THE ANTI-SLAVERY QUESTION.—The Charlotteville World says: Goldwin Smith writes that the annexation propaganda is not dead but sleeping. The financial stringency in the United States is one of the three principal causes of the agitation. That is to say, in plainer but less elegant English than Prof. Smith uses, that the agitators are idle because supplies have been cut off in consequence of the hard times in the States.

THE POISON FOUND.—A Boston despatch says the autopsy upon the bodies of Mrs. Hannah Toole and her daughter Margaret, who died suddenly a few nights ago after drinking porter and eating chocolate pie, revealed enough cyanide potassium in their stomachs to cause the death of 40 persons. A formal charge of murder has been preferred against Stephen Toole, a son of Mrs. Toole, and his brother Michael and sister Mary L. Toole. In addition to the poison found in the stomachs of Mrs. Toole and her daughter, considerable was found, it is said, in the dress of the porter remaining in the glass from which they drank. The Toole family was one of the best known in South Boston, had lived there for years and was well to do in circumstances.

RULES for judging

BLACK BRESS GOODS.

Why not read and remember them. A time may come when you would like to know them.

WIDTH. Very important. Many are four and even six inches narrower than the line we show.

WEIGHT. This adds to value, and deserves careful attention. We keep the heaviest weight obtainable.

FINENESS. Especially note the quality of the wool. It should be soft to the touch and the twill even and fine.

FINISH. This should be the result of the quality of the yarn rather than of an artificial process. Too glossy a finish is not desirable.

COLOR. Brownish, greyish and greenish black shades should be avoided. We pride ourselves on the color of our goods.

PRICE. This should be marked in plain figures at low price—not at a price to admit of big discounts. Wool goods were never cheaper than to-day, and we show the best quality at a low price.

NOTES.

The mass meeting in the Baptist Church was largely attended. Interesting and instructive addresses were made by E. G. Matheson and Dr. Ayers. The anthem by the Baptist choir and the selection by the male quartette were well rendered. A collection of five dollars and eleven cents was taken. Sermons were preached to the young men in most of the churches. This being the week of prayer, prayer meetings will be held in the lecture rooms on Wednesday and Friday evenings at 8.30. All young men are cordially invited to these services.

The mechanical drawing class meets for organization, and first lesson, under Prof. Shaw, on Wednesday evening at 7.30 in the class room. Fourteen names have been booked for this class to date. If there are any others who desire to enter this class, they are requested to make application to the general secretary, or to R. H. Campbell, at once.

Names are now being entered for classes in bookkeeping, penmanship and business correspondence, geometry, arithmetic, stenography, French and grammar. As soon as the required number for any single class is received it will be organized and commence its studies.

The Scientific Society will meet again on Thursday evening next when Professor Harcourt will reopen the discussion on "Matter" by introductory remarks upon atoms and molecules.

THE POLINO.—The Montreal Gazette of Friday says: "The steamship Polino arrived in port yesterday from St. John's with a cargo of coal and went into the canal locks to discharge. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon information was laid at the offices of Government Inspector of Boilers and Machinery that the Polino had arrived in the port without a certificate of inspection on board. The Inspector, to confirm the report, boarded the vessel at three o'clock and found no certificate for either the ship or master, posted conspicuously as required by law, whilst there was no engineer's certificate posted up in the engine-room. The order to tie her up until a certificate of inspection was produced was immediately issued by Mr. Clift, the Government Inspector. The fine for non-inspection is $400, with the alternative of twelve months in jail; $100 for the captain's certificate not being posted up, and $10 for the non-posting of the engineer's certificate." Messrs. N. B. & M. Battersby, agents for the Polino at this port, inform us that the steamer will be due here to-morrow morning.

LOVE AND REVENGE.—The Amherst Sentinel says: Since last summer three attempts have been made to burn out Mr. Willard Bulmer. The last attempt which was made on last Wednesday night was successful and resulted in burning Mr. William Adams house in which Mr. Bulmer was boarding. All the inmates had a narrow escape from being burned in their beds. On Friday Mr. Bulmer had a domestic spring in the Minas Hotel arrested on suspicion, as he was heard to say last night on the occasion of Mr. Bulmer's marriage that she would burn him alive. After a trial, which lasted Saturday and Monday, she was discharged for want of proof. An action for damages for false imprisonment is said to be next on the programme.

AN ISLANDER MURDERER.—Information over the signature of Sergeant Major H. A. Gorsline, of the 13th United States Infantry, has recently come to hand, showing that Caleb D. Jenkins, who left his home in 1872, was murdered by Indians on the plains, in the vicinity of Wingate N. M., while en route from California to Colorado, in company with one Thomas Orr, who was also murdered. The Caleb D. Jenkins referred to learned the trade of carder and dyer at Millview Mills, and was for some years subsequently employed in McLaren's Mills at Bradenell. He was known to his early associates as a most exemplary young man. His mother still lives with her son, Mr. Franklin Jenkins, at Alberry Plains, King's Co., Conn.

WAS BURIED ALIVE.—A startling discovery has lately been made near Hanover, Penn., which reveals the fact that Mrs. Slezak, who was thought to have died near there two months ago, was buried alive. It was made by workmen and relatives, who opened the grave for the purpose of sealing it with cement. The woman evidently revived shortly after burial, and made a desperate fight for her life. The glass in the casket was broken, the corpse was partly turned on its side, there was blood on the face and other indications of a terrible struggle in the tomb.
