Forest Products Form Topic Of Rotary Talk

National Forest Products Week held the spotlight at the luncheon meeting of Rotary in the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday when George Chandler, president of Chandler Bros., Ltd., as guest speaker spoke on "Wood and wood products."

Chairman was Claude Whitenect with David Scales as co-chairman.

Quoting Canada's Prime Minister in part Mr. Chandler said "On behalf of the Government of Canada, I express the hope that all Canadians will observe Canada's third national forest products week, and thereby gain a fuller understanding of the privileges and responsibilities conferred upon us by our great forest inheritance."

Mr. Chandler said that in dollars and cents the forest products industry accounts for 350,000 employees annually receiving $1,250,000,000 in salaries and wages direct, from the Canadian lumber and products industry.

"There are some 8,000 firms in the wood industry with a net value of production of almost $2,500,000,000. Of total Canadian commodity production, this accounts for one dollar in every seven. It is equalled only by agriculture and outranks mining production by two to one," the speaker stated.

"Forest products account for nearly 30 per cent of Canada's total domestic exports, practically all on the credit side of Canada's international trade," Mr. Chandler said.

NO SHORTAGE

An estimated 585,000,000 cubic feet of accessible standing timber suitable for commercial use is regarded as a guarantee that there need never be a shortage of timber in Canada, because timber is a renewable resource.

"Wood is the key to the whole economic future of British Columbia. It has been estimated that one year's growth of new wood in British Columbia's forests is more than enough to build a 10-foot wide board walk to the moon, some 239,000 miles away," the speaker said.

Turning to New Brunswick, Mr. Chandler said that the forest products industry accounts for 40 cents out of every dollar earned there while in Nova Scotia almost 20 cents of every dollar of income from all sources comes from forest products.

"In addition to giving our province much of its natural beauty, the forests of P.E.I. provide many products which occupy a small but significant place in the economy of the province. Many of us may not realize that over one-third of our province is covered with forests and abandoned farmlands reverting to forest," Mr. Chandler stated.

IN P.E.I.

"During 1960 these forests produced over 8,000,000 board feet of sawlogs and about 72,000 cords of firewood. Fence posts and Christmas trees also form part of our total forest industry. In the same year 44,000 cords of pulpwood were shipped from this province to mills manufacturing pulp and paper. Much of our province's pulpwood is shipped to Europe where the pulpmills differ from Canadian mills," he stated.

"In 1958 forest prooucts accounted for six per cent of our net value of production and created employment for five per cent of our working population," the speaker said.

Mr Chandler described the export of forest products as a source of wealth in addition helping to diversify the Island economy. "The forests give protection to the soil, water and crops upon which the basic provincial industry — agriculture —depends.

FARM WOODLOTS

"Prince Edward Island, with its combination of soil, rainfall and temperature is ideally suited to the growing of trees. Given only the barest protection against fire and livestock grazing the woodlot can provide its owner with some income. Given a reasonable degree of protection and management, the woodlot can become one of the farm's greatest assets, and at the same time provide the owner with a seasonable employment and additional yearly income," the speaker asserted.

The Forestry Division, department of industry and natural resources on request will help woodlot owners to help themselves," he stated.

A recent survey indicated that there are 92 sawmills in P.E.I., nine firms buying pulpwood, seven firms or utilities or government departments buying posts and poles and there are four Christmas tree buyers for the export market.

Mr. Chandler concluded with an interesting review of the uses of wood since the earliest years in Canadian history until the present, referring particularly to the 170 native species of trees of which 40 are utilized for the commercial purpose of another.

CONCERT SOLOIST

The speaker was introduced by the chairman and thanked by the co-chairman. Chairman Frank MacDonald of the committee on the Evangeline Pacific concert under Rotary auspices at Queen Charlotte High School on Monday Nov. 5, reported that this distinguished tenor would arrive here on the preceding Saturday and probably would be soloist at one or more city churches on Sunday.

President, Dr. G. G. Houston presented the club with a banner he had received from Charles Leeson, a recent visitor here from the Islington, Ont., club.

Roy O'Brien of Ottawa and Keith Clark, St. John's, Nfld., were visiting Rotarians and Frank Gaudet, provincial forester, was a guest.

Deficit Forecast Is Made

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Nowlan forecast Monday night a $570,000,000 budget deficit for the current fiscal year—down $175,000,000 from the forecast in the last federal budget speech April 10.

In a speech revising the predictions made last spring by former finance minister Fleming, Mr. Nowlan said current trends indicate budgetary revenues will be $150,000,000 higher than expected—most of the gain resulting from the import surcharges imposed last June.

He forecast that budgetary expenditures for the 1962-63 fiscal year ending March 31 would be $25,000,000 less than were predicted last April.

