Stresses Need Of Raising Dairy Production Standards

Mr. Henry MacDonald, Dairy Superintendent, told members of the Women's Institute when speaking yesterday afternoon at the annual convention, that the time is approaching when Island dairy products, particularly in the form of skim milk powder, will be competing on the world market with the dairy products of other countries, and that standards here will have to be raised if they are to do so successfully.

To guard against these dangers, it is absolutely essential that milk should be cooled rapidly. Although P. E. I. dairy herds have been declared free of tuberculosis, there is still danger of contamination from other forms of disease producing bacteria through careless handling.

Emphasis Placed On Care Of Mentally Retarded Children

The importance of making an earnest effort to provide training to make those suffering from a partial mental deficiency either wholly or partly self supporting, to make them useful members of society as well as to avoid the possibility of their becoming mentally defective delinquents was emphasized by Dr. John C. Theriault, an acting director of the Mental Clinic, in a talk before the Women's Institutes yesterday.

Dr. Theriault's recommendation was supported by a resolution passed later by the Institute convention impressing upon the Government, in view of the lack of care for the education of mentally retarded children, the necessity for providing a home and school for these children. The speaker explained to his audience the various classifications of mental deficiency, and that below a certain level, little could be done for such cases, as they do not attain a mental age of more than two or three years, and the usual solution in such cases is to place them in an institution.
