Annual Meeting Medical Assn.

Issuing Of Beer Scripts Objected To By P.E.I. Doctors—Dr. J. W. McKenzie Elected President.

Dr. J. W. MacKenzie of Charlottetown was elected President for the ensuing year at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Island Medical Association, which was held in the town hall, Summerside, yesterday morning. The retiring president, Dr. J. G. Simpson, occupied the chair. There was a good representation of medical men present. Routine business occupied the first part of the meeting. Considerable discussion took place over the question of liquor prescriptions. Objection was taken to the issuing of a disproportionate number of scripts for beer which it was maintained was a beverage and not a medicine; and that the present method of the government allowing the doctors 50 scripts for beer and only 15 for hard liquor was not a proper division. The doctors felt they should be allowed to prescribe for their patients what liquor they considered necessary. It was decided to form a committee with Dr. Yeo as chairman to wait on the government protesting against the present manner of dealing with scripts and to ask that some change be made to remedy the present situation. An important feature of the meeting was the matter of the affiliation of the Island Association with the Canadian Medical Association. There is a movement to have all the provincial associations merged into one Canadian association on the same lines as the British Medical Association. The general opinion of the meeting was that it was a splendid idea, as a Dominion wide body would be better able to cope with the various matters that come up from time to time and that the medical profession would be stronger as a united body than separate units. There was however the question of finance as the provincial association would be called upon to bear their share of the cost of affiliation. At present there were only twenty three out of the sixty practicing physicians on the Island affiliated with the Canadian Medical Association. It was decided that a personal canvass be made by doctors to stimulate interest in other practitioners in the idea of amalgamation. Dr. Keeping was appointed to canvass the doctors in Kings County, Dr. MacKenzie in Queens and Dr. Simpson in Prince. The matter was then laid over to the September meeting. The meeting then adjourned until September 1st when the association will meet again at the Canadian National Hotel, Charlottetown when a clinical program will be arranged with a dinner afterwards. The President's address will also be delivered at that session. The adjournment was made because medical men from the Canadian Medical Association would be able to be present and address the gathering. Others officers elected were: vice-president for Queens, Dr. Leo Farmer, Mt. Stewart; vice-president for Prince County, Dr. W. B. Howatt, Summerside; vice-president for Kings County, Dr. A. W. Ross, Souris. Secretary, Dr. L. B. McKenna, Charlottetown. Treasurer, Dr. I. J. Yeo, Charlottetown. Executive committee, Drs. W. J. P. MacMillan, Charlottetown; Preston McIntyre, Summerside; J. A. McEwen, Summerside; R. D. McNeill, Kensington; and B. C. Keeling, Charlottetown. Canadian Medical Association council, Drs. W. J. P. MacMillan, I. J. Yeo, F. J. McNeill, Summerside, J. E. Summary of Evidence

William Smallwood, Bunbury, father of Shirley Smallwood, was the first witness. He told that he last saw his daughter about 8.30 on the morning of May 18, before she went to school. She was dressed in a blue skirt and a red sweater and was in the best of health. He next saw her in the Prince Edward Island Hospital about 1 o'clock. She did not recognize him. He did not know what her exact injuries were but she was hurt badly and died the next morning about 5 o'clock. The accused in conversation with the witness said he ran into the child. He said he thought her leg and arm were broken. He did not mention other injuries. The witness identified the clothing the child wore on the day of the accident. J. Anthony Reardon, Charlottetown, civil engineer with the Department of Public Works, testified he had made a sketch of the road and grounds at Bunbury School. The plan was produced in court. According to his measurements the road east is straight for a distance of 190 feet from a point opposite the centre of the school. The bank of the road where the sods were torn off varies from 2 to 2 1/2 feet high measured from the gutter. The survey was made May 19, 1936. The surface of the road is an ordinary clay surface fairly smooth. The driving surface is 21 feet wide. The soil is inclined to be a bit sandy and sand gathers on the shoulder. There were no noticeable marks of brakes being applied when the witness saw the road on the morning of May 19. The sods were torn off eight feet along the edge of the bank and four feet deep at the widest point. A line of trees extends along the east side of a lane east of Bunbury School to a point 34 feet from the centre of the road. On the west side of the lane there are scattered birch trees. The branches begin about 8 or 9 feet from the ground. On the south side of the road past the school it is 72 feet from the driving surface of the road to the line of the fence, the witness said. A clear vision of a portion of the school grounds may be had from a point 220 feet east of a point on the road directly opposite the centre of the school. The court adjourned at 12.15 in order to permit the jury to go to Bunbury to view the road and school grounds.

