

THE DAILY EXAMINER.
JUNE 20, 1882.
AT THE POLLS.

Good order now prevails and Voters are coming up well. We hope that every vote for BRECKEN & JENKINS will be polled. Let us give them a handsome majority.

King's College, Windsor.

On Thursday, the 29th inst., the annual Convocation will be held at King's College, Windsor. The festival proper takes place on the Thursday alone; yet it casts a brightness over the three days that precede it, and Windsor, in that time, is in a state of excitement quite different from its ordinary condition of old fashioned leisure, and highly respectable repose.

The history of King's College is not the least interesting portion of Nova Scotia—and even of Canadian—history. It was founded in the year 1787, and is the oldest University in the Dominion of Canada. It was one of a number of Colleges founded by English influence in America, of which another was King's College, New York, (now Columbia College) another King's College, Toronto (now Toronto University) and another King's College, Fredericton, (now New Brunswick University.) All of these Royal Chartered Colleges are now changed both in name and general position, except that at Windsor.

When it was first suggested that a University should be established in Nova Scotia, Halifax naturally seemed the proper place for it, but Windsor, which was then the second town in the Province was chosen in preference, as it was feared the influence in an important military and naval station would be injurious to youth. Certainly a more lovely site could not have been selected. As long as Evangeline is read, romantic minds will feel tenderly towards the Valley of the Avon. But apart from poetry Windsor possesses sufficient natural beauty to charm a mind least susceptible to that sort of thing.

The College is situated a little distance from the town, its lands adjoining those of Clifton, the birth-place and home of Sam Slick. Four buildings rest upon a slight eminence overlooking the beautiful plain, known as the King's Meadow. Of these buildings, the largest is the college proper, a long, brown structure, built at the end of last century, and bearing the signs of antiquity both within and without. Connected with this by a corridor, is the Chapel, a pretty Gothic building of freestone, erected by Edward Binney, Esq., of Halifax, to the memory of the Rev. John M. Hensley, a gentleman well known in Charlottetown, and long Professor of Divinity in Windsor. Beyond this is a house, or rather three houses, for the use of those Professors who chose to live in College. At a little distance down the hill, is the Library and Museum, also a Gothic building in freestone. The library contains about 10,000 volumes, and is the largest in the Maritime Provinces. In the Museum is a very fine collection of old china, valued at about $5,000, presented a year or two ago by Mrs. Weldon, of Fredericton. It is an interesting historical collection, as it contains very many specimens of china, brought to this country by N. E. Loyalists.

Oscar Wilde has peculiar views on some matters, but on the subject of education he speaks very sensibly. He says that one of the chief objects in University life is gained by the students living together, and thus acquiring a tone that is never received elsewhere. It is in the English plan; but of late years has been abandoned in many American and Canadian Colleges. It has never been given up at King's, and probably never will.

King's College has perhaps turned out more really noted men than any other institution in Canada, among them being Sir John Inglis, the hero of Lucknow, Judge Haliburton, (Sam Slick) and Sir Fenwick Williams, the defender of Kars.

Hon. Mr. Costigan's Speeches.

The St. John News says:—"The Hon. John Costigan is a most valuable addition to the platform ability of enlisted here in defence of the National Policy. His speeches last night in Carleton and Portland were admirable, and fitted greatly to help the good cause. No doubt his address to-night in Troop's Building and in Wilkin's Hall will be equally effective. He has met here with a splendid reception from people of all nationalities. Protestants of the warmest sort, recognizing his honesty and high principle, and his prudent, consistent course in regard to matters on which they differ from him, and the ability and energy displayed by him in support of a cause of great importance on which they agree with him, are pleased at his entrance into the Government and have given him an enthusiastic welcome. His compatriots and co-religionists here are, of course, greeting him kindly, as they are in honor bound to do. He is a credit to them, and the Government, of which he is a member, has very strong claims on their support, as representing a good cause, and as doing ample justice to their claims. They should, to a man, vote to sustain the National Policy Government. They should to a man vote for Sir Leonard Tilley, Mr. Costigan's brilliant colleague, and for Messrs. Everett and Tuck, who, if elected, will give the Macdonald, Tilley, Costigan Government their best support in its efforts to stimulate the industries of the country."

The St. John News says:—"The Minister of Inland Revenue has received a very hearty welcome from all classes of our citizens. Grit and Liberal-Conservative alike have treated him with marked respect, and have not been backward in expressing their sense of his ability, his modesty and gentlemanly bearing. Mr. Costigan, as a public speaker, is probably one of the most effective that ever graced a platform in our Province. He attempts no high flights of oratory. He indulges in no rant or personal abuse. He speaks calmly, with an orderly arrangement of his matter, makes his points clearly and ably, and satisfies his audience that he is telling them the truth and presenting the facts exactly as they exist. Mr. Costigan has the bearing of a speaker who has nothing to conceal, who is candid itself, and who would have no hesitation in opening his whole mind to his audience. Few public speakers who have visited our city have created as favorable an impression in so short a time."

GREAT MEETING
Of Liberal-Conservative Party
At Market Hall Last Night.

