MISCELLANEOUS.

SHANGHAI FOWLS.—No person who has ever seen fair specimens of the Shanghai or Cochin China fowls will, for a moment, dispute their superiority to the draughill fowl in point of size. Large fowls, if young, will certainly always command a better price in market than smaller ones; and they possess other advantages. Well cared for Shanghai attain a larger size at five months than common fowls at twelve. We have now in our flock a pair of Cochin Chinas, three months old, which weigh eight and a half pounds —the cock five, and the pullet three and a half pounds. But it is contended by those who stand opposed to "big chickens," that the greater amount of food they consume than the smaller ones, more than overbalanced the advantage of their increased size. This too, however, we conceived to be a mistaken notion. We have a few common fowls which are kept for hatching—their small size growing, for that purpose, a decided advantage over the Shanghai. Careful observation has fully satisfied us that they consume as much food as the larger ones. The common fowl is a much more ravenous feeder than the Shanghai. If favourite food is given, nothing short of repletion will satisfy them. Not so with the Shanghai or Cochin China. They feed as they move—slowly, and appear to turn every grain of corn or wheat to an advantage. Much has been said in regard to the laying of the Shanghais or Cochin Chinas. To a limited extent we have tested this point as well, so far as our experience goes, unhesitatingly yield to them the palm. Our common fowls are as good specimens as any we have seen. We pay a high price for them, for special purpose of testing their egg-producing qualities, as compared with our finer fowls, and hatching, as before stated. The result has been, that with the same food, same lodging, and same attention in every particular, the Shanghais have beaten two to one. Another point in favour of the Shanghai is, that they are more sociable, not nearly so much inclined to be mischievous, and if even thus inclined far less capable of doing damage, as the remarkable shortness of their wings, and the great size of their bodies, prevent them from flying over fences, into gardens or fields, or injuring the grain in the stacks or mows. For these, and other reasons, we feel inclined to give the improved breeds the preference over the common ones, and believe it would be advisable for many of our farmers generally, to introduce them, even at a cost of ten dollers for the first pair.

MOUNT VERNON.—Mount Vernon, where the ashes of General Washington repose, has been sold by Mr. John A. Washington to a company, for $200,000. One of the conditions of the sale is, that the remains of General Washington are never, under any circumstances, to be removed from their present resting-place. The purchasers offered a largely increased price to have the sale made absolute; but, the National Intelligencer says, Mr. Washington replied that he would not, for any sum that could be named, place it out of the power of Congress to make Mount Vernon the property of the nation.

ANTIQUITY OF UMBRELLAS. Umbrellas and parasols, be it remembered, are as old as the sun and rain. Though of modern introduction in this country, they were well known in the olden time. In the East, the umbrella has been in use from time immemorial, though chiefly by the great; and proud is the Oriental despot who can style himself "brother of the Sun and Moon, Lord of the Umbrella." Assyrian monarchs stood beneath its shade while receiving homage from the vanquished foes; and Lycian princes sat under such shelter while directing the siege of a hostile city, as the reliefs recently brought from the ruins of Nineveh and the coasts of Lycia, and now in the British Museum, satisfactorily attest. The proudest trophy of the Gallic wars in Africa was the umbrella of Abd-el-Kader, till he himself shared its fate, though he was soon avenged by his victor using compelled to abandon his in a far more ignoble manner.

Umbrellas preserved the complexion of the "fair-cheeked" Helen, and sheltered many a fair one of Greece and Rome from Phœbus' gaze, as we learn from ancient vases, bas-reliefs, and paintings. They were borne by women, as well as by the maids of Athens, in the days of Pericles; and Roman gallants were wont to hold them over the heads of their mistresses. In the tomb (at Chiusi) we have proof—the first proof—that they were used in Etruria also. Yet, though an umbrella often shaded the rich cheek of Cleopatra, and softened the glow of Aspasia's charms—in London, in the centre of modern civilization, not a century since, Jonas Hanway was ridiculed for carrying one through the streets.—Dennis's "Etruria."

