

National Research Council Plan For P.E.I. Explained

A more direct link with the resources of Canada's famed National Research Council is being launched this week in Prince Edward Island in a plan undertaken jointly by the provincial department of education, the Research and Productivity Council of New Brunswick and the NRC. It was announced Monday at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club of Charlottetown.

Lectures to management, industrial and business leaders in Charlottetown and Summerside are being held this week and next. Visits by technical experts and engineers previously held once a year (usually during the summer) are being stepped up to six a year. Where it once was necessary to apply to Ottawa for help and guidance on technical problems, liaison with the much closer New Brunswick RPC as it is called now is available.

Philip B. Aitken, engineer in charge of the Industrial Services Group of the RPC at Fredericton, guest speaker at the Rotary meeting, outlined the new plan. He and Norman Lower, also of RPC, will deliver the lectures Monday and Tuesday at the Vocational Institute, Charlottetown, and Wednesday and Thursday at the Vocational School, Summerside, this week and next. The lectures are open to anyone wishing to take the course in industrial method study.

AID SMALL INDUSTRIES
Graham Rogers, director of transportation, is acting as liaison with the visiting RPC experts who received a special department grant for the visit.

Mr. Aitken described RPC as "intended to provide smaller industries with research and productivity facilities which larger corporations can afford to set up for themselves."

"RPC has been in effect for the last year and a half in New Brunswick and now under a special grant from the National Research Council in Ottawa these facilities are being extended to Prince Edward Island."

The prince of New Brunswick provides much of the financing, also the NRC. RPC provides expert research from its engineers and scientists on natural resources such as minerals, water facilities, power and the like. Similarly it undertakes research on the productivity side of industry, business and services.

Mr. Aitken described one firm which had sought help. Two of its three machines functioned well. The third was not working properly. RPC experts were called in to discover why.

ELABORATE PROCESSES
"If we can't solve the problem in Fredericton we pass it along to the elaborate processes available at the National Research Council, Ottawa."

As part of its services RPC now has several lecturers who address groups of business men wherever this service is sought. It is this service now being made available to P.E.I., although its technical resources also now are available as well to this province.

Mr. Aitken said, "In recent years the limits on industrial capabilities are being raised daily. It is only a matter of time and money before man reaches the moon and medical experts can exchange parts in human bodies."

"In industry and business similarly it is necessary to keep up with what is going on elsewhere in the world. In order to keep up with this challenge it is necessary very often to alter present methods of procedure. This is where RPC can help."

TICKET SALES
Rotarians were brought up to date on the ticket sales for Rotary-sponsored "I Remember Mama," a play to be presented by the Circle Players Tuesday, March 2, at Confederation Centre.

Harry Bartlett was chairman of the meeting. Guests introduced included Rev. Mel Aitken of Hamilton; K.A. Litzzen of Montreal; A. Leaman and Floyd Buell of Charlottetown.

The Rotary Club extended its congratulations to Mayor Walter Cox, a fellow member of the club, and newly-sworn in as chief magistrate. Congratulations also were given to Rev. Harry Sommers, pastor of St. James Church who shortly will be awarded a degree of Doctor of Divinity by Knox College of the University of Toronto.

President A. Likely said he had extended the club's best wishes to William Peters, former manager of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, recently transferred to Port of Spain, Trinidad. A returning Rotarian is Dr. Tudor Genchiff following a course taken in Scotland.

About 20 Attend 1st Lecture

Some 20 Island business men attended a method study lecture at the Provincial Vocational Institute last evening.

The lecture was delivered by Norman Lower, Fredericton, of the New Brunswick Research and Productivity Council.

These lectures have been arranged through the co-operation of the provincial department of education, the National Research Council and RPC, as the New Brunswick body is known. Last night was the first of a series of four lectures, the second one for people in the Charlottetown area will be delivered tonight and the third and fourth ones next Monday and Tuesday evenings at the PVI.

A similar set of lectures begins on Wednesday in Summerside, at the Vocational High School, for residents in the western sector of the Island.

Method study is described as a simple technique which provides management with a useful tool for improving the way things are done.

Among those in attendance for the initial lecture last evening were representatives of Island fish packers, horse shoe manufacturers, meat packers, wood workers, provincial civil servants, the RCMP and local automobile dealers.

attention and a Red Ensign that fluttered gently in a zippy breeze.

Jean Miquelon, deputy registrar general of Canada, read from the original royal proclamation that declared the new design as the official flag of Canada. A guard of honor snapped to attention, and a battery of RCAF trumpeters raised the instruments to their lips.

