DEATH AND FUNERAL OF THE REV. PATRICK J. M'CULLOCH, CARRICK-MACROSS.

It has pleased God to make the bishop and priests of Clogher to feel that "Death has a sting, and the grave can have its victory;" for, on last Thursday morning—Feast of Corpus Christi—the Rev. Patrick M'Culloch, C. C., Carrickmacross, succumbed to a violent fever, caught in the discharge of his duties. During the three first days of the previous week he was engaged, with that unfailing zeal which characterised his discharge of every duty imposed upon him, at the 'Triduum,' in the parish of Donamoine. On the evening of the third day he felt unwell on returning to Carrickmacross, and such was the energy of his character, he battled with the terrible disease for a few days—discharging his duties as usval—but on the following Saturday he was obliged to seek the rest which a sick bed could afford. All that medical skill could do to arrest the disease was done. All that anxious friendship could suggest was attended to. All that the prayers of a people, moved by the most ardent love, and distracted by the most poignant sorrow, could effect, was done; but, alas! God willed otherwise. On Monday the poor young priest was growing weaker. Tuesday dawned and closed with no brighter hopes, and on Wednesday it was too clear and too true that his earthly course would soon be ended; yet, though his physical exhaustion was extreme, the intellect was undimmed. His mind was vigorous and recollected; his thoughts were constantly directed to the Triduum that was going on at that very time among the people of Carrickmacross—the people who loved him so dearly—who prayed for his recovery, and were inconsolable over his early tomb. On Wednesday he received the last Sacraments of Holy Church with all the devotion of a faithful child and priest, and all the resignation which a life of virtue alone could awaken. He settled all his temporal affairs with a coolness of judgment and recollection which astonished the many priests who were devotedly in attendance at his sick bed. The malignant fever that was so soon to separate him from all earthly ties, had not, in God's goodness, the power to weaken, during those trying days and hours, the strength of his vigorous mind. Wednesday night came, and at his bedside during those few, too few, anxious hours, his much-loved friend and parish priest, the Very Rev. Dean McMahon, was knelt in prayer; and near him, too, was his fellow-curate, the Rev. James Hughes. As the hours passed away—as the moments of his young existence were rolling fast into the years of eternity—the dear young priest was still wonderfully recollected; almost to the very last moment his lips, so soon to be sealed in death, could utter the holy prayer. His last words were, "May God have mercy on me;" and these words to-day are uttered with sympathy by the thousands who knew him, and who loved him. At 6 o'clock on Thursday morning he died the death of the just. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." Soon the sad intelligence was spread, and, like a voice of woe and desolation, was it heard in every circle, in every town and parish of Clogher, far and wide, for few had such an extensive acquaintance, and wherever he was known he commanded respect and admiration. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the town of Carrickmacross was silent as the tomb, every heart was weighed down with a grief too great to express; also, his native town, Monaghan, forgot not the young priest, of whom every member of its community was proud. It was at first arranged to have his remains conveyed to the family place of interment at Monaghan; but his bishop and cousin, the Most Rev. Dr. Donnelly, ordered, in accordance with the wishes of Dean M'Mahon and the people of Carrickmacross—and his bereaved father, Peter M'Culloch, Esq., his afflicted brothers and sisters, yielded to the order with a grace that does them credit—the bishop advised that St. Joseph's new Church, Carrickmacross, would be the place of interment, and it was meet that the beautiful church for which he devoted the busiest and most anxious days of his life—that the Church of St. Joseph, so long the scene of his active ministry, would afford him a tomb, as it will be in years to come a noble monument of his zeal. From an early hour on Saturday morning priests were arriving from every part of the diocese, and Masses were celebrated at the various altars erected for the occasion. Priests and people joined in the holy union and charity of Mother Church. Like incense their prayers ascended to the Throne of God, asking mercy for the soul of poor Father M'Culloch. At ten o'clock the funeral procession was formed. The bishop and fifty priests of the diocese were in that mournful cortege. The sad and imposing sight will not soon be forgotten by those who witnessed it. The echo of that cry of mourning and sorrow which burst forth from the crushing crowd on the first sight of the coffin is still in my ears. The poor cried out his name—"Father M'Culloch, will we never see you more?"—with a feelingness that would move the coldest heart, whilst it must have brought consolation to his weeping relatives: for "God loves those who are loved by the poor." The tears of the poor are the sweetest tribute over any grave.

