A RECOLLECTION.

It was indeed a perfect day. I scarce recall the weather. But autumn calls and bloom of May seem mingled there together. Then melody made sweet the hours. Each sentence was a ballad. The rocks were jewels, weeds were flowers. When Mary dressed the salad.

No verbal scene whose blandishment will welcome beset us Can have the fascination lent By that small sprig of lettuce, And vainly must musicians toil From stage or festal wagon For tones like those with which the oil Came loitering from the fagon.

Strange how these merchant chemists mar Each once alluring savor! How tasteless is the vinegar! How dull the pepper's flavor! Ofttimes when sterner moods are planned Those memories come pressing-- That salad day, the sunshine and The girl who made the dressing. --Washington Star.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

A Meeting With a Gentle Hearted Woman Backed by a Feroocious Dog.

"At the foot of the stairs in the front hall of a farmhouse one night," said the retired burglar, "I stumbled over something soft that turned out to be a feather bed. If I had had a grain of sense at all, I should have suspicioned something from that, but I didn't. It looked as though it had been just tumbled down stairs and left there to be carried off in the morning, and I let it go at that and stepped into it and over it to the first step of the stairs and on up.

"Stepping up on the fourth step, I kicked against a string stretched across the stairs and broke it. That made me suspicious, but I never connected the feather bed at the foot of the stair with it. I looked up. I expected it to be connected with something there. And it was, and it was coming down the stairs at me and filling up the whole stairway. It was a big feather bed. Even then I didn't see that the one coming down had anything to do with the one down on the floor, and at the same time I couldn't understand why anybody should roll anything like a feather bed down on anybody--bulky, to be sure, but so light that it was an easy thing to stop.

"I put my hands to stop this one, but might just as well have tried to stop a mountain. It was soft and squashy on the outside, but it weighed a ton. It just bowled me right over backward, and I fell on the other feather bed at the foot of the stairs. Then I began to understand what that one was for. It was to save the bones of the man that was tumbled over by the avalanche bed.

"I lay there nearly smothered by the bed on top and working out from under it gradually.

"I hope you are not hurt?" I heard somebody say from over the railing along the hall up stairs, and I said, "No, ma'am," because it was a female voice, and I am always polite to the ladies, 'but would you mind telling me what's inside the one that came down?"

"Oh," she said, "it's the summer range, with the flatirons inside. Can you lift it off, or shall I let the dog come down and help you?"

"And with that I heard a dog scratching up stairs. I supposed it started him up to hear himself spoken of, and I judged from the sound of his claws on the carpet that he must have been about the size of a tiger and of about the same kind of disposition.

"No," I says, "I can get clear of it." And I did and stood up in the hall.

"You won't carry off the other one, will you?" she said.

"And hearing the dog still scratching up stairs, I said, 'No, I won't.' And I didn't. The lady appeared to be gentle hearted enough, but I knew you couldn't trust the dog."--New York Sun.

Energy From Volcanic Heat.

The energy stored in the coal beds has rightly been referred back to the sun, and it is no doubt to the same source that we should ultimately attribute the heat developed at great depths below the surface of the earth. While it is believed that no practical attempts to utilize this subterranean heat have yet been carried into effect, there appears to be no good reason why the attempt should not be made, especially in volcanic regions, where quite high temperatures should be revealed at moderate depths. In a Colorado mining town an interesting combination was recently observed which a little ingenuity might have converted into a considerable source of power. Within 20 feet of each other were two springs, one of a temperature of nearly 200 degrees F. and the other not over 60, the flow of each being very uniform and the temperature quite constant. The theoretical efficiency might readily be determined from the well known law of thermodynamics, and the use of one stream to vaporize and the other to condense some volatile liquid, such as ammonia or bisulphide of carbon, might enable a fair percentage of the energy to be utilized which is now running to waste.--Cassier's Magazine.

AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Is pleasant to the taste. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

The Most Desolate Spot.

Perhaps the most desolate spot on earth is a tiny storm swept islet in Bering sea nearly midway between Alaska and Siberia. Nearly 50 miles from the nearest land, King's Island, is a barren rock, so steep that no beach landing can be found. Here on the southern side, perched like nests above the roaring surf and secured to the rocks by walrus thongs, are the skin dwellings of the walrus hunters. Here the sun is never shining, the sea never smooth. Cold, chilly fogs enshroud the place in summer, while the frequent and furious gales that sweep through Bering strait at all seasons render the narrow summit of the island quite uninhabitable. Ice locked during nine months of the year, the natives depend entirely upon the seal, walrus and whale as a means of existence. During the brief summer a stray whaler may visit the island for a couple of hours, but this is the sole communication with the outer world. The King's Islanders are closely allied to the Alaskan Eskimo. They are a fine, hardy race, inured to daily dangers and privations, and are reckoned the best and bravest sailors in Bering sea. Their boats of walrus hide will carry from 20 to 30 persons in a mountainous sea.--London Graphic.

The Right Sort of a Clerk.

A young salesman in one of our dry goods stores has a scheme which is likely to make him his fortune some day, for it is built upon that most solid of foundations, woman's vanity. He keeps a private notebook, and she gives him her name and address. He writes them down, together with a note or two calculated to fix her appearance in his memory. The next time she comes he does not say, "The name, please." He simply says: "Thank you, Mrs. Skaggs. The goods will be sent; 711 X street, isn't it?" Of course it's 711 X street, and Mrs. Skaggs is naturally immensely flattered at being a customer of sufficient importance to be so well remembered. Naturally, too, she prefers to deal with that salesman and at that store thereafter, and I'm sure that if the proprietor of that shop only knew what that young man is worth to him, he'd double his salary.--Washington Post.

Vegetable Foods.

A learned scientist has been investigating the effect of food, particularly vegetables, on the human character. He finds that a diet of carrots ameliorates harshness of character and reduces nervous irritability; peas create fatty tissue and encourage joyousness, while turnips have a depressing influence; cabbage is good for pulmonary complaints, while lettuce acts as a sedative upon the human frame, owing to the opium contained in its milky juice.

Brilliant.

They had had a little party of guests at the house, and he remarked to his wife as he was getting ready for bed that he flattered himself he had acted the part of host in rather a brilliant manner. "I can only recall one brilliant action of yours," she said. "What was that?" "Lighting the gas."--London Tit-Bits.

MESSAGE TO MEN

Proving that True Poverty and True Philanthropy are Still Existing

If any man who is weak, nervous and debilitated, or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from youthfully, excesses or overwork, will take heart and write to me, I will send him confidentially and free of charge the plan pursued by which I was completely restored to perfect health and manhood, after years of suffering from Nervous Debility, loss of Vigor and Organic Weakness.

I have nothing to sell, and therefore want no money, but as I know through my own experience how to sympathize with such sufferers, I am glad to be able to assist any fellow-beings to a cure. I am well aware of the prevalence of quackery, for I myself was deceived and imposed upon until I nearly lost faith in mankind but I rejoice to say that I am now perfectly well and happy once more and am desirous therefore to make this certain means of cure known to all. If you will write to me you can rely upon being cured and the proud satisfaction of having been of great service to one in need will be sufficient reward for my trouble. Absolute secrecy assured. Send 5c silver to cover postage and address Mr. G. Strong, North Rockwood, Mich. 135 p.d.w.
