

PEARSON VISITS CITY AND KINGS COUNTY

THE NAME of another distinguished visitor was added to the guest book with the visit to City Hall yesterday of Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson. The Liberal Leader and party arrived in the province at noon yesterday and were met at the airport by a large group of supporters. The visit to City Hall was only one of many stops made during the day. Here Mrs. Pearson signs the guest book while Charlotte-town Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet, (centre) and Mr. Pearson look on.

A VISIT to the Kings County Memorial Hospital was one of many stops made by Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson yesterday afternoon following his arrival in the province at noon. He and his party visited the Confederation Chamber and

City Hall in Charlottetown and many Kings County centres. Here Mr. Pearson, centre, and Thomas Kichham, Souris, Liberal candidate for Kings County say hello to Pierre Butler, Peter's Road, following a brief visit to the hospital.

S' side Co-op Decides To Retain Dividends

SUMMERSIDE — A resolution calling for all patronage dividends in the egg, produce and grocery departments of the Summerside Co-op, to be kept in the company for a revolving five year period, was passed at the 11th annual meeting of the organization held last night at the Summerside Legion home with president Charles Yeo presiding and about 150 members present.

Many of those present, including the president, provincial co-op inspector J.G. Denis and George LeBelle of the St. Dunstan's University extension department, spoke in favor of leaving share capital in the company, saying that it could not hope to expand and keep up with competition unless more share capital was available.

In the same resolution the board of directors fixed the interest on share capital at 6 per cent, which is a two per cent increase over last year, while a patronage dividend of three per cent was declared. An additional two per cent was set aside for the educational fund.

The financial statement showed the total volume of sales in 1961 to be $2,138,722.18, and a net profit for the year of $20,633.42 was realized.

Gordon Williams, Charlottetown, representing the auditors, explained several points in the statement to interested shareholders.

The nomination committee brought in the names of four men to be placed for three year terms on the 12 man board of directors and following the general meeting, the board met to elect their officers for the coming year.

Charles Yeo was re-elected president, while Melvin Cass takes over as vice-president and Errol Laughlin remains as secretary.

The four men who were nominated for further three year terms were Charles Yeo, Garnet Ross, Dr. H.E. Clark and Neil J. MacLellan.

In giving his annual report, Mr. Yeo noted that all departments experienced a gain in sales during the past year, with the grocery department having its best year in history after a slight decline in 1960.

Pickersill made light of the meeting between Mr. Shaw and Mr. Pearson, saying that "Mr. Shaw felt what the next election would bring when he met Mr. Pearson and wants to get on the bandwagon."

Mr. Pearson and his party went to city hall from the Confederation Chamber where he was met by the Mayor and members of the council. He signed the guest book and was presented with mementoes of his visit.

The little girl was needed, however, to induce the major statement of the day from Mr. Pearson. The little girl, about eight years old, approached Mr. Pearson's car as the Liberal chief was preparing to leave city hall and asked "is this a big day for you?" "It certainly is," Mr. Pearson replied.

be built, Mr. Pearson asked "is it merely an electoral mirage?"

"The Tories are really no further forward now than they were five years ago. They promised the causeway in 1957, they promised it in 1958, they promised it in your last provincial election."

"Well, I said here weeks ago that a Liberal government would bring the causeway studies to a speedy end; make public the reports, and then build the causeway if the reports show that it is feasible."

WE BUILD CAUSEWAYS

"Let's get this matter settled. The difference between the Tories and ourselves is very simple: they promise causeways, we build causeways. If you doubt that, go over to Nova Scotia and have a look at the Canso Causeway. There it is, built."

Mr. Pearson said that the first objective of Liberal policies will be to create new jobs.

"Our policies," he said, "will be designed to make a vigorous economy work for the benefit of all Canadians."

"In today's conditions, in this shrinking world in which we are all so much closer neighbours to each other, in which we face together the danger of nuclear annihilation, Canada must work not only for Canadians but for the world. That is the only way we can have security and prosperity; the only way we can be sure of survival itself."

Postponement Sought For Lobster Season

The P.E.I. Fisheries Federation will request Hon. Angus MacLean, federal fisheries minister, to postpone the opening of the lobster fishing season in this province for one week.

The council made this unanimous decision at a special meeting yesterday in the office of the secretary of the council, A. Walthen Gaudet. Mayor Gaudet later in the day called the federal fisheries minister by telephone to make the request.

Mr. Gaudet said last night that Mr. MacLean was happy to get the request, and the department will immediately investigate the matter. Mr. MacLean said that a check would be necessary with New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to ascertain their feelings towards the proposed one-week extension of the season.

Mr. MacLean said "this is the first request received. There have been no other similar requests, and it will have to be investigated with regards to the attitude of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia."

Mr. Gaudet stated that P.E.I. is in the 7B area, and it includes some N.B. and N.S. shores. There is mixed feeling over postponement of the season because he said in some instances, it depended on ice conditions. If one section was ice-free, then there would probably be objections to postponing the season there. This is the case in some areas, he said.

Dr. A.L. Prichard, director of conservation for the department of fisheries will contact New Brunswick and Nova Scotia on the matter, probably today, to sound them out on proposals.

The reasons given for making the requests were that ice conditions in waters surrounding the fishing areas make it difficult to start the season and have also been the cause of an acute shortage of bait. Fishermen have said the run of herring, principal bait of lobstermen, has not been heavy enough to supply their needs.