About half past ten o'clock the procession reached the Church of St. Joseph. The coffin was placed on a catafalque within the sanctuary, and soon after the Solemn Office commenced, the Most Rev. Dr. Donnelly, Bishop of Clogher, presiding. The chaunters were the Rev. Francis Lennon, Professor, Maynooth College: and the Rev. F. J. Nugent, C. C., Monaghan. Immediately after the Office, Solemn Mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. Dr. Donnelly. The assistant-priests were the Very Rev. Canon Kelly, P. P., Keady; and the Rev. P. Connolly, Adm., Clontibret. Deacon and sub-deacon—Rev. T. B. MacElroy, C. C., Clones; and Rev. L. J. O'Neill, Adm., Monaghan. Master of Ceremonies—The Rev. Thomas Smollan, P. P., Donamoine. The Rev. Mr. Lennon and Rev. Mr. Nugent conducted the choir, and were assisted by the Very Rev. Edward M'Loughlin, D. D., President of the Diocesan College; Rev. Patrick Clifford, P. P., Rockcorry; Rev. P. J. McMahon, P. P., Trillick, &c. Amongst the clergy I noticed the Very Rev. Dean M'Mahon, D. D., V. G., Carrickmacross; Very Rev. Dr. M'Meal, P. P., V. G., Enniskillen; the Very Rev. Dr. Birmingham, P. P., Castleblayney; Very Rev. F. Lennon, Maynooth College; Very Rev. E. M'Loughlin, D. D., Diocesan College; Very Rev. Edward M'Kenna, P. P., Currin; Very Rev. Canon Kelly, P. P., Keady, (diocese of Armagh); Very Rev. J. Kelly, P. P., Truagh; Rev. J. Shiel, P. P., Donagh; Rev. A. Carney, P. P., Ballybay; Rev. G. Gillan, P. P., Newbliss; Rev. H. Ward, P. P., Newtownbutler; Rev. Mr. O'Reilly, P. P., Kingscourt, (diocese of Meath), and his curate; Rev. P. J. M'Mahon, P. P., Kilskerry, and his curate; Very Rev. John Hoey, P. P., Magheracloone; Rev. Mr. Murphy, P. P., Killany; Rev. D. Smyth, C. C., ditto: Rev. P. Loughran, C. C., Clones; Rev. T. B. MacElroy, C. C., ditto; Rev. P. Donnelly, C. C. Currin; Rev. J. Mooney, C. C., Enniskillen; Rev. J. M'Ardle, C. C., ditto; Rev. J. Kelly, C. C., Clontibret; Rev. H. Maguire, C. C., ditto; Rev. M. Carney, C. C., Aughnamullen; Rev. W. M'Quade, C. C., Ballybay; Rev. James M'Quade, Administrator, Whitehill; Rev. John Rooney, P. P., Inniskeen; Rev. P. M'Mahon, C. C., Donamoine; Rev. F. Forde, C. C., ditto; Rev. Cormac Smollen, C. C., Donagh; Rev. B. Duffy, C. C., Castleblaney; Rev. J. Donegan, C. C., Lisnaskea; Rev. B. Duffy, P. P., Tyhollan; Rev. J. M'Kenna, C. C., Rosslea; Very Rev. P. Duffy, P. P., Rosslea; Rev. John Bartley, and Rev. John O'Connor, Maynooth College, &c., &c. So large was the attendance of the clergy that it was almost impossible to obtain a complete list of the names. There was a large attendance of the laity from different parts of the county Monaghan and neighboring counties:—Plunkett Kerney, Esq., J. P., Rocksavage; Hubert Kernan, Esq., J. P., Capra; John Reilly, Esq., solicitor, Monaghan; Peter M'Philips, Esq., (father of the late James M'Philips), Monaghan; P. Donnelly and J. Donnelly, Esqrs., Clones; Thomas Callan, Esq., Tullager; county Louth; Cornelius Smyth, Dundalk; Thomas Gartlin, Esq., Monalty, &c. I am sorry that my memory does not enable me to give a full list of their nomes.

