that the Emperor had succumbed to his illness, and from the 12th instant, China has been without an Emperor. The death of the Emperor is cause of surprise to us—not knowing the character of the disease from which he suffered—as he was so young a man, being only about 19 years and 9 months old. He commenced to reign when he was about 6 years of age, and was married nearly three years ago. It seems vastly strange to us that one so young should be looked up to as 'Heaven's Son,' whom to Heaven alone was accountable, and that in his person should unite the attributes of supreme magistrate and sovereign pontiff for so great a realm. While there are plenty of ministers, assessors, boards, censors (the 'eyes and ears' of the Emperor) to keep the machinery of the Government in good working trim, the Chinese people will no doubt lose no time in appointing a successor. It is reported that the successor to be the throne is a prince of five years of age, who will probably act as agent if acknowledged as the ruler. The claims to the 'divine right,' not being hereditary however, it is not certain whether the Chinese people will recognize the youthful prince as their Emperor, or divinely appointed Emperor. Should his succession take place, and he should not really be the Emperor, Heaven will signify by unmistakable signs, (so believe the people) that he is not the chosen representative.

The rivers rise from their beds, the ground suddenly refuse its fruits, the plants tremble, the hills reel, and the typhoon rages over seas and coasts all alike uttering a 'Numbered, numbered, weighed and parted' that requires no interpretation, but is read in anxiety by the people and in dismay and terror by the prince, who seeks by repentance, and a return to true principles, we can join with the people of China in hoping that he will be far different from the Emperor who succeeded to the throne twenty-five years ago (Hien Fung) who is said to have passed his time in imbecility and drunkenness.—H. Reporter.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A monument has been erected on one of the islands of the Pacific, to the memory of Capt. Cook, who was killed by the natives of Owhyee, twenty-five years ago. The monument is an obelisk 25 feet high, and mounted in a base of 8ft. square. It is erected in memory of the great circumnavigator, Captain James Cook, R.N., who discovered these islands on the 18th of January, A. D., 1778, and fell near this spot on the 14th February, 1779. This monument was erected in November, A. D., 1874, by one of his fellow-countrymen. It is erected on a suitable spot, about a hundred yards from the rock on which the captain fell.

Before the legal formalities attending the cession of Fiji by King Cakobua the King presented to Sir Hercules Robinson, as a gift to the Queen of England, a large club. This formidable weapon, it is stated, has dealt the death blow of some hundreds of Fijians. It bears some very handsome silver ornaments. At its tip is a massive crown and the shaft is twisted round with dove and fern leaves in silver. The club was designed to serve as a mace for the Fiji Parliament, but the king desired that it might be conveyed to Her Majesty with the statement that this rule was at one time the only club in Fiji. Sir Hercules Robinson and the club should have great pleasure in conveying the club to Her Majesty, and its arrival, therefore may be expected at any moment.

The great American nation never having been blessed by the presence of a real, live King, went into ecstasies of happiness on hearing Kalakaua's intention of making a royal progress from San Francisco to New York and Washington. It was thought that the nation should fly rapturous and rightly honor the sovereign whose coming supplied the long-sought want, and placed the Republic on the same footing as the effete nations of the old world, so money without stint was lavished on the reception of the royal Swedish Islander, who enjoyed his trip amazingly, to good dinners, went out sleighing in Central Park, saw the 'Black Crook,' heard clump-clump-clump Aldermen make long speeches of welcome, and was formally received by both houses of Congress in New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, and many another city gave him a reception and fester him in right good style, and even now His Majesty is the object of civic attentions on his way back to his Pacific Isles, but the people begin to feel that he cost rather more than he was worth, and the bill for his entertainment, which has just passed Congress, has caused some murmurs. Twenty-five thousand dollars is the net cost of the national reception, and probably from one hundred and fifty to two hundred thousand dollars will have been spent altogether. The Americans think they might have got a bigger King at the price.