But they took no chances with sour notes in below-freezing temperatures. While they held their trumpets high, the sound came from a recording over loudspeakers.

SLIPPED DOWN POLE
RCMP Sergeant A. B. Goswell, 49-year-old native of Brandon, Ont., slowly let the Red Ensign slip down the flagpole.

There wasn't a sound from the still sea of faces that appeared to spill into every nook around Parliament Hill, as English and French prayers were offered by the chains-general of the armed services.

The ensign was folded carefully by the tri-service representatives, and it was marched off the platform. It will be kept in the National Archives.

Within a few moments another tri-service guard marched out on the platform with the new flag. It was slowly unfolded attached to the halyard, and with another recorded blast of trumpets, pulled carefully up the mast by RCMP Constable Joseph Secours, 26-year-old native of Cornwall, Ont.

The guard of honor snapped to attention and a nearby artillery gun thundered out a 21-gun salute as "O Canada" and "God Save the Queen" were played and sung.

CROWD CHEERED
The Peace Tower clock began bonging 12, and the serenity of the dedication ended in a burst of cheers from the crowd. Hundreds of cameras focused on the new flag that hung limply around the mast in still air.

On all federal flagpoles within sight, the new flag was fluttering in breezes that didn't reach ground level.

The governor-general's blue standard flew from the Peace Tower throughout. When he left the grounds, the standard was replaced by the new flag, and another round of cheers went up.

Strange Light Sighted Here

Two local residents spotted a meteor or some other heavenly body burning itself out as it streaked through the atmosphere early Sunday evening.

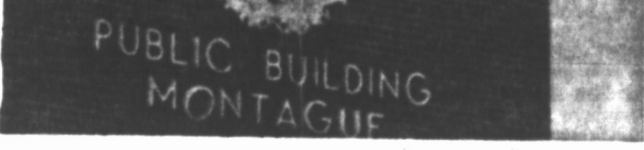

Harry Larter and Stan Dolon, who both operate businesses on Elm Ave., sighted the object around 6:20 p.m. Sunday evening. Earlier around 5:30 a similar object was seen over Cape Breton.

Mr. Larter said he spotted the object when he was stopped at the corner of Nassau Street and Malpeque Road as he was travelling to his business.

He described it as a large green light in the sky which seemed to be falling in behind St. Dunstan's University. He just saw it for a few seconds.

Great Challenge Confronting Bible Society Says Speaker

MONTAGUE — "The Canadian Bible Society is confronted by the greatest challenge in its history, as it shares in the campaign, 'God's Word for a New Age,'" said Rev. Donald M. Quigg, district secretary for Prince Edward Island, in a service held Sunday evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Montague.

The service was conducted by the minister, Rev. Basil Lowery, with the congregations of the United, Baptist and Church of Christ participating.

"We are faced with a critical shortage of Scriptures due to the population explosion, the rapid increase in literacy, and the needs of the Christian Church on the missionary frontiers of the world," said Mr. Quigg. To illustrate further the tremendous need, a film, "Freedom in their Souls", was shown, presenting a picture of the new Africa that is emerging, politically, educationally, and industrially.

Also included in the service was the annual meeting of the Montague branch of the Bible Society. The new executive was installed by Mr. Quigg, and consists of the following: president, W. D. Fraser; vice-president, James W. King; secretary, Mrs. Lillian MacDonald; treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Nelson; with the ministers of the Montague churches members ex officio.

The choir of the church, under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Waterworth, sang the anthem "Praise The Lord." Special music was provided by a trio, with Malcolm and Donald Munro and Alan Cameron, who sang "Nearer, Still Nearer" and "Deeper, Deeper."

Hitchhikers Are Warned

City police have issued a warning to hitchhikers on Elm Avenue and Malpeque Road, particularly to students who gather on the corner of Elm Avenue and Euston Street and on Malpeque Road.

Police say four accidents have been directly attributed to hitchhikers.

Unless their appeal to students to desist from hitching rides is heeded immediately action will be taken, they state. In most cases the accidents resulted when cars suddenly stopped to pick up roadside pedestrians and the following cars slid into the rear ends.

Some students, a policeman said, are walking so far out on the travelled portion of the street and highway as to virtually force motorists to halt. If the practice continues charges will be brought against offenders for such offences as walking on the wrong side of the highway or such other complaints as the police may lay before the magistrates.

One policeman said pointing out the danger involved to the students themselves appeared useless and something had to be done by authorities before some were seriously injured.
