

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 9, 1888.

William Haslam.

WILLIAM HASLAM, Esq., of Springfield, passed away early this morning at the venerable age of seventy-seven years. He was the eldest son of the late Thomas Haslam, and was born in Queen's County, Ireland, in the year 1811. His father emigrated to Prince Edward Island when he was but six years of age, and settled at St. Eleanor's where he remained about nine years. The family then removed to the locality known as Springfield—now one of the wealthiest and most flourishing settlements in the Province, then a dense forest that had never heard the sound of the woodman's axe. There his father cut down the first tree and established a home. There the family, numbering eleven children, grew and labored until the forest was subdued and they had hewn out comfortable home, stands for themselves. William Haslam, whose decease is now mourned, was naturally, as the eldest, the leading and most widely known member of the family. He was a self-educated man of great energy and perseverance, and took a prominent part in the agricultural, political and religious movements of the community. Early in life he was appointed a justice of the peace, and about thirty years ago he was High Sheriff of Queen's County. He served a term as member of the House of Assembly for the first district of Queen's County during the administration of the late Hon. Col. Gray, and was one of the Railway Commissioners, and during many years a Commissioner for the Provincial Exhibitions. It is needless to say he was a staunch Conservative and a tower of strength to his party. As a firm and consistent member of the Church of England he lived and died. About forty-five years ago he married Miss Elizabeth Schurman, of St. Eleanor's, who survives him. He leaves a family of ten children to mourn their loss and honor his memory.

Editorial Notes.

—The free delivery of letters in Victoria, B. C., will commence about July 1. When will it begin in Charlottetown?

—General Strange has written a letter to the London Standard urging the claims of the Canadian horse to a place in the cavalry of Great Britain.

—The Dominion steam dredge Prince Edward is still blocked up for repairs on Peake's breastwork. What does this mean? Surely our Island representatives, when at Ottawa, should have attended to this matter.

—The Monetary Times says: "Mr. Coombs' praiseworthy efforts to attract attention to the needless risks and hazards of a sea-faring life—we say the "needless" ones advisedly, for the unavoidable risks are grave enough—is worthy of wide notice."

—The steamer Novelty is off our coast with a pup in her train. The "pup" is a steam purse seine boat, which can put a purse seine around a school of mackerel in about two minutes. It was first put to a practical test on the 6th inst., off Canso, when it took a hundred and sixty barrels of mackerel at one scoop.

—The Manitoba Free Press gives a glowing account of the railway development of that Province. It says that "seven or eight years ago there was not a single line of railway in the Province; today we have 1,063 miles—the C. P. R., with its branches, 751 miles, the Manitoba and North-western and branches, 207 miles, the Hudson Bay 40 miles, and the Red River Valley, 67 miles. Canada is progressing."

—At a meeting of the London City Board of Guardians, held a few days ago, the fact was authenticated that well made leather boots, with hobnails and tips, were supplied by contractors at six pence per pair. A gentleman who was present said this was exactly the way to fill the workhouses, for the boots must be paid for out of the very blood and bones of the poor unfortunate workpeople who made them. It was the clearest case of "sweating" he had ever heard of, and he trusted the Board would never adopt the principle of accepting the lowest tenders unless they knew that the articles could be produced at a fair profit on the price charged.

—The speech of Archbishop O'Brien on the subject of Imperial Federation made quite a sensation in our sister Province and will probably influence materially the tide of public opinion. The Chronicle admits that it was the speech of the evening. The Mail doubts "if a speech so exhaustive, views so statesmanlike and sentiments so honorable and independent, have ever been expressed by any Canadian prelate during the past twenty years of our existence as a united Dominion. It was an address which appeals to the patriotic and manly instincts of the manhood of Canada, and which will live as a most valuable contribution to the accumulating mass of literature upon this great question."

—The International Exhibition at Glasgow, at which Canada is represented, appears to be an unequalled success. The second week it was opened it was visited by no fewer than 202,407 persons. It is estimated that in the event of the average being maintained, as there is every reason to believe it will, the total will be greater than that of any other British exhibition. The figures mentioned are likely to be presented at the end of the chapter is 6,500,000, while the official results of past exhibitions are as under:—London, 1851, 6,170,000; London, 1862, 6,117,000; Fisheries, 1883, 2,703,051; Fisheries, 1884, 4,135,593; Inventions, 1885, 3,760,000; Colonial, 1886, 5,550,749; Liverpool, 2,468,038; Edinburgh, 1887, 2,769,632; Manchester, 1887, 4,767,137; and Newcastle, 2,092,278.

Varia.

THE people of Australia are protesting against the numbers of Chinamen emigrating to that country. The legislature of New South Wales has passed a vigorous Act for restricting their immigration. But the measure, it is thought, is too severe, and there will be some difficulty in gaining the Royal assent thereto. The colonies are becoming impatient of being made the dumping ground for old and over-populated countries. Of course, it is easy to understand the dislike of the Australians for having their country overrun with the Heathen Chinese. In our own Dominion we are beginning to get disgusted with the shiploads of undesirable emigrants which English philanthropists are sending out every year, and England herself is dissatisfied with the influx of Jews and other beggars from the continent, whose admission is leading to a disorganization of the labor market.