G. W. DEBLOIS, Esq., occupied the Chair. His opening address was full of deep earnest feeling and faith in the future of our great country, which under the progressive Government of Sir John Macdonald is being rapidly developed. The stirring and honest appeal of Mr. DeBlois to the Electors of Charlottetown in favor of the Candidates of the Liberal Conservative Party, cannot fail to produce good results at the Polls to-day.

F. BRECKEN, Esq., reviewed the campaign now drawing to a close. He alluded in pleasing terms to the friendly reception with which he and his colleague, Dr. Jenkins, were greeted by the people throughout the whole country by their political opponents, as well as their supporters. He spoke in tones of the most unbounded confidence as to the result of the campaign, assuring the large audience which crowded the Hall that he had every reason to believe in his own election and that of his colleague was certain. Mr. Brecken, though feeling tired after a hard day's work at several meetings in the country, spoke well and was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

HON. MR. SULLIVAN followed, and gave a most telling address. He glanced over the great question as it is between the Grits and the Government, pointing out that whilst Mr. Davies was for Free Trade, his leader, Mr. Blake, was for Protection. Thus, facing both ways, they hoped to catch votes. Such tricksters were unworthy of the support of any intelligent and free people. He said that several of the seats, already secured by acclamation to the Government, had formerly been Grit strongholds. The eighteen members, including three ministers already returned to support Sir John Macdonald's Government, was the strongest proof possible of public feeling in favor of the Liberal Conservative party, whose majority in the Parliament would be as large, if not larger, than that of 1878. He told the meeting of the action of Mr. Laird and his Grit colleagues, touching the taking away of the franchise from every man in P. E. Island, young or old, who did not possess a freehold estate worth £100, equal to $325. This same David Laird was the man who was now trying to seek re-election to the Commons of Canada. Surely those who valued their liberties as free-born men, would never become so dead to their own dearest rights as to vote for David Laird or for his colleague, Mr. Davies, who was a partner of his sins, and who, with Mr. Laird, was prepared to endorse the infamous conduct of the Grit faction, who now sought, but could not obtain, the reins of power in Canada.

DR. JENKINS then took the platform, amid the cheers and applause of the electors, who had packed the Hall, and whose enthusiasm was certainly an unmistakable evidence that their hearts were in the work at hand. Dr. Jenkins reviewed the campaign, which to him was a very pleasant and agreeable one indeed. He spoke of the kind treatment which he received at all the meetings, and the spirit of fair play which characterized the conduct generally of his political opponents. He gave his candid opinion as to the result of the contest, which he felt confident would place Mr. Brecken and himself ahead of their opponents. Judging from the tone of the people everywhere, the Grits would suffer a terrible defeat—horse, foot and artillery.

HON. MR. FERGUSON followed the Doctor with a ringing speech, full of material, showing the base tactics of the meeting, the inventive malice and falsehoods, the Liberal Conservative party would soar above them all, and come off with a triumph and a victory unparalleled in the history of any country.

E. J. HOPKINSON, Esq., also spoke in strong terms of confident success. He reviewed the campaign in Prince County, in which he took part, and assured the meeting that Hackett and Rogers' election was past all doubt a certainty. Mr. Hodgson appealed in forcible and elegant language to the young men to do their duty to-day by marking their ballot for Brecken and Jenkins.

HON. NEIL McLEOD and others followed, all of whom spoke in stirring terms and unbounded faith in their party, with the fullest assurance of a glorious victory at the polls on this day, the 20th day of June, 1882.

It may be well to look at what is being done in the United States in the way of producing iron. There are, we believe, twenty three States in which iron ore is produced. In these States are 805 mining establishments, whose capacity is 13,462,000 tons in twelve months. The quantity raised in the last census year reached 7,971,000 tons or almost sixty per cent of the maximum capacity, and the value of this product is stated at $28,167,000. The following figures, represent, according to the article we quote from, the value of materials, etc., employed in this important industry:

Number of steam engines used.....	821
Total horse power.....	24,838
Number horses and mules used.....	3,944
Number of employees.....	31,656
Value of machinery.....	$ 3,211,558
Value of materials used.....	2,986,011
Wages paid.....	9,338,117
Cost of explosives used.....	484,432
Value of plant.....	8,657,375
Used as working capital.....	4,850,753
Value of real estate.....	43,274,149

During ten years the number of establishments and their capacity has doubled, and the number of employees more than doubled. The capital put into the work shows a gain of 247 per cent., and the number of tons produced is 135 per cent. greater. Forty per cent. more is paid for wages, and the increase in total product is, in tons, 135 per cent., and in value 75 per cent.

A Philadelphia paper says that on Chestnut street a lady of uncertain age looks unutterably at a gentleman, who thereupon ventures to offer her his umbrella. "How dare you speak to me, sir?" she demands, in apparent anger; "I beg you not to be offended; I could not resist offering a simple courtesy," he replies, adding as her anger simmers away. "You look so exactly like my mother." She sends along alone, with a look that would have taken the glazing off a stone jet.