The Very Rev. Dr. Birmingham, P. P., Castleblaney, preached the sermon on the melancholy occasion, and I never heard a more feeling or a more eloquent tribute or one more richly deserved. He traced the collegiate and missionary life of the lamented deceased in vivid colors, and in the most touching language; he went direct to the heart of every one in that vast and sorrowing congregation, and indeed, for myself, I felt the words of the poet, as I saw the coffin of poor Father M'Culloch being lowered into the grave—

"It were sweet into the grave to go,
If one were sure to be buried so."

The jubilant tones of the Benedictus dispelled the gloom of the lonely grave, made us forget the sting of death, and raised us above the victory of the grave; and, as the Requiescat was intoned over his lowered coffin, every heart was filled with mingled feelings—sorrow, because the young priest was gone forever; joy, because he died the death of the just, and had the funeral of an Irish priest, gentleman, and patriot. May the soul of Father Patrick M'Culloch rest in eternal peace.—Amen.

Miscellaneous.

A GRAVE SPECULATION.—Once a Week gives us a rare glimpse of one of the tricks of trade, in the following story: 'One day, having missed the up-train, I amused myself by a search for local curiosities, and found one, an elderly laborer, whom I asked for a light. He was going to work in the cemetry, close at hand, which, from the inscription over the gateway, I saw was under the management of a limited liability company. It was a very prettily arranged place, giving one the notion that the limited company had said to themselves, 'The prettier we make it, the more you'll like to be buried here.' This plan seemed to have met with astonishing success; for, by my informant's account, the cemetry had only been in existence a year and a half, and, on the testimony of my own eyesight, it was already half-full of clean, white tombstones, regular as a good set of teeth. 'Flourishing concern this?' I said, interrogatively to the grave-digger. The old fellow, who, having received 'the price of a pint,' had suddenly become intensely confidential, winked and shook his head. 'Not?' I returned, replying to his pantomime. 'No,' said he; then, after a pause, as if the secret had been weighing upon his conscience for some time past, and the price of the pint had fetched it out of him, he added, 'them's dummies.' Seeing I didn't catch his meaning, he continued, evidently pitying my simplicity: 'Dummies to catch the public, them is. There's the railway there in full view. Gents passing sees the name up; then they looks at the tombstones. Flourishing concern that, they says to one another; must be paying well, they says; then they sends to say they'll take so many shares; and p'raps, after all,' he finished, with a grim chuckle, 'they comes and goes into the concern as sleeping partners themselves. So it is;' and off he trudged.'

A few facts showing the actual position of the Irish Church are given by Mr. Brady, who, as a minister of the Anglican communion, may be taken as an impartial witness. He states that there are 199 parishes in Ireland which do not contain a single member of the Established Church, and in which, with few exceptions, there has been no Anglican Divine service since the Reformation. Those parishes extend over 557,000 acres, and are inhabited by more than 98,000 Roman Catholics, who produce (besides rent to the landlord and taxes to the Crown) more than £13,000 yearly of ecclesiastical revenue. Again there are 107 beneficies of the Established Church inhapited by 1452 Anglicans and 123,758 Roman Catholics. The Church revenues in those benefices exceed £20,000 a year, and are produced by the industry of Roman Catholics chiefly. Comment upon these facts is needless.

A reporter of the Ottawa Citizen visited the County Jail on the 23rd ult., and found Whelan walking in the corridor, with that nervous, agile step peculiar to him. His health is good, and he talked freely with the reporter. He is allowed to read newspapers. No other prisoners are allowed in the same tier of cells with him, nor is he allowed in the prison yard. He spends most of his time in singing and whistling, and is in general restless. Buckley takes things quietly, and is supplied with meals from home. In the corridor with Buckley are Duggan, Doyle, Slattery, Enright, Egleston, Doody, Thomas and Henry Murphy, O'Callaghan and Kinsella. They are all in good health, but complain that they have been kept so long without a hearing.