Our last English papers tell us that Dr. Clifford on behalf of 3,730 Nonconformist ministers recently returned thanks to Almighty God for the gift of Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Gladstone expressed his gratitude for the courageous manner in which Dr. Clifford and those whom he represented, had mixed up politics and religion. There was nothing very novel in his speech, which was more notable for what it omitted than for what it contained. Mr. Gladstone must have been sorely tempted to take up the cry that the Pope, in condemning the Plan of Campaign, has interfered with Irish politics. Sir William Harcourt, in a recent speech, did say so; but then Mr. Gladstone is a theologian, and in that character he does not mix up politics and religion.

The cultus of Mr. Gladstone is just now beginning to approach the ridiculous. During the Whitsun Holidays a large number of Yorkshire excursionists presented themselves at Hawarden Castle to pay their respects, and to listen to a speech from him. While waiting for the "Grand Old man," they sang several tunes over a well known hymn to the great delight of Mrs. Gladstone. It is to be hoped that Mr. Gladstone has yet some sense of the fitness of things, and will stop proceedings of this kind. At all events, we may congratulate ourselves upon the fact that the custom has not taken root here. Fancy a party of excursionists on some holiday, wending their way to DeBlois' Station, Prince County, to hear words of political wisdom from our illustrious representative—Stanislaus F. Perry, and, in touching allusion to his connection with the Crossman Ferry contract, singing several times over "One more river to cross," as an act of homage to the great statesman.

Not long ago I was asked: "Are there any of the Illuminati now; what are their principles, and where are their headquarters?" I cannot answer the first part of my correspondent's question. I do not know if any of this sect are yet to be found under any other name, for certainly the 'Illuminate' as a body have long ceased to exist. They were formed for the purpose of "putting down" the Church of Rome, and we first hear of them as early as the 16th Century. Their last stronghold was, if I mistake not, in Bavaria, where they existed under the name of the Perfectionists, but they were suppressed by two decrees, issued against them towards the end of the 18th Century. The celebrated Mirabeau was one of their disciples, and at his request several of its distinguished members visited Paris for the purpose of illuminating France. For some years after its suppression it lingered on under the name of the German Union. The favorite saying of the Illuminati was: "The last king ought to be hanged with the entrails of the last priest."

I have never attempted to import theological questions of a controversial nature into this column, nor should they properly be dealt with by a purely secular paper, but I do not think it would be a departure from my accustomed reticence in this respect if I give what seems to me an apt illustration (I lately met with) drawn from nature, which enables one to form a faint idea of what "Three in One and One in Three" means. Not that I mean to say that the Three Persons of the Trinity are united in one Godhead, in the same way as these trinities in nature are, for the Godhead is a mystery which none can fathom, but they seem to me to be an answer to the argument of the infidel that the doctrine of the Trinity is contrary to reason.

(1) If a ray of white light be passed through a triangular prism, it will be split up into its component colors, viz: violet, blue, green, yellow, orange and red, of which blue, yellow and red are the three primary colors, the others being only blends of these three. We have thus the three primary colors contained in white light. Now, white light is one perfect color, and so is blue, yellow or red—each is a perfect color. Therefore we have the three perfect colors, blue, yellow and red, combined in one perfect color, white. Here, then, we have a "three-in-one."

Now to reverse the process. Take a second prism, turn its base in the opposite direction to that of the first, and intercept it in the path of the rays of light as they leave the first prism. Then the three rays, blue, yellow and red, enter it in three separate places. But how do they leave it? On the opposite side a stream of white light issues. Thus the three perfect colors have united to form one perfect color. Hence we now have "one in three."

2. As the former example dealt with light, so this one deals with sound, and can be illustrated with a harmonium. In every musical scale we have a common chord, consisting of the first, third and fifth tones of the scale. For the sake of simplicity we will take the common chord of C Major, the notes of which are C, E or G. If these notes be touched singly, it is at once seen that each gives a perfect sound; but touch all three together, and they then blend in one perfect sound. Here, then, again, is a "three in one." Again, by first playing this chord, and then the three notes singly, one after the other, it is evident that we have also an "one in three."

Signs of Prosperity.

SINCE Mr. O. V. McGregor purchased the Osborne House premises on Water Street some seven years ago, and embarked in the hotel business there, the house has steadily grown in favor with the traveling public. Each year it has been found necessary to improve and enlarge the premises in order to accommodate the large number of people who make it their headquarters while in the city. This year extensive improvements have been made and more are in contemplation.

The smoking room, on the first floor, has been enlarged 13x18 feet, and a new walnut desk with ash trimmings, and other furniture put in. The old floor has been taken up and one of ash and walnut substituted, and the walls, etc., have been newly painted, and gas introduced.

The drawing room, on the second floor, has been enlarged and improved, and is now double its former size. It has also been newly carpeted and re-furnished, and a large, handsomely-mounted plate-glass mantle mirror put in. Gas has also been introduced here.

The dining-room and halls have also been repainted, and the majority of the bedrooms repainted and papered and otherwise improved.

Another large bath-room—hot and cold water—has also been added. In connection with the hotel there is first-class stable accommodation, Mr. McGregor having fitted up the Hughes property which he purchased last fall as a coach house and stable, in addition to his former premises.

Mr. McGregor gives personal attention to every department, and this fact doubtless accounts to a large extent for the popularity of his house. We wish him continued prosperity.

Mr. Jas. A. Carman, formerly mail clerk on the P. E. I. Railway, but now resident in Winnipeg, was in Chatham, N. B., last week arranging to take his venerable father and his sister to his own home. The Advance says that Mr. C., looks as if Manitoba agreed with him in every way.
