Preliminary Hearing Opens in Butter Case

Four crown witnesses testified yesterday in the preliminary hearing of Ernest Robert Johnston, a N.B. trading magistrate Charles R. McQuaid, QC, in Queens County during the month of April.

Johnston is charged with the unlawful possession of 464 pounds of Perfection butter, the property of Central Creameries.

First to testify was Charles Frederick Doyle, Charlottetown, the production manager of Central Creameries. He identified nine full 50-pound cases of butter, the "churn canners," as those found on the butter which had been churned Feb 21 at the plant.

Also on Sunday, the accused, Frederick Doyle, Charlottetown, the production manager of Central Creameries, identified nine full 50-pound cases of butter, the "churn canners," as those found on the butter which had been churned Feb 21 at the plant.

Shipping room employee J. Sterling Gillespie then testified to checking the butter supply in the storage room and he said that he had checked 400 pounds of butter on Monday morning. He said he had 185 50-pound cases of butter in the supply, and that on Monday morning the same pile had contained 184 cases.

He said also he had noted that the butter had been pulled off one of the plug flasks.

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Pride and politics were seen as factors in a boxing controversy Monday as the Ghana Boxing Authority officially reversed the decision of the first world championship bout ever held in Ghana and declared Floyd Robertson "the new featherweight champion of the world."

Cuba's titleholder Sugar Ramos was given the verdict over Ghana's Robertson in Saturday's 15-round bout on a split decision of three officials.

British referee Jack Hart favored Robertson, but the two judges, Ed Laseman of Miami Beach, Fla., and Ramon Velazquez of Mexico gave Ramos a 70-60 edge on points.

Announcement of the decision touched off a wild melee at judges of racial bias and called wild newspaper men "Yankee imperialists."

Within an hour the boxing authority said it would declare the bout "no contest." Later it changed this decision and ruled that Robertson was the winner and won world champion.

GOVERNMENT PROMOTION
The Ghanaian government participated in the promotion of the title fight as a sports showpiece for the country and had granted the fighters' names.

British boxing writers at ring side and Jack Solomons of London, co-promoter of the bout, said the decision was a bad one. Ghana newspapers were bitter in their criticism of the judges, calling them "corrupt capitalists" who were interested only in money.

Boxing Association Reverses Decision

Laseman, president of the World Boxing Association, and Velazquez, head of the Mexico Boxing Commission, insisted their votes would be unchanged if they had to decide again.

The state-owned Daily Graphic called upon the British Boxing Board of Control and the World Boxing Council to respect the opinions of Jack Solomons and Jack Hart. It commented editorially: "Bad decisions are not new in boxing. But surely this one by the two imperialist exploiters is something that hurts Africa."

By BRENDA LARGE
OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said here Monday that current "defeatist talk" about the future of Canada and its parliamentary institutions is nonsense.

Speaking to a group of 245 local school students from across Canada who are taking part in the Rotary Club's annual "Adventure in Citizenship," the prime minister said there is a great deal of negative criticism in Canada today about the decline of our parliamentary institutions. We are also subjected to defeatist talk that our citizenship will not stand up to the problems that are before us.

This is nonsense. Our young Canadians will be equal to the test, just as they were equal to the problems of founding Canada.

Lobster Catches, A Seesaw Battle

SOURIS — Lobstering fortunes ran a seesaw battle in the South Shore during the past few days as catches increased by nearly 50 per cent in the North Lake region declined by a half. A price rise of five cents on canners and market lobsters to 55 and 60 cents came over the weekend and is believed to be the reason for the increase in that region. It was speculated today that prices may go even higher.

At Souris, Monday, the average was a pound per trap and the average for a day was about 300 pounds. Meanwhile at North Lake about a half pound per trap was reported and the average load was very low.

The fisherman hauled 85 traps yesterday, found only two lobsters and they were under a pound. Another man hauled 400 traps and took only 185 pounds.
