SEVERAL REASONS

Why Women Should Not Cross Their Legs.

A woman who sits with crossed legs issues an invitation to disease. It is not in the mere fact of placing the limbs in the position indicated for a moment, but keeping them that way. The continued pressure of one limb upon the other, the steady bearing down upon the nerves and cords of that portion of the human body, speedily brings about a condition of affairs that produce sciatica, neuralgia, and sometimes nervous prostration.

The troubles resulting to women and young girls from sitting in this position principally afflict those females who, by the nature of their employment, sit with legs crossed. That is why the doctors who practice in those sections of New York peopled by the working girls find much disease that can be accounted for in no other way.

The doctors at several of the New York hospitals say they have but few patients of this sort, and that they come only occasionally. In almost every instance the patient has been a woman busy during the day at work of such a nature that it was easier for her to sit with legs crossed Sometimes women who sew a great deal by hand in their own households have this trouble, and wonder why it is that they should have a constant neuralgic affection when they have not even caught cold.

The muscles and nerves of a woman's legs are very much more delicate than those of a man. If it were only customary for a woman to sit as a man does, with one ankle resting on the knee, all the trouble that comes from the feminine method of crossing the legs would be avoided. But fashion won't have it that way.

So it is that woman must either suffer or keep both feet on the floor. It is possible for a woman to recieve injuries from sitting in the prescribed manner that will derange her entire physical structure and render her an invalid for life.

Dr. A. Jacobi said of this affliction of woman: "I do not think that a woman in household life need have any fear of injury to herself from sitting with crossed legs. You see, she changes her position frequently. No enforced labor binds her to one spot. She sits in one position only so long as it is agreeable. Then she changes, or walks about, as inclination dictates. Therefore, she is in no danger, for it is the continued sitting with crossed legs that brings about evil results to womankind.

"The danger that threatens from sitting in one position steadily must be faced only by women whose employment renders it necessary. I have no doubt there are many instances among the women who earn their own living of disease resulting from sitting constantly in the position mentioned. It is the constant pressure upon the sciatic nerve that causes pain, sciatic trouble, neuralgia and like ills. I see no reason to apprehend widespread feminine troubles on this account, because the remedy is so simple. It is merely change; that is all. Keep from being steadily in one position. Shift the limbs. Change about so that there will be no continued pressure upon any one portion of the body. These simple rules observed, women may cross their legs with impunity."

Other physicians seen stated that sitting cross legged by women unquestionably produced evil results. They declared that it made small difference what the woman was doing if she kept her limbs in that position for any time at all. In the first place, it checks the circulation of the blood. That in itself is an evil that may result in almost any trouble, for partial stagnation of the blood is the source of half the ills that human flesh is heir to. Then the delicate little nerves that underlie the bone of the leg just above the knee, are so sensitive that the least pressure, for even five minutes, is disastrous.

Sciatic rheumatism is one of the worst forms of disease that afflict from this cause. It proves stubborn and steadfast, because just as soon as the sufferer partially recovers she assumes the position every day that has really been the cause of all her difficulties.

It is believed that the investigation among the workingwomen of New York will show that sitting with crossed legs is more productive of evil results than labor early and late on the sewing machine. The latter makes a woman hollow chested. The former is likely to render her a physical wreck.

Hot Water.

Hot water has far more medical virtues than many believe or know. Because it is so easily procured, thousands think it valueless. The uses of hot water are, however, many. For example, there is nothing that so promptly cuts short congestion of the lungs, sore throat or rheumatism as hot water when applied promptly and thoroughly. Headache almost always yields to the simultaneous application of hot water to the feet and back of the neck. A towel folded several times and dipped in hot water, and quickly wrung out and applied over the painful part in toothache or neuralgia, will generally afford prompt relief. A strip of flannel or napkin folded lengthwise and dipped in hot water and wrung out, and then applied around the neck of a child that has the croup, will sometimes bring relief in ten minutes. Hot water taken freely half an hour before bedtime is helpful in the case of constipation, while it has a most soothing effect upon the stomach and bowels. A goblet of hot water taken just after rising, before breakfast, has cured thousands of indigestion, and no simple remedy is more widely recommended by physicians for dyspeptics. Very hot water will stop dangerous bleeding.