On the day before the battle of Sadowa, half a dozen Prussian generals rode to the Prussian outposts, in order to reconnoitre the Austrian position. Moltke was there, and so was Bismarck. 'Have you a cigar for me, Count?' said Moltke to Bismarck. Bismarck drew his cigar case from his pocket, opened it, and handed it to the old General. There were six cigars in the case. Moltke looked at them very closely, and finally picked out one of them. 'The devil may catch me, Moltke,' exclaimed Count Bismarck, 'if you are not going to beat old Benedek. There was but one good cigar in the case, and you picked it out.'

Theodore's son, who is beginning to earn a claim to his name, Allumayu, (I have seen the world), accompanied Sir Robert Napier in the steam-yacht Feroox, as far as Sucz. He has taken very kindly to English customs, wearing a sailor's dress, of which he is evidently very proud, and handling a knife and fork at table as if he had been to the manor born, although Abyssinia goes upon the principle that fingers were made before forks. He seems a very intelligent, nice little fellow, and was a great favorite on board.

The power of electricity on eels was clearly noticed on Thursday last during the tempest. Waquoit Bay received two severe bolts, which so effected the eels that they came to the top of the water, their heads out like sea serpents, and swam to the shore. On being taken up and thrown back into the water they immediately came ashore again. The following morning, some fifteen barrels of eels were picked up, having come ashore. —St. John Globe.

A witty rogue, when asked how he got out of prison, replied: 'I got out of my cell by ingenuity, ran up stairs with agility, crawled out of the back window in secrecy, slid down the lightning-rod with rapidity, walked out of the town with dignity, and am now basking in the sunshine of liberty.'

Holloway's Pills.

THIS great household edicine ranks among the leading necessaries of life. It is well known to the world that it cures many complaints other remedies cannot reach, the act is as well established as that the sun lights the world.

Disorders of the Liver and Stomach.

Most persons will, at some period of their lives, suffer from indigestion, derangement of the liver, stomach or bowels, which if not quickly removed, frequently settle into a dangerous illness. It is well known in India, and other tropical climates, that Holloway's Pills are the only remedy that can be relied on in such cases. Almost every soldier abroad carries a box of them in his knapsack. In England most persons know that these Pills will cure them whenever the liver, stomach or bowels are out of order, and that they need no physician.

Weakness and Debility.

Such as suffer from weakness, or debility, and those who feel want of energy, should at once have recourse to those Pills, as they immediately purify the blood, and acting upon the main-spring of life, give strength and vigor to the system To young persons entering into womanhood, with a derangement of the functions, and to mothers at the turn of life these Pills will be most efficacious in correcting the tide of life that may be on the turn. Young and elderly men suffer in a similar manner at the same periods, when there is always danger; they should therefore undergo a course of his purifying medicine, which insures lasting health.

Disorders of Children

If these Pills be used according to the printed direction and the intment rubbed over the region of the kidneys, at least once a day as salt is forced into meat, it will penetrat the kidneys and correct any derangement of their organs. Should the affliction be stone or gravel, then the Ointment should be rubbed into the neck of the bladder, and a few days will convince the sufferer that the effect of these two remedies is astonishing.

Disorders of the Stomach.

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and acting through the secretive organs upon the blood itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholsome effect upon all its parts and functions

Complaints of Females.

The functional irregularities peculiar to the weaker sex are invariably corrected without pain or inconvenience by the use of Holloway's Pills. They are the safest and surest medicine for all diseases incidental to females of all ages.

Bilious Affections.

All young children should have administered to them, from time to time, a few doses of these Pills, which will purify their blood, and enable them to pass safely through the different disorders incidental to children, such as measles, hooping-cough, cowpock, and other infantile diseases. These Pills are so harmless in their nature as not to injure the most delicate constitution, and are therefore more peculiarly adapted as corrective of the humors affecting them.

Dropsy.

Hundreds are cured yearly by the use of these Pills conjointly with the Ointment, which should be rubbed very bonutifully into the parts affected.

Derangement of the Kidneys.

The quantity and quality of the bile are of vital importance to health. Upon the liver, the gland which secretes the fluid so necessary for digestion, the Pills operate specifically, infallibly rectifying its irregularities and effectually curing jaundice, bilious remittants, and all the varieties of disease generated by an unnatural condition of that organ.