B.C. Athletes Head Talent

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer) — (C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire) — MOLSON STADIUM, Montreal, July 10.—Canadian Olympic hopes soared tonight with British Columbia athletes heading a glittering array of track and field talent after the first program of trials in Molson Stadium. The picture would have been much darker without the far-west stars. Four of them, including husky Howie MacPhee of Vancouver, sprinted into the final of the 100-metre dash and Toronto's young ace, Jack Brown and the 19-year-old schoolboy sensation, Gordon McHenry, filled the other two berths. Before a thunderstorm broke over the proceedings and threatened to force postponement of several events until tomorrow, the sprint section had clearly established itself as the strongest ever gathered for a single track meet in Canada. The only record actually upset was that for the 400-metre hurdles which Johnny Loaring of University of Western Ontario brought down to 54 seconds flat from 55.6. The western star equalled the Olympic standard set by the Canadian selection committee and seemed reasonably sure to be taken to Berlin.

Seven Witnesses Are Heard Yesterday — Court Adjourns Until Monday.

The trial of William E. Phillips of Charlottetown on a charge of manslaughter arising from the death of Shirley Smallwood, nine-year-old Bunbury school girl, opened yesterday in Supreme Court. The charge was laid when the child died in hospital on May 19 a few hours after she had suffered multiple injuries when she was struck on the road at Bunbury schoolyard by an automobile driven by Phillips. Attorney-General T. A. Campbell and Mr. D. Edgar Shaw, K.C., opened the case for the crown yesterday and seven witnesses were heard. Mr. J. F. Dewar, K.C., and Mr. C. St. C. Trainor are the accused's counsel. Mr. Justice A. C. Saunders is the presiding judge. The jury are composed of Messrs. Alfred Cameron, foreman, Mille Bearisio, James Blake, David Cavanaugh, Peter McInnis, William Seller, Victor Collins, Preston Ross, Herbert Stills, Archibald Duffet, Roy Mutch and Samuel McNeill. The court adjourned at 5 p.m. yesterday until 10.30 Monday morning.

A member of the Salvation Army High Council, Commissioner McMillan has held many important offices in the Salvation Army. Born in Scotland, the son of a Salvation Army officer, he came to Canada with his parents when a boy, was educated in Toronto and entered the Salvation Army Training College there. He was later made private secretary to Commandant Herbert Booth, son of the first General. After serving in that capacity for a time he was transferred to Australia. There he rose to be Field Secretary, the third highest office on that continent. He returned to Canada as Chief Secretary, the second highest office here, and was later transferred as Chief Secretary for the British Isles. His next appointment was to Chicago as Commander of the Central Territory and six years ago he was transferred to New York, as head of the largest territory in the United States. She is President of the Salvation Army's Women's League, and as a Dominion member forehead. Those were the injuries noticeable. The treatment was only temporary as they felt it would not be wise to attempt to reduce the fractures. The child was unconscious and remained so. She continued with little change through the day. In the evening the witness X-rayed her head and no fracture of the skull was revealed. The child grew weaker through the night and just before 5 a.m. the hospital telephone called that the child was apparently dying. The witness went to the hospital and was present when she died about 5.25. Cause of death was due to shock from the injuries and, while there was no fracture, the witness has no doubt from the symptoms, a concussion of the brain and hemorrhage. The shock of the injuries would be sufficient to cause death. She was a strong well developed child, the witness said. It would take quite a hard blow to cause the injuries, which were nearly all on the right side of the body. Mr. Phillips carried her into the hospital.