Value Given to Wire by Skilled Labor.

In an address before an association of iron and steel managers in England, some new statistics were brought up on the remarkable achievements that have been noted in the manufacture of fine wire. The speaker said that he had been presented by a wire manufacturer with specimens of wire for which $4.32, or more than $8,600 per ton was paid. This wire was largely used in the construction of pianos and other musical and mechanical instruments. Accompanying these was a sample of pinion wire, which had a market vlau of $21.60 per pound, or $43,200 per ton. A still more remarkable illustration of how a piece of steel can be treated so as to become more costly than gold, is seen in the manufacture of hair-springs. Of these it takes 754 to weigh an ounce of 437½ grains, and 27,000,000 of them to go to the ton, which would cost $400,000. Probably the limit of the value that can be given to steel by skilled labor is reached in the case of the barbed instruments used by dentists for extracting nerves from teeth, which is sold at the rate of some $2,150,000 per ton.

"From reading of cures I determined to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and I must say that after using the first box I would have considered them reasonable at ten dollars a box."

Sudbury nickel properties are again booming, and this time European capital has taken hold. Last week the Levac groupe in Sudbury district was disposed of to British capitalists for $350,000. Robert J. Trough, one of the owners, has gone to London to meet the purchasers, and sign the bills of release. In the height of the nickle boom $220,000 was the highest price offered for this property. It is said that the company that has purchased the property has a contract to supply the British Government with all the nickle to be used in the naval yards. Two other nickle properties down the range have also been bonded recently by English capital, the one at $90,000 and the other at $30,000.

He Would Like to Know.

"It is curious," said the man in the smoker who was relating experiences, "how associations may be formed in the mind without being conscious of them. Now I dreamed something the other night that disturbed me (I will admit I am slightly superstitious) until I found the instigation or suggestion in a waking reality.

"I was very tired and slept in a room at a hotel in which I had never slept before. I am certain that I saw no feature of the room with any conscious knowledge, for I was tired and sleepy and soon was safe in the land of dreams.

"Safe, did I say? It is not always possible to be safe, even in our dreams. I had a vivid vision of a great ocean and myself standing alone amid its billows. In my dream the place where I stood was surrounded by billows, and I knew they were of ocean depth and wondered how I had such a safe footing. I even reasoned that it could be only temporary, and the tides would soon come and sweep me away.

"Then I saw a fellow I knew, a Toronto boy, though I knew I was on the Atlantic ocean. He called to me to know what I was doing there, and I said, 'waiting for you to rescue me,' raising my voice to a pitch necessary to be heard on shore.

"I was awakened by a rapping on the wall and a request from a disagreeable traveler to make less noise.

"I continued awake, wondering what the dream meant, and recalling the law of the dream-book that if the water is clear, it means good fortune, and with that I arose and there on the wall, partially concealed by the bed, was the picture of a man battling with the billows and exactly as I was placed in my dream.

"I could have sworn that I had not seen the picture, and the question arises, was my dream inspired by the picture which hung there at my head, or was it merely a coincidence? I would give something to know."

Boston Wit.

A couple of naive remarks may be worth repeating: "A guest at one of our big hotels, while going down in the elevator, remarked to the colored elevator man: "I want to go to the wharf where the tea was thrown overboard." "Well," replied the man, looking mystified, "you'd better inquire at the office; I reckon that was before I came here; I've only been in Boston about a year!" The other remark was made by an Irishman in the Museum of Fine Arts. He was looking at the Morse collection, and said to his companion: "Mike, will ye luk at all them pots from Japan; what a country that must be for mustard!"—Boston Transcript.

Swiss Hotels.

Mr. Herbert, of the British Legation in Berne, gives in a recent report some curious statistics respecting the magnitude of the hotel industry in Switzerland. In 1874 there were 7,637 hotels and pensions in that country, with a total of 82,055 beds. The estimated capital invested in these was £20,470,000, the return on which was abou 7 1-2 per cent. Of the tourists and travelers 80.7 per cent. were Germans. 20.7 British, 18.9 Swiss. 10.8 French and 6.6 Americans. The number of servants employed in the hotels was 26,810, whose wages amounted to £307,000. It will be remembered that in winter the majority of the hotels are closed and have no servants, while in summer the payment by the master is nominal, the servant relying on fees from travelera.

