Borden Route Discussed At Board Meeting

A meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade and interested retail merchants of the City was held in the Board Room last night to consider a proposed paved highway to shorten the road between Charlottetown and Borden.

Mr T. W. L. Prowse in reporting for a committee appointed at a previous meeting presented a plan whereby the existing road, just south of Albany would be straightened and approximately 1.2 miles of new road opened up, making a total distance from Albany to Carleton of 2.6 miles to be paved, thus shortening the distance between Charlottetown and Borden to approximately 36 miles.

A resolution, moved by Mr. R. E. Mutch and seconded by Mr. W A. Stewart was heartily endorsed by the meeting in which it was recommended that the Board and retail merchants get strongly behind the movement in an effort to have the suggested link opened up and paved and that the City Council and the Kings County Board of Trade be asked to cooperate in the matter.

Communications were also read by the secretary, Mr. W. L. Higgins relative to a proposed double daily airmail service for the Island; tourist regulations; Good Roads Association Convention to be held in Quebec City September 12 to 14. Two questionnaires on fire prevention and health and safety were referred to the Junior Board of Trade.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. B. S. Miller of St. Peter's United Church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Murray, Assistant pastor of Trinity United Church, Charlottetown. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a wedding gown of white satin and lace, and carried a bouquet of early summer flowers. The house was artistically decorated with an abundance of flowers, and the ceremony was performed in the living room under an arch of snow-balls and peonies. Miss Lottie James, sister of the bride, acted as bhidesmaid, who also wore a gown of white, and the groom was supported by Neil McCannell of Lorne Valley. The Wedding March was played by Miss Wood of Charlottetown and Rev. Mr. Murray sang very acceptably. O Perfect Love. A sumptuous supper was served to the many guests by Mrs. James, assisted by relatives and friends. Music for the latter part of the evening was furnished by Walter McLeod, Lloyd MacDonald, Fred McDougall, Mrs. B. Leard and Mrs. E. MacDonald. The couple were the recipients of many useful and valuable wedding gifts, attesting to the esteem in which both are held in their respective communities. After festivities the bride and groom drove to their new home in Lorne Valley where they were boisterously welcomed by the young and old who gathered "to chivarie" them. Prior to her marriage the bride was given a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Thomas, Cullen, Church Road where about one hundred well-wishers gathered to present the bride-to-be with very many useful gifts.

Crops Responding To Excellent Growing Weather

Farm crops in Prince Edward Island had responded remarkably to excellent growing weather during the last two weeks, B.F. Tinney, Assistant Superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm said yesterday. While the hay crop was less favorable than it was last year, prospects had improved considerably over those earlier in the season.

Pastures were good and contained more white clover than had been apparent for several seasons. Root and potato crops were average and grain crops were doing well.

The strawberry crop was not as large as estimated during the first of the season. Bush roots had shown a heavy bloom and there were indications of a good apple crop.

Cattle and milk cows were suffering from flies and Mr. Tinney advised farmers to spray their stock regularly to control pestilence. It was possible to mix an efficient spray at a very small cost, he said.

Science Ready to "Shoot" Mars At Close Range—36,030,000 Miles

July 27 Will Find Planet 'Near' Earth

By NEA Service

SCIENCE is aiming its "heavy artillery" right smack at Mars this month — and waiting. Only the weapons are not cannon, but telescopes. And Mars is not the threatening symbol of war, but the planet.

Science believes in "firing when you see the whites of their eyes." On July 27, Mars will be "looking at the earth from a distance of no more than 36,030,000 miles.

Astronomically speaking, that's about as far as the house across the street. Mars hasn't come as close since 1924, won't approach so near again for many years. Sometimes the planet is 248,000,000 miles distant; was almost than in June, 1938 in fact.

It all happens like this. Mars and the earth travel about the sun in different orbits at different speeds. Sometimes Mars is on the other side of the sun from the earth; often it's off at an angle. But, in late July, the earth will come directly between Mars and the sun.

BALANCE FOR RESEARCH

ASTRONOMY'S armies don't march in a military expedition to Mars; they just want to look at it. They advise the public not to lose sleep over a Martian invasion like that in last year's Orson Welles mirror broadcast." In the first place, they don't even know whether Mars is inhabited.

Secondly, although light will travel from Mars to the earth in 186 seconds as the worlds approach each other, it would take a rocket-ship much longer.

Nearness of the planet, however, may enable scientists to see new discoveries with their long-range lenses and photographic plates. They'd like to know more about the planet's geographic makeup, get a better look at those canals discovered by Giovanni Schiaparelli in 1877.

To earth-dwellers, Mars is a red star which shines with a red glow. But let's take a look at it as we would at the receiving end of a telescope.

First the color is a deep orange. One end is an elliptical, yellow area—one of the polar ice caps which grow and diminish with the seasons. Summer is approaching in Mars now, shrinking the northern ice cap, leaving the southern cap predominant.

A bluish green, elongated patch starts just beyond the ice cap and continues to the equator. There is a smaller patch near the equator. Belief is that these are areas of vegetation. The rest of the planet is probably desert, accounting for the reddish hue.

Apparently melting ice and snows of the polar caps provide the lone source of water. It seems logical that moisture from the caps should roll down over the planet, reviving vegetation.

CANAL MAN-MADE?

BUT about those canals—some so eager for the "visit"—scientists even deny their existence. In 1924, however, astronomers did sight some fine lines, forming a sort of network on Mars.

Because most of these lines do not bend, like a river, but follow a rather straight course, the late Percival Lowell contended that they were canals constructed by living beings and used for providing necessary irrigation throughout the planet.

If there is life on Mars, the inhabitants must be much different than we are. Living conditions would resemble those in our stratosphere, 18 miles above the earth's surface. It's much colder up there; temperature at the equator rarely rises above 50.

By and large, Mars is still quite a mystery. That's why science is

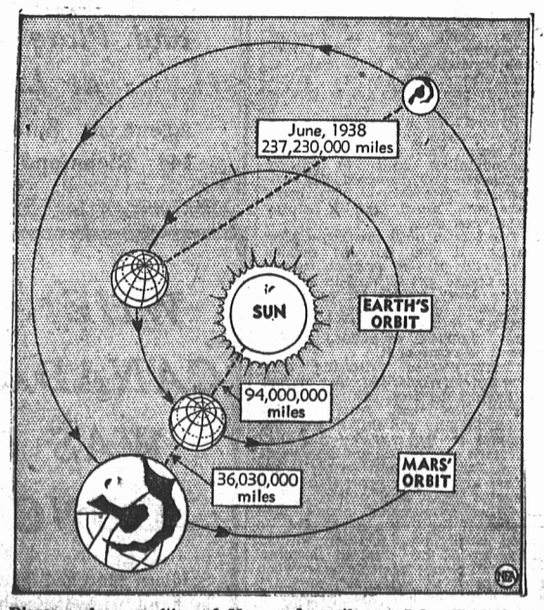

Diagram shows position of Mars and earth on July 27, 1939, compared to respective position in June, 1938. Sketch of Mars shows how planet might appear through telescope. White elliptical area at top is polar ice cap. Black indicates likely areas of vegetation; balance is probably desert. Narrow lines, visible when Mars came close to earth in 1924, may be canals which carry water over planet's surface