Miss Marjorie Cox, nurse at the Polyclinic, told that the accused brought Shirley Smallwood into the Polyclinic about 1 o'clock. She was not there long. She was taken to the Prince Edward Island Hospital. Phillips had a cut on his forehead. The witness put a dressing on it. Phillips seemed quite sober and acted like anyone who would have had an accident. He seemed quite sober from his speech and manner. She thought she smelled liquor once. Cross examined by Mr. Johnston the witness said she could not say where the smell of liquor was. She thought she might possibly have smelled liquor once. David Mutch, 13-year-old schoolboy, told that Carl Hamm, Blake Livingston, Catherine Judson and Shirley Smallwood were playing ball after the witness came back from dinner on the day of the accident. They were playing near the road, between a stump and the road. The latter was facing west. Shirley Smallwood was pitching. She ran out on the road after the ball when it was batted by one of the children. The ball was almost south from the stump. She ran pretty fast. He saw the car come north and saw it swerving back and forth and then Shirley disappeared from his view. He was in the northwest corner of the school grounds at the time.

The witness pointed out on the plan where he was and where Shirley was, which would be about south of the school. The car was about 10 feet from Shirley when he saw it. It was coming fast. He did not notice a change in speed. He noticed the place where Shirley was struck and where she was picked up. He stepped the distance, 19 of his steps, ordinary steps. The witness heard the car coming. It was roaring. He had an idea of speed, he said. He judged its speed to be 40 miles an hour or more. He described the bank where the sod was torn off and the size of the sods. The sound first drew his attention to the car. The witness saw Mr. Cordwell measure between where the child was struck to where she was picked up. He saw Mr. Phillips pick her partly up. He had his arm under her head. Mr. Phillips did not pick the child up in his arms while the witness was there. Cross examined by Mr. Johnston the witness said he was sitting down with two others just before the accident. He made the measurements the day after the accident. Blake Livingston, 9-year-old school boy, told of playing ball with Shirley Smallwood, Carl Hamm and Catherine Judson on the day of the accident. Carl Hamm was at the bat and Shirley was pitching. The witness was learning against a tree waiting for his turn at bat. He was facing the woods, looking toward toward the Charlottetown way. He happened to turn around and saw the car at the gate. He pointed out the place on the plan. The car was by the gate on the east side of the lane leading to the school. It was going towards Charlottetown. He didn't think it was going very fast. Carl hit the ball out on the road and Shirley ran out after it. The car came and tried to get by her and she ran in front of it and was hoisted in the air. After that the witness did not look again. Shirley was out on the road by the time the car got to the post by the gate on the east side of the lane. She was going across the road when the car swerved. She got about half way across. He pointed out to Mr. Cordwell the place where the car struck Shirley. George W. McDonald, Montague, motor mechanic for 15 years, told of examining a car in Charlottetown with 1936 registration No. 3982. He examined the brakes and found them bad. The right rear wheel had no brake whatever. The brakes were mechanical. He did not examine the shoes on the rear wheels. The connecting brake rod was disconnected from the clevis on the right rear wheel. It was worn out of its place. The left rear wheel had a partial brake. With the brakes on the wheel could be turned by hand. There was no lubrication on the rods, cross shafts and other moving parts of the mechanism. If there is no lubrication the rods wear out, fall apart and do not set back properly, the witness said. All the joints were dry and rusty. He removed the front wheels, and found linkings and connections but no adjustments. They were dry with no lubrication. The handbrake or emergency brake is attached to the same shoes as the foot brake. The car was a Ford V8, 1935 model. He made no road tests, the witness told. He was with an officer taking the car to the service station and saw him apply the brakes. The condition he found would not arise suddenly, he said. It would not be caused by a car running into a bank. Cross examined by Mr. Johnston the witness said he had not heard that the Ford people had sent out letters to their customers offering to give brake adjustments free gratis because the brakes were defective. He was not told by the police whose car he was to examine. He couldn't say whether the front axle was bent. It was not bent enough to affect the brakes. If an axle was bent enough it would affect the working of the brake. The lock nut on the right brake rod where it goes in the clevis was loose and the brake had rattled itself loose. Mr. Johnston produced photographs of the braking mechanism of the Ford V8, 1935, and had the witness indicate the different parts. At 5 o'clock the court adjourned until 10.30 Monday morning.
