

Maritime Provinces Political Union Seen

FREDERICTON (CP) — Frank Covert, Halifax lawyer and business man, said here today a strong economic union among the Atlantic provinces could lead to a political union among the sea-side provinces.

Mr. Covert, president of Motors Candy Company, told a luncheon meeting of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council that "insofar as economic union is good for the Maritimes, then we must have political union."

Mr. Covert called for a better understanding of the area's liquor laws and industrial problems.

He said the Atlantic provinces had "the most inadequate liquor laws in Canada." Hotels cannot afford to serve good meals unless they are allowed to serve liquor to their guests.

"This is important to industry," he said, "because the tourist industry brings money into our province to buy the goods we produce."

NON-POLITICAL MATTER

He said it was time for business men to take over and get the political parties not to make the liquor question a political issue, which it is not and should not be.

Atlantic business men should make central Canada understand they are not going to continually pay higher prices for everything they buy from cars to electrical appliances, providing central Canadians with a high standard of living and keeping their industries competitive with those of the U.S.

They should indicate their dissatisfaction with 'money hand-outs, breakwaters and wharves in far away places.'

However, said Mr. Covert, there are things we must do first on our own. We must first realize that industry creates wages, wages create more industry and more wages, and a higher standard of living. We must educate our people to the thinking that industry should pay higher wages, attracting a better class of employee, who spends more money in his own area.

ASKS TAX REAPPRAISAL

To help create a suitable 'economic climate' municipalities must take a hand. Mr. Covert said this could be done through more realistic taxes.

"We must make every town, city and municipality in our provinces realize that this (taxes) is killing the goose that lays the golden egg," the speaker said.

He expressed his faith in the industrial potential of the Atlantic provinces. He said he believed there was adequate opportunity for industry in the Maritimes. He cited examples of existing industry in the area founded by men with nothing but drive and imagination.

Red Deplores Tight Cordons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev bubbled with humor at a glittering Hollywood party Saturday—and then turned serious to deplore the tight cordons of security surrounding his American tour.

Specifically he complained at a decision by security officials not to let him visit Disneyland amusement park.

"What is it, the cholera there or something?" he demanded. "Gangsters taken over the place?"

Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. representative with Khrushchev's party, acknowledged that Khrushchev had been told he should not go to Disneyland.

Lodge explained through a spokesman that Khrushchev had not made up his mind to go until the last minute, when it was too late to take adequate security steps.

A GOOD LOOK

The tone of the party and luncheon may well have been set when actress Elizabeth Taylor, unable to get a satisfactory look at the Soviet premier from her seat, climbed up on the table to stare at him.

Khrushchev said during his speech that the Soviet Union still has a long way to go to catch up economically with the U.S.

But he smilingly predicted it would be done and the Soviet system would leave capitalism in the lurch.

"We will say to you," he declared, "capitalist, our train is going by. Catch up if you can."

But at moments he became serious. He expressed gratitude to those Americans in the past who had helped the Russians in the early days of the Soviet system to develop their industries.

Khrushchev appeared to be speaking entirely of the cuff.

It was a remarkable performance from the start of the luncheon attended by a big gathering of the most glittering society this movie capital has to offer.

INTERRUPTS SPEAKER

Khrushchev frequently interrupted the speaker who preceded him, president Spyros Plato Skouras of 20th-Century Fox.

Khrushchev popped up to argue good-humoredly with the speaker.

In one exchange, it went this way:

Skouras interrupted Khrushchev to point out there were 2,003,000 presidents of American companies. Khrushchev countered with names of leaders in art and industry who rose from workers' ranks. He pointed out a metallurgist chief in his entourage.

"It's a people's monopoly," he remarked. "He (the metallurgist) doesn't possess anything but the pants he wears."

Thank You FOR PAYING YOUR CARRIER PROMPTLY

Collections by your Guardian carrier are timed to provide you convenient service and best meet his school and study schedules. He may begin collections Friday and continue them Saturday.

Your thoughtfulness in paying him the first time he calls to collect will encourage him in prompt service. It will save him extra work for which he would receive no additional profit. It will give him more time for school and other activities . . . and be greatly appreciated.

THE GUARDIAN

STELLARTON, N. S. (CP)—Three boys were injured here Saturday when a crude rocket made from ground-up railway torpedoes and flares exploded in a backyard.

Most seriously injured was 13-year-old Sandy MacPherson, who suffered severe stomach injuries when the smouldering rocket exploded and struck him in the stomach. He was in the operating room at Aberdeen Hospital at nearby New Glasgow for four hours.

Harry Clarke, 10, and Fred Fogarty, 7, were less seriously injured.

Police said the boys made the rocket by stuffing the torpedo caps and flares, used as signal-

Pope Blesses 3,000 Pilgrims

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—Pope John Sunday gave to about 3,000 pilgrims what he called his "last Sunday blessing for this year from this balcony in the papal summer residence."

A church official said the pontiff will return to the Vatican Thursday or Friday.