SUBMISSION.—I could write down twenty cases, (says a pious man,) when I wished God had done otherwise than he did; but which I now see, had I my own will, would have led to extensive mischief. The life of a Christian is a life of paradoxes. He must lay hold on God, he must follow hard after him, he must determine not to let him go; and yet you must learn to let God alone. Quietness before God is one of the most difficult of all Christian graces; to sit where he places us, to be what he would have us be, and this as long as he pleases.

A western paper says that vegetation is so scarce at Cape Cod, that two mullen stocks and a huckle-berry bush is called a grove.

"A man of family," remarked the other day, in my hearing, that on his wedding day he thought that life would be all sunshine, but it proved all moonshine.

LIST OF
British Periodical Publications.

FORWARDED by mail, under the provisions of the late Post Office Law, at merely nominal rates.

1. The London Quarterly Review (Conservative).
2. The Edinburgh Review (Whig).
3. The North British Review (Free Church).
4. The Westminster Review (Liberal).
5. Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (Tory).

These Reprints have been in successful operation in this country for the last twenty years, and their circulation is constantly on the increase, notwithstanding the competition they encounter from American periodicals of a similar class, and from the numerous Eclectics and other catch-penny made up selections of foreign periodicals. This fact shows clearly the high estimation in which they are held by the intelligent reading public, and affords a guarantee that they are established on a firm basis, and will be continued without interruption.

Although these works are distinguished by the political shades above indicated, yet but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects. It is their literary character which gives them their chief value, and in that they stand unrivalled far above all other journals of their class. Blackwood, still under the masterly guidance of Christopher North, maintains its ancient celebrity, and, at the same time, unusually attractive, from the vast wealth of Home and other literary notables, written for that magazine, and first appearing in its columns, both in Great Britain and in the United States. Works as "Tom Cringle's Log," and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer); "My Peninsular Medal," "The Green Hand," and other serials of similar merit, have appeared in Blackwood, the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by those publishers from the pages of Blackwood, after it has been issued by Messrs. Scott and Co., so that Subscribers to the Reprint of that Magazine may always rely on having the earliest reading of these fascinating tales.

WONDER OF THE WORLD.

Grayrod Corner, Cumberland County, Maine.

Messrs. CURTIS & PERKINS, Bangor, Me.,

Gentlemen,—I have been entirely cured of the Gravel, by the use of your Cramp and Pain Killer. I commenced taking the Cramp and Pain Killer in the Spring of 1847. I had been a great sufferer for ten years previous; some four or five years of the time I suffered beyond all power of description.

During the time, I have had medical aid, and tried various spe cifics, but found very little relief until I obtained your Cramp and Pain Killer, one month after I commenced using it, I began to grow better. I continued to use it for a year, all the time improving until I was entirely well. MILES STAPLES.

Prospect, Me., Jan. 29, 1851.

We, the undersigned, are well acquainted with the above case, and certify to the truth of the statement of facts.

CHARLES CLIFFORD,
HANNAH CLIFFORD,
STANTON ELLIS.

Doctor Toby, a regular practising Physician, of East Machias, writes us under date of March 20, 1847:

"Please send me half a gallon of your Cramp and Pain Killer. The best medicine to cure what is represented to, that I ever used."

The Doctor first hands use of it in his own case, for a severe cramp colic, which had troubled him something of a stage, and found immediate relief, and has since used it in his practice.

Read the following. It speaks for itself.

RHEUMATISM CURED.

I certify, that I was afflicted with a violent Rheumatic pain in the small of my back, which entirely disabled me so that I could not turn myself in bed. The greatest pain and effort for me to walk without a cane, and but very little with. I applied Doctor Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, and Cramp and Pain Killer, several other remedies, without any relief. After suffering in this way about a week, I purchased a bottle of Cramp and Pain Killer, prepared by Curtis & Perkins, Bangor, and after three applications was entirely relieved and free from pain, and am now entirely well. I also cured a friend of mine, who had been suffering for a long time with a lame side, with the same bottle. I believe it the best medicine in the world, and am happy to add my testimony in its favor to the many others you have received.

N. B.—Be sure and call for CURTIS & PERKINS' Cramp Pain Killer. All others bearing this name are base imitations.

Price 25 cents per bottle. For Sale by
WM. R. WATSON.