"My six-year-old daughter, Bella, was afflicted with eczema for 24 months, the principal seat of eruption being behind her ears. I tried almost every remedy I saw advertised, bought innumerable medicines and soaps, and took the child to medical specialists in skin diseases, but without result. Finally, a week ago, I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the first application showed the curative effect of the Remedy. We have used only one-sixth of the box, but the change is very marked; the eruption has all disappeared, and I can confidently say my child is cured. (Signed) MAXWELL JOHNSTON. 112 Anne St., Toronto

PRACTICAL ALMSGIVING.

How Sam Jones Helped a Wealthy Man to Find Heaven.

The following story of a somewhat famous preacher in America is probably true. We hope it is. It indicates the way to heaven in a manner no sacrament nor creed can hope to rival, says London Light:—

"The question 'Where is heaven?' was put to Sam Jones by one of his wealthy church members in Georgia, whose cotton crop yielded him some $20,000 the last year. 'Where is heaven?' said the rich planter. 'I'll tell you where heaven is,' said Mr. Jones, 'if you go down to the village and buy $50 worth of groceries, put them in a wagon, and take them to that poor widow on the hillside, who has three of her children sick. She is poor, and is a member of the church. Take with you a nurse, and some one to cook their meals. When you get there, read the twenty-third Psalm and kneel by her side and pray. Then you will find out where heaven is.'

"Next day as the evangelist was walking through the village, he met the same wealthy planter, his face beaming with joy. He spoke after this manner: 'Mr. Jones, I've found out where heaven is. I went as you directed me. We took up the wagon load of groceries, and the poor widow was completely overcome with joy. She could not express her thankfulness. As I read to her the twenty third psalm, my heart was filled with thankfulness to God; and, when I prayed, the angels came, and I thought I was nearer to heaven than I ever had been in my life. I left the nurse and cook in her humble dwelling, and promised her she should never suffer so long as I could help her.' "

THE LAWYER'S VISION.

A Remarkable Instance of Physical Suffering and Thought Transference.

The Popolo Romano relates the following authentic fact, without giving more than the initial of the person to whom it occurred, a distinguished young lawyer of literary reputation, who stated that he could not give the most remote explanation of it: "Some years since, on a hot summer afternoon, the Avvocato A——, together with his wife and two children, left their house in Via Gaeta at 6 o'clock precisely for an evening walk. He was in good health and spirits, but just as they crossed the street he was suddenly seized with a shock through his whole body, which caused all the blood to leave his face and obliged him to support himself against the wall. His wife in alarm assisted him to steady himself, anxiously asking what was the matter.

"He recovered himself speedily and was able to continue the walk, only describing an unaccountable perturbation and humming in his ears. The evening breeze and exercise gradually calmed and revived him, and he completely regained his usual frame. They went to visit some friends and then rested at a cafe, when toward half past 11 o'clock a storm which had been gathering began the first blasts of wind, and they hurried home. Scarcely arrived indoors, the Avvocato A—— hurried to remove some flowerpots from a balcony over the street, taking a lamp with him. The wind extinguished the light, so he had to continue his operations in the dark, only illuminated now and then by the lightning flashes. He was just lifting the last flower vase, an ornamental one, given him by his mother, when he was startled by seeing a kind of black veil waving upward close in front of him, which, as it rose, assumed a human form.

"Very much disturbed, he immediately related the strange appearance to his wife, and the perturbation before experienced again overcame him, leaving him unable to sleep all night. Early in the morning came a telegram from his brother at Ferrara stating that their mother had been suddenly seized with cerebral syncope the previous evening at 6 o'clock and had expired at midnight, just as the Avvocato A—— had seen the black veil vanish into space."

"A dime!" retorted Willie, scornfully. "My regular charge is a quarter." —Harper's Bazar.

What is Cheapness?

Cheapness is not peculiar to prices. Goods are often cheaper than the prices; particularly is this true when the purchaser feels that the goods are bought with a certain amount of uncertainty and unreliability We have no cheap goods although no one disputes the cheapness cs our prices.

Your friends would appreciate a nice Fancy Rocker or Table, selected from our stock. Goods sel-now will be stored until required.