Prince Co. Man Wins Appeal On Evaluation

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

For the first time in the history of this province, an appeal was entered against an evaluation by the department of highways of land to be expropriated for paved roads under the Highways Act.

Judgment in the appeal was given yesterday by Judge Walter Darby in court at Summerside, and the plaintiff, William Lee Lewis, Cascumpeque, was allowed a total of $1,700 by the court.

ORIGINAL OFFER

He was originally offered $50.25 under an arbitrary figure of $75 per acre, which is the standard price offered by the department.

The land involved was used as part of the Road to Resources program, at Cascumpeque.

Mr. Lewis owned a 20-acre farm, which on two successive years, in 1958 and 1959, carried off prizes in the Island rural beautification contest.

The new road split his land, leaving seven acres and the farm buildings on one side of the road and 22 acres on the opposite side.

JUDGE RULED

In his judgment, Judge Darby held the land expropriated to be valued at $200 per acre, including two small pieces, which were made practically useless when the land was split in two by the road.

He assessed damages to the plaintiff and his property at $1,000, and allowed $200 for erection of a proper fence and another $200 for its maintenance.

Attorney for the plaintiff, J. Watson MacNaught, QC, confirmed following the judgment that this was the first such case with many different backgrounds and tongues, to build a nation not by assimilation but by finding what all have in common. We cherish fairness of opportunity for all. We stand for a national purpose based on an enduring small piece, which we stand for a social purpose allied to true individualism, that can lead us to new achievements for Canadians and new contributions to humanity.

"The task of the next four years is to advance along that road. It requires government that joins progressive ideals in practical policy; fairminded leadership to sound administration. We have not had such government of late. That is the main reason why we have faltered. A new Liberal government will end the faltering. That is the election issue. I ask you to join me in fighting on that issue, ask you all, in the next eight weeks, to put all your energy behind Liberalism today, for the sake of a better Canada tomorrow."

OTHER SPEAKERS

Taking part in the meeting was J.W. Pickersill who suggested that for the past five years Canada has had no government at all under the Conservatives. "The real issue," he said, "is not whether or not we will have a good government but whether or not we will have any government at all—we had none for the last five years."

Also speaking were the four Island Liberal candidates in the election, George MacKay, Allison Gillis, Ira Lewis and Thomas Kichham.

Dr. M.L. Bonnell, Murray River, setting provincial opposition leader, thanked Mr. Pearson at the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Pearson had been introduced by Elmer Blanchard, Charlottetown.

Master of ceremonies was E. D. Reid, president of the P.E.I. Liberal Association.

Fair, Just Remuneration Said Object Of Teachers

Teacher organizations offer no apology for seeking fair and just remuneration for the services of their members in all provinces of Canada," Charles Fillmore, Truro, N.S. told a dinner meeting of the Prince Edward Island Teachers' Federation held at the Charlottetown Hotel last night in conjunction with its annual convention, which got underway Tuesday.

"Just because teachers worked for practically nothing before and during the depression years some people seem to think they should be satisfied with peanuts for the rest of their lives."

"Low salaries will never induce high quality people to remain in any occupation. The public seems willing to pay for quality in any other commodity or service, why not for education?" he said.

In reviewing what teacher organizations are doing to improve education and to provide services for teachers, the guest speaker stated that such organizations in Canada have been trying to protect the public by seeking higher standards of admission to teaching and by urging teachers in service to improve their professional standing and their teaching techniques.

ARE ENTRENCHED

"Despite their periods of adversity or prosperity, or whatever vicissitudes they encounter in the future, teaching organizations are now strongly entrenched as a part of our social, economic and educational structure. They are here to stay so long as we have teachers in Canada," Mr. Fillmore said.

He pointed out that organizations which survive are born out of need and continue to survive only if they perform a useful service and noted that the growth of teacher organizations in Canada was clear evidence that they fill a need and have a useful function.

Observing that it has often been said that one of the main exports of the Atlantic provinces has been brains, Mr. Fillmore stated that one cannot continue indefinitely to export the best of any product, which depends on growth, without seriously affecting the future quality of that product.

SHOULD NOT BOAST

"But I urge you to consider whether or not we should be boastful or regretful of our export of brains from these Atlantic provinces. Should we not do everything within our power to keep our most brilliant and capable young people employed, as far as possible, within our own provinces," he asked.

Mr. Fillmore recalled that despite all the pronouncements by persons in responsible positions, it has frequently been necessary for the teachers to wage a continuous struggle to ensure a reasonably good quality of education for Canadian children.

"Those who decry the present poor quality of education, who want to return to the little red school house, and a return to the three R's are just not acquainted with or have forgotten the facts."

"The complexity of our society today requires a good educational program, including good classroom facilities, a good curriculum and good teachers. To continue to teach six to 10 children in a one-room school, staffed by persons with only a grade 10 or 11 education appears as absurd as to suggest that we replace the automobile with the horse and wagon, or the electric light with tallow candles," Mr. Fillmore concluded.

TWO PHILOSOPHIES

Today, she said, two major philosophies of education contend for control. One of these sees man as a substantial union of soul and body, the other relies on adjustment as the best solution to a world of change.

The attitude to student potential, the aim for character education, education for leisure and education for social responsibility were emphasized as important in the context of modern day education.

The first part of the morning session at the convention was occupied with a continuation of the study groups that began Tuesday afternoon, and ran again yesterday afternoon.