Despite the $220,000,000 cut in government spending announced last Thursday, Mr. Nowlan said other spending fixed by statute or contracts would be some $175,000,000 higher than expected. Furthermore, he indicated that government departments would leave less of their parliamentary appropriations unspent at year's end.

BOOST FORECAST

This leaves forecast budgetary expenditures at $6,500,000,000 compared with the $6,525,000,000 predicted in the April 10 budget, and boosts the revenue forecast to $5,930,000,000 from $5,780,000,000.

The spending figure does not include an estimated $625,000,000 in pension payments under the non-budgetary old age security program.

Peace Group Is Ordered From Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Twelve Western nuclear disarmers who sailed their ketch Everyman III to Leningrad Saturday for anti-nuclear demonstrations in Russia have been told to leave, a member of the Moscow peace committee said here Monday.

Pavel Afanasiyev, a member of a 10-man Moscow delegation which met the Everyman's crew Saturday night, said the Westerners will not be given visas.

He said the crew had been given food and fuel and told to "sail away, although they have been given permission to stay until the sea weather improves."

The demonstrators are led by America scientist Dr. Erle Reynolds, who has been studying the effects of atomic radiation in Hiroshima.

Oddfellow, Rebekah Lodges Conduct Memorial Service

The annual memorial service of the Independent Order of Oddfellows was held last Thursday evening in the Lodge Rooms on Sydney Street, when Oddfellows, Rebekahs and friends gathered to pay tribute to those of the order, who had died during the past year.

Introductory remarks were heard from Forrest Clow, chairman, followed by singing of the hymn, "Unto the Hills". The scripture reading was by Douglas Theriault, and Arthur Coffin offered the prayer of invocation.

The names of 11 members of St. Lawrence-Wildey Lodge, and five members of Alpha Rebekah Lodge were read by F. W. Smith and Miss Hilda Harper, and silent tribute paid to the deceased members.

Under the direction of Miss Mabel Worth, a solemn ceremony of remembrance was performed by ladies of Alpha Rebekah Lodge, with musical accompaniment by Mrs. J. G. Dennis, and vocal solos by Mrs. J. L. Enman. The well-loved "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" was rendered by Miss June Foster.

Guest speaker was Rev. D. A. Campbell, minister of Zion Presbyterian Church, who impressed upon his listeners that while it is important and desirable to plan and prepare for the future, we must face up to the trials and vicissitudes of the present, and ever hold in our hearts the memory of those whom we have loved long since and lost awhile, whose work and accomplishments we should ever strive to emulate."

The principles of the Oddfellows' Order, such as friendship, fellowship and helpfulness, are greatly needed in the world today, and the speaker suggested that if these principles were practised universally, true brotherhood of man would then become a reality.

Thanks were expressed to Mr. Campbell on behalf of Alpha and St. Lawrence Wildey lodges by Mr. Clow, and all joined in singing "Blest be the Tie that Binds". The benediction and national anthem brought to a close this service of dedication and remembrance.

Arrangements for this service were made by a representative committee from Alpha Rebekah Lodge and St. Lawrence-Wildey Lodge, under the convenership of Mrs. Douglas Gass.

NEHRU

nese attacks have steadily pushed back India's frontier troops, Nehru said India "must carry on the struggle" because she cannot submit to the aggression or domination of a "powerful and unscrupulous" foe.

Nehru's warning came as Indian defence spokesmen announced that Chinese forces had opened a new front in the area of Rima (formerly Chayu), only 20 miles northwest of Burma's border.

AT EASTERN END

This is at the extreme eastern end of India's northern frontiers and 1,400 miles from the western front in Ladakh.

Near Pangong Lake in southeastern Ladakh, Indians lost four out of five defence posts, one of them to an attack by Chinese tanks, the Indians reported.

In this drive the Chinese were threatening Chushul, site of India's only landing strip in the area

The New Chinese news agency reported in Peking meanwhile that Communist troops had "recovered" further positions on the eastern frontier by counter-attacks on the "aggressive" Indian forces.

The agency, quoting Chinese frontier guards in the Tibet region, said fighting was continuing in the area.

Although the fighting was spreading and apparently growing in intensity, there still was no word as to casualties although they have been reported heavy on both sides.

NO FIGURES

The Indian spokesman said it was impossible to give exact casualty figures but in one of the posts in Ladakh, Indian troops inflicted more than 100 casualties on the Chinese before it fell.

Nehru blamed the border clash on "continuing and unabashed aggression by Chinese forces."

He said India now must build up her military strength and asked workers not to indulge in strikes. He also asked all parties to unite and present a solid front.

He said India would continue to follow her policy of non-alignment and the present difficulty could be "met more effectively by following that policy."

Newspapers in the Chinese capital gave prominent play to reports that India is seeking military aid from the United States. China has several times alleged that India has been stepping up pressure on the border as "payment for U.S. aid."

Consideration To Be Given If Aid Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday Canada will give fullest consideration to any request by India for military assistance to repel Communist Chinese attacks.

