WHEN WIFIE IS AWAY.

DIVERSIONS OF THE MARRIED MAN WHO IS LEFT HOME ALONE.

The Ever-Recurring Idyl of the Summer Time—An Opportunity for the Gratification of Man's Dearest Wish—The Second Story Lights.

The observant stay-at-home—one who does a little prowling at night—cannot fail to notice the increasing number of midnight lamps which illumine the shades of the great second story windows. Midnight gas jets come nearer the truth, for men are unanimous in their scorn for kerosene and go into open revolt against it as soon as Madame is safely out of town.

Yes, the number of midnight lamps is increasing, for no sooner does the deserted husband find himself privileged to do as he pleases, and free from that call—so harassing when he is in the middle of an exciting story—"John, aren't you coming to bed?"—than he buys and borrows quantities of "all-overish" literature, turns on all the gas, gets out a bottle of something wet and a plate of something dry, and proceeds to take his summer read.

The summer is the only season in which he is able to gratify the hunger of his dearest wish—that of reading in bed. For, no matter where he may select his bedroom—upstairs or down—its light is sure to disturb his sensitive partner, and to inspire repeated protests against his unreasonable course. She is always afraid that he is going to injure his health or his eyes, and finally, in ostensible deference to her wishes, he gives the thing up as a hopeless case and resolves to wait until she has gone for the summer before resuming his favorite dissipation.

Then after he has taken the whole family to the train, seen that the luggage is on, put all the bags and bundles and the three children in the wrong sections and then had to change them all back again; after he has gone back again to the ticket office to see why their sections are not all together and then had to run back in order to get the checks to his wife before the train pulled out; after he has received any number of hasty moist kisses and bear like hugs from the boys, he rushes out, steps from the moving train with the air of a man who can do that sort of thing extremely well, and then saunters up the street in a careless, objectless way. As there is nothing to hurry home for, he amuses himself with the windows and the people on the streets, but it proves an unexciting pastime and he takes the car for home.

There in the airy solitude of the second story, with the doors and windows wide open and the gas all on, he plunges into the adventures of Stanley Weyman's heroes, or reads the back numbers of "Trilby," or perchance, forsaking the moderns, goes back to the D'Artagnan romances and lives again the life of the "Three Musketeers."

One o'clock, 2 o'clock, 3 o'clock strike, and still he reads on. At first he reads guiltily, as one who fears to be surprised at some criminal act, but by the end of a week he will have grown accustomed to doing as he pleases and will no longer expect the voice of rebuke from his drowsy mate.—Buffalo Courier.

Dead Paupers Made Useful.

Nothing is useless nowadays—not even a defunct pauper. Hood's plaintive wail—

Rattle his bones over the stones;
He's only a pauper, whom nobody owns—is now out of date. The guardians know better than to act as recklessly, for often the party concerned is the possessor of a set of artificial teeth which contains a good deal of gold—last relic of more prosperous times—and in the interest of the ratepayers the precious metal must be secured and turned into pounds sterling. Often, too, they are the owners of rings or tiny trinkets, not pawnable, but still containing as much auriferous value as not a few modern gold mines. These have to be collected and also converted into cash by means of the melting pot. In the Holborn Union the melting process takes place once a year, and has just been accomplished for the present season. The jewelry dealt with is what is found on paupers who die friendless and unclaimed in its various establishments.

This week rings, chains, brooches and trinkets have been melted down, and produced a bar of gold, estimated at 11 carats, and worth about £40. A good portion of it was got from the plates of artificial teeth. Mr. Walton said that on one set of artificial teeth there was at least £4 worth of gold. The proceeds are paid into the common exchequer of the union.—London Telegraph.

Ingenious Smuggling.

"One of the most ingenious devices for smuggling was detected in Russia not long ago," said O. L. Ratovitch, of St. Petersburg, to a reporter. "A great number of false bank notes had been put into circulation within the dominions of the czar. They could only have been imported, and, although the strictest search was made habitually over every vessel entering a Russian port, no trace of the smuggling of false notes was discovered. Accident, however, at last brought the mystery to light. It happened that several cases of lead pencils arrived one day from England, and while being examined one of them fell out from a package, and the Custom House officer, picking it up, cut it to a point, and used it to sign the order which delivered up the pencils to the consignee. He kept the loose pencil for his own use, and a few days afterwards, because it again needed a new point he cut it again, and found that there was no more lead. He cut still further, and was surprised to find a thin roll of paper nested in the hollow place where the lead was supposed to be. The paper was one of the false notes, and in this way they had been smuggled into the country."

Seed Thought.

Good words do more than hard speeches as the sunbeams, without any noise, will make the traveler cast off his cloak, which all the blustering winds could not do, but only make him bind it closer to him.—Archbishop Leighton.

A man's conduct is an unspoken sermon.—Auriel.

This poor one thing I do; instead of repining at its lowliness or its hardiness, I will make it glorious by my supreme loyalty to its demand.—Gunnett.

If thou bear thy cross willingly it will bear thee. If thou bearest it unwillingly thou increasest thy load, and yet thou must bear it.—Thomas a Kempis.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

THE HARRISON CASE.

More Serious than was at first Suspected—At times he was Prostrated by his Sufferings—Now he is Cured.

PETERBOROUGH, Aug 13th.—The case of Richard Harrison, mentioned in these columns last week, was a more serious one than appeared at first sight. He was afflicted for some years with backache, the direct result of kidney disease. In damp weather especially his sufferings were intense, and frequently prevented his doing any work. To an active, energetic man, such an affliction was most grevious and he tried many alleged remedies without relief. J. D. Tully the well known druggist here, recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills, which Mr. Harrison used and is now thoroughly cured. He only regrets that he did not use Dodd's Kidney Pills, before, for he knows that if he had he would have been well long ago.

Indisputable.

Why spend $1 for a bottle of medicine for a complaint when one box of Beecham's pills, costing only 25 cents, will cure nearly all known diseases? This is because constipation is the cause of nearly all ailments and Beecham's pills cure constipation. A valuable book of knowledge mailed free, on request, by B. F. Allen & Co., 365 Canal St. New York.

A Man's Personality.

Dyspepsia makes a man nervous and irritable, in spite of his desire to be pleasant and sociable. Hundreds of dyspeptics, have been cured of this distressing ailment, and its accompanying effects of nervousness, sleeplessness, irritability, etc., by the use of Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic the greatest invigorator of the age for nerves, stomach and blood, and a perfect aid for digestion. All druggists sell it.

For Over Fifty Years.

AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.—Mrs. Winsloe's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays the pain, cures the colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Is pleasnt to the taste. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winsloe's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.—m. w. f. wkly—1 y
