Congolese Regroup In Drive On Rebels

From AP-Reuters
LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — While mercenaries and Congolese army troops paused to regroup Sunday on their advance toward the rebel capital of Stanleyville, they were reported to have moved only a few miles south-east of their goal.

There was no word of progress in diplomatic negotiations outside the Congo on the safety of 1,000 or more whites, including about 31 Canadians, held prisoner by the Communist-backed rebel regime of Christophe Gbenze in Stanleyville. Among them is Dr. Paul Carlson, an American medical missionary scheduled to be executed by the rebels today.

The rebel rally in Stanleyville announced Saturday that the rebel capital and said their lives would be in danger in the event of the slightest attack on Stanleyville.

A chance for negotiations appeared to step up his "humanitarian action" to ensure the safety of the hostages. He was regrouping for a drive into Meunville, about 50 Belgian paratroopers a P.P.A. early Monday on Britain's Ascension Island—six hours flying time from Stanleyville. The rebels were dispatched to the island in the South Atlantic last week in the event they were needed to rescue foreign hostages.

Detrouers have been without their two dailies since last July 13.

STRAW BALES BLAZE AT CITY EXCAVATION SITE

It was just like the first of July at the corner of Boston and Weymouth Streets at 8:00 p.m. last evening when fire broke out in bales of fresh straw in the excavation for the new Fina service station on the corner. The fire caused no damage but almost spectacularly for about 15 minutes before the Charlottetown Fire Department extinguished the blaze. The straw was to be used for packing around cement. Officials believe the fire may have been caused by pranks.

SECOND REPORT PRESENTED

New System's Proposed For Education in Quebec

By GERRY McNEIL
QUEBEC (CP) — The Parent royal commission has proposed a supple sandwich-to-sheepskin system of education for Quebec that would replace much of what it describes as the chaotic and disheartening clutter of present structures.

after the third year, and a seventh year if necessary. A secondary level running from Grades 7 to 11, with broad options aimed at pointing up aptitudes, avoiding premature vocational decisions but guiding students toward a career.

THIRD SESSION

of the pastors, she who we call the most loved mother. This and 12th years, with options to guide students toward a university or training for employment in a number of fields.

GESTURE TO BISHOP
The pontiff's proclamation was seen as a gesture to the bishops who unsuccess fully tried to get the title Mother of the Church put into the De Eccliesia decree.

The second volume, presented in the cabinet Friday by Chairman Mgr. Alphonse - Marie - Parent, vice-rector of Laval University, continues the trend toward public responsibility.

PUBLIC STATUS URGED
New structures at the university level also were recommended. Since they would rely heavily on public funds, they should have public rather than private status. Control should rest with no lay or clerical group, though a corporation should act as a buffer against bureaucratic rigidity.

DERIVED 30 TIMES
The assembly of 1,000 bishops worked more on the eight-chapter De Eccliesia decree than on any other document, hammering it out in more than 30 full-scale debates since 1962, sifting thousands of amendments and putting last touches on the text until a few days ago.

SET UP STANDARDS
The report proposes standards to allow entry into any university faculty after no more than 13 years of schooling. The 13 years would include:

McGill, Laval and Montreal universities are designated as institutions with unlimited charters, to concentrate on graduate education, while Sir George Williams, Bishop's and Sherbrooke would be considered as of limited charter, aimed mainly at training undergraduates.

WITNESSED LARGELY
In biblical language, the decree spells out "solidarity" doctrine according to which the world's bishops share responsibility with the Pope in governing the church.