In a Commons reply to H. W. Herridge, New Democratic Party house leader, Mr. Diefenbaker said India so far has not made any official approach for military equipment.

Canada had no formal military commitment to India. However, that did not deny it the right to defend Chinese attacks in the mountains of northwest and northeast India.

If India, a member of the Commonwealth, should approach Canada for aid, "we will give the matter our fullest consideration," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Herridge had risen to ask the prime minister for comment on reports that an Indian Air Force mission is on its way to Canada to seek military transport aircraft for use in the Himalayan fighting between Indian and Chinese soldiers.

In answer to another question, External Affairs Minister Green said it is too early to make any statement regarding Canada's position on possible United Nations action in the northern frontier regions of India.

Gov't Announces Ch'town To Have Sewage Survey

SUMMERSIDE — Hon. Hubert MacNeill, MD, provincial minister of health, announced yesterday the provincial government has agreed in principle to a sewage survey for the City of Charlottetown.

Negotiations are being carried out with the engineering firms who submitted the three lowest tenders. Dr. MacNeil said the total cost of the survey would be approximately $9,000 of which the provincial government would pay 50 per cent.

The survey is expected to be completed some time next spring. Sewage disposal in Charlottetown harbor has been a problem of concern to the municipality and provincial government for some time.

Last summer contamination of harbor waters reached a high bacterial count and the department of health advised against public swimming in the area waters and issued a warning concerning the degree of contamination.

PM's Suggestion Said Too Slow

WASHINGTON (CP)—A state department spokesman suggested Monday night the urgency of the Cuban situation is too great to await any detailed examination of missile bases by eight non-aligned countries.

This was the department's immediate response to the suggestion by Prime Minister Diefenbaker that representatives of eight non-aligned countries make a trip to Cuba to tell the world of Cuba's military build-up.

"Don't they believe us?" the spokesman asked.

P.Q. Market Problems Outlined By Sangster

By DON MacLEOD
Guardian-Patriot Staff Writer

After a three-day visit to the Sept Iles, Que., area, marketing director Reid Sangster has found that "marketing problems for Island produce, particularly vegetables, do exist there."

He said that three main factors are the cause of market difficulties.

"A new ferry service on the lower St. Lawrence," he said, "enables Northern New Brunswick and Quebec potato interests to get their products into north shore St. Lawrence ports quickly and cheaply. The service has tended to create sort of a peddler's market. This has helped to fill a need which this province has been filling in past years by boat service.

"In Sept Iles, a New Brunswick potato grower, Richard Poitras, has cleared approximately 125 acres of sandy-type soil and this year has grown over 30,000 bags of potatoes. At the moment, it is questionable whether or not this is a paying proposition because of lack of soil fertility, heavy use of fertilizer and importing seed each year.

NEW HIGHWAY

"Another factor is the new highway between Quebec City and Sept Iles, which means that fresh produce can be brought in when required, and the people of Sept Iles do not have to rely on storage facilities as much as they did in the past."

Mr. Sangster emphasized that he felt "we have, by no means, lost our market. We are going through a period of change in that area which has considerably affected our hopes for a future market, but on making inquiries in the area, in the stores where Island products have been readily available, I found that nine out of every 10 persons contacted are asking for Island potatoes.

"There may be a possible solution to our problem in the setting up of an adequate service organization, guaranteeing the availability of Island products. It was brought to my attention by one of the largest wholesalers in Sept Iles that, insofar as Island vegetables are concerned, this may be the workable answer. He mentioned that as a wholesaler he would be very interested in co-operating in such an endeavour.

SERVICE NOT AVAILABLE

"If there is interest here among Island dealers I would be happy to pursue the proposal. There are no such services available at the present time in Sept Iles."

Turning to the potato industry in this province, Mr. Sangster said that both he and Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae are concerned over reports that some Island potato growers are selling at prices below "what should be considered a minimum price range.

"The department of agriculture realizes that more is being done, but feels much care should be taken to control such sales, which can have a future detrimental effect on the whole potato industry.

"Attempts to sell at a low price are generally brought on by a grower's need to pay for harvesting help and settle accounts that must be met. The dealer is caught in a squeeze by a market that is slow at this time of year, due to the fact that late crops in Ontario and Quebec are being pushed on the market.

"It is the feeling of the department that dealers are not in favor of low prices. We are hopeful that growers will not exert more pressure than necessary to sell their potatoes.

"Another factor is that many growers have crops which cannot be stored in frost-free buildings. This has a tendency to force a market not capable of absorbing large quantities. However, after a week or so, some pressure will be eliminated because large seed sales will be in full swing.

"Prices for potatoes in Toronto are still quoted above the minimum which potato interests here feel is as low as a grower should sell for.

"It is pretty well agreed that price-cutting from the farm level on to the consumer will not result in increased sales."
