

Liberal - Conservative Candidates. FOR BELFAST: A. A. McLean, Esquire. FOR TIGNISH: Captain Frank Gallant. THE DAILY EXAMINER. MARCH 10, 1888.

Editorial Notes. The question of Prohibition is looming up large in the United States. The loss last year on the Intercolonial Railway was $232,105; on the Eastern Extension $30,136; and on the Windsor Branch, $714; and on the P. E. Island Railway, $48,934. The total loss on the railways amount to $311,901.

Dishonourable Tactics. The Conservatives of Charlottetown were quite content that the intelligent electors of Belfast should themselves carry on the discussion of the questions arising out of the contest in Belfast; and an arrangement was made by leading members of the opposing parties in this city that both parties outside of Belfast should abstain from interference.

Canada's Proposition. In the course of the speech he delivered in the Commons on the 7th inst.—to which reference has already been made in these columns—Sir Charles Tupper said: "I have obtained permission to bring down the proposal of the British plenipotentiaries on commercial relations. It reads as follows: "That with the view of removing all causes of difference in connection with the fisheries, it is proposed by Her Majesty's plenipotentiaries that the fishermen of the British colonies have all the privileges enjoyed by the fishermen of the United States of America, in consideration of a mutual arrangement providing for equal treatment of commercial intercourse between the United States and Canada and Newfoundland."

Meeting at Eldon. A LARGE and orderly meeting of the intelligent electors of Eldon and vicinity was held last evening. Mr. McWilliams occupied the chair, and addresses were delivered by A. A. McLean, H. C. McDonald, A. Martin, D. Farquharson, Hon. Neil McLeod, J. M. Sutherland, Hon. G. W. Bentley and others. The addresses of the Conservative candidate and his supporters were capital, and made a marked impression. No division was taken; but it was quite evident that the majority of the meeting was overwhelmingly Conservative.

Scott Act Notes. Four summonses, all third offences, were yesterday served upon a lower Queen Street man. Another Scott Act offender went down to jail yesterday afternoon, and two were released therefrom. A complaint has been made against Mr. E. M. Estey, druggist of Moncton, for violation of the Scott Act. His case comes up on Tuesday next.

Stipendiary Magistrate's Court. Joseph Enman, drunk and incapable, $3 or 14 days imprisonment. Mary Ann McEachern, thirteen violations of the Scott Act, first offences, five convictions of $50 and costs each, six adjournments until Wednesday next for absent witnesses, and two dismissals.

Husbands Not Liable. A CASE of some importance to merchants and others who are in the habit of giving goods to married women on the credit of their husbands, was tried before Judge Reddin, at Souris, this week. A Souris merchant supplied goods to the wife of a leading farmer of Quebec's County, and sent the account, which amounted to quite a sum, to the husband. The husband repudiated the account, and informed the merchant that he was quite able to buy for cash all that his wife required, and that as he never authorized her to pledge his credit, he would not pay. He was then sued before the County Court at Souris. Judge Reddin gave judgment for the defendant, with costs, holding as a matter of law that a wife had no authority as such to obtain goods on the credit of her husband, and that before the husband could be bound, an express or implied authority from him to pledge his credit must be proved. In the present case no such authority was proved, and he therefore gave judgment for defendant. The Souris merchant then asked the Judge how a man was to know when a woman had authority from her husband. The Judge replied that he would always be safe if the wife produced a written order from her husband.

Varia. Last week I spoke of "fine writing," a weakness for which we, no doubt, all have had for a time. To some of us the weakness still clings. But there is another matter I should like to say a word about—and a much more objectionable matter it is. I refer to slang, which is becoming so common among us. A boy rarely now has a father, he has merely the "old man"; and the sacred name of mother gives place to the "old woman." There is now no head to any establishment, there is a "boss," and this last Yankee abomination seems a fixture amongst us. Trowers have disappeared from us as thoroughly as if we were a Highland clan, who only wore the national costume, and they have been replaced by "pants." A sort of companion word has been coined—"gents," so that in the American language "pants" would be explained as "an article of clothing worn by gents."

The Liquor War in Truro. A Truro despatch of the 7th says: "Simon Fraser, the keeper of the Intercolonial hotel, was this evening visited by Inspector Laurence and his aids, the town police, who seized all the liquors, etc., to be found on the premises, and had the same carted to one of the cells of Truro jail. This makes the fourth place visited by the inspector this week, the others being Duncan McKenzie, W. A. McKim and E. Lockett. Quite a quantity of liquors were obtained from McKim; nothing from McKim and only a small portion at Lockett's place. The principal hotels have thus far been passed by, but there seems to be no quarter promised for any of them. Quite a number of those interested in the liquor business have consulted lawyers and obtained opinions which they believe will justify the fight to the end. The contention between the two parties is on the one hand that the liquor license act of 1886 is in force and legalizes the appointment and prompt action taken by the inspector. On the other hand, however, the liquor dealers claim that the Scott Act is in force and prosecutions under the license act invalid. The contention is clearly a strange one, but doubts are expressed. Both, nevertheless, is favored by a very large number of people throughout town and country.

Bessano says: "In Belmont is a lady richly left; And she is fair and, fairer than that word Of wondrous virtues: sometimes from her eyes I did receive fair speechless messages. Her name is Portia, nothing unvalued to Cat's daughter, Brutus, Portia: Nor is the wide world ignorant of her worth, For the four winds blow in from every coast Renowned suitors; and her sunny look Hangs on her temples like a golden fleece; Which makes her seat of Belmont, Colchus' strand. And many Jasons come in quest of her. O, my Antonio had I but the means To hold a rival place with one of them, I have a mind presages me such thrift That I should questionless be fortunate."