Accident on Board the Vice-Regal Yacht.

An accident which might have been attended with more or less serious results occurred on Tuesday night on board the Governor-General's yacht "Nautilus," at the Queen's wharf. The Governor-General and H. R. H. Princess Louise had been on a cruise round the harbor, and on returning, the engine was not stopped quite as soon as it should have been, the consequence being that the yacht ran against a schooner lying at the wharf, breaking off the flag-pole on the bow, and causing it to fall over the deck. The poll would have fallen across Her Royal Highness, who was sitting upon the deck, but for His Excellency the Governor-General who sprang forward and caught it in his hands. Fortunately, no one was hurt. Quebec Chronicle.

Panic at Cairo.

A Cairo correspondent wires that there is a fearful panic there, which Arabi is doing all he can to calm. Last night a European stabbed an Arab ivory merchant. There was great excitement, but the soldiers prevented a riot. The American Government should send a ship to Ismailia to succor the Cairo fugitives. Matters throughout the country are most alarming. Tewfik and Dervish are powerless. There is a universal expression of praise of the Galena for the succor rendered. It would be a mistake to remove this popular ship from Europe at the present moment. The British subjects have been ordered to quit this city instantly. The Governor of Alexandria is holding an enquiry into the late massacre. Evidence is difficult to obtain. The English admiral has buoyed the cable, and the telegraph ship Chiltern has been ordered here for service in case the cable is cut ashore.

CLIPPINGS.

Frictions in Ireland number one thousand weekly.

Bismarck declares that party government in Germany is impossible.

The British Channel fleet, consisting of five large ironclads has sailed from Gibraltar for Egypt.

There is likely to be an autumn session of the Imperial Parliament to deal with the question of procedure.

Another arrest has been made in connection with the assassination of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke.

Replying to criticisms on the military estimates in the Reichstag, Bismarck intimated that by means of her military strength only could Germany hope to ward off European coalitions against the Empire.

Advices from Peru state that the Provinces of Tarapaca and Tacna are about to be incorporated as Chilean territory. A more hopeful state of feeling exists in Peru and Bolivia.

The army worm is spreading its ravages with such rapidity in Kentucky and Ohio as to seriously alarm agriculturists. In several counties the entire barley crop has been devastated.

Bishop Gilmore, of Cleveland, has received a letter from Chicago, at the head of which was a skull and crossbones, and under these the information that inside of seven days he would be with Cavendish and Burke. The bishop took his usual sleep after the receipt of this reassuring message.

An American school journal gives the following useful hints on the airing of school-rooms in summer:—"When windows are opened in school rooms, it should never be done without cautionary measures. Open them widely at stated periods, till the air is completely changed, and give the pupils active exercise meanwhile, and for a short time after the windows are closed."

Her Imperial Majesty the Empress of Russia, was safely delivered of a daughter Tuesday morning. The infant Princess will bear the name of Olga. Mother and daughter are doing well, and the public buildings and streets of St. Petersburg are gaily decked with flags in honor of the event. Queen Dagmar, our readers need scarcely be reminded, is the sister of our own well-beloved Princess of Wales.

The London World says:—"The appointment of the Rev. Ernest Wilberforce to the newly-made Bishopric of Newcastle will give satisfaction in many quarters. He is a moderate High Churchman; he is very fluent and affable in his speech; he is a temperance light; and besides all this, he is a great lawn tennis player, which will be quite a new attribute in a bishop. What more suitable for the game of lawn tennis than episcopal gaiters? I have never yet seen them used in active sports; but as Bishop Wilberforce is only about forty, he will have a chance of testing their value."

The last annual report of the State Superintendent of Common Schools, Maine, is a remarkably able and outspoken document. There has been an unfortunate decline in the educational status of the State, and Mr. Luce tells it plainly. 1st. Too many of the children are either habitual absentees or truants from the schools. 2nd. The school terms are generally too short. 3rd. Many of the buildings are too small, and totally unfit for use. 4th. The prescribed course of study is too extended, resulting superficial work. 5th. Necessary school appliances, including expert, are greatly needed. 6th. The supervision is wanting in vigilance, authority, force and permanency.

THE TROTTER STALLION

'SIR EDWIN.'

SIR EDWIN is a Bay Stallion about 17 hands high, foaled in 1869, bred by Edwin Thorne of Thornedale, New York, and imported to P. E. Island in 1880.

Farmers! Here you have an opportunity which you never before had to breed to a pure bred Hambletonian, a grandson of the unrivalled Volunteer, whose service fee is $500 and nephew to St. Julian, King of the Turf, and sire by a cousin of Maud S., Queen of the Turf, the fastest trotter that ever lived, and the wonder of the world. With such breeding as this it will be remarkable if Sir Edwin's colts do not develop into wonderful trotters.

Sir Edwin's pedigree, as published, is hereby guaranteed, and if any person can show it to be incorrect, he can have the services of Sir Edwin free of charge.

Sir Edwin will be at my stable, Kensington, at all times during the season except the last week in July, when he will stand at Alberton.
