Teachers Convention At Uigg Yesterday

The teachers of Southern King's County held their annual fall convention at Uigg yesterday with James MacBeth presiding as chairman and Mrs. Ernest Morrison as secretary.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and adopted. The following committees were then named: Nominations: Alfred Cairns, Mrs. Hazel MacPhee; resolutions: Fred Shaw, Mrs. Louise Stewart; question box: Miss Louise MacLeod, Donald MacKenzie; press: Louis Herring, Mrs. Gertrude Whiteaway.

Mr. Leslie Stewart, a member of the E.I.T.F. Board of Governors gave a report of the year's activities.

In concluding Mr. Stewart asked teachers to help improve the Federation with their suggestion for its betterment.

Mr. Malcolm MacKenzie went over the supplement to the course of studies with the teachers, pointing out the changes from last year. Grades 7, 8 and 9 have new texts; however sufficient of the old texts are available for grade nine.

He stressed the fact that not enough work was being done in composition in the elementary grades and, as a result, the students were unable to write proper English in the more advanced grades.

Miss Wilson of the Health Department complimented the teachers on their interest in the pupil's health. She then introduced Dr. Brian J. O'Meara, who spoke on dental hygiene. He stressed the importance of nutrition, oral hygiene, and early dental treatment as the three important phases of dental care.

Experiments have shown that decay in children's teeth begin at three, and further teeth decay has been reduced 80 percent by having teeth brushed after every meal. Miss Hill, Red Cross representative, stressed the teaching of citizenship through interchange of articles with pupils of other Provinces and countries. She emphasized that every school should have a first aid kit, and further to promote first aid, a special course would be conducted during the Christmas holidays for the teachers and any one who wished to attend.

Leaving the hall, the teachers went to the school for a demonstration in writing by Mr. H. B. MacLean of Vancouver, author of the MacLean method of writing. Mr. MacLean gave a very interesting address on the mechanics of the art of writing, and followed this up with a practical demonstration of how writing should be taught.

Alternative Proposals

In order to remove these objections, the following plan is proposed in the report: "1. The Province to buy the City's Bonds to cover the capital cost, which bonds will be forty year serials. The interest and annual redemption of principal to be paid by the City to the Province. In addition and so that the City suffer no loss in the early period and to avoid one charge for services in the City and another in the newly acquired area, the rate for services now charged in the City to apply to the new area. The difference or deficit on operations between revenue of the water and sewer department and the cost of operation including debt charges to be repaid by the Province to the City during the first fifteen years following amalgamation of the areas or until such time as or if the system operates with a balanced budget. The City and Fringe Area also to agree that the full tax rate of the city be not imposed at the first but be built up in increments annually for fifteen years when the tax rate will be common for the whole of Greater Charlottetown."

(Mr. Hyndman stated that Mr. Wightman felt that a monthly fee of $5.00 per home owner in the suburban area would pay for the costs of the systems. In order that the suburban resident pay the same as the City person for the services he suggested that the Provincial Government make up the difference.)

The second possible solution is thus given in the report: "2. The incorporation of the areas 'a' 'b' and 'c' as a separate municipal entity. In this event the citizens in the 'Fringe Area' must be willing to proceed with incorporation and all householders must become users of the services to be furnished. In addition the Provincial Government must, for the initial years that the systems come into operation, lend some financial assistance. Again it will be necessary to finance the project over a term of forty years as the Province would have to buy the bonds of the new municipality who in turn would repay them in annual installments plus interest.

"The cost of complete water supply, fire protection service and sewage collection and disposal would cost probably $5.00 per month for each single house or domestic establishment. These payments would constitute the revenue of the combined systems. Any deficit between this annual revenue and the interest and bond redemption together with maintenance of the system to be absorbed by the Province for the first ten years at which time the system should be self-sustaining. It is to be noted that this arrangement causes no increase in the general tax rate at all and as it should be. Water supply and sewage disposal are public utilities and those that benefit should carry the cost. Vacant land as it is built upon will in turn carry its share."

Sewage Problem

"A general sewerage system should be constructed to serve the total area with the view of constructing such portion as will take care of present development and allowing for extension as the area builds up in the future. It has been pointed out, three drainage areas exist and normally would require at least three outfalls. Area 'A' will require an outfall to the North River and area 'B' will require an outfall to the Hillsborough River. Area 'C' would normally be served by the construction of a trunk outlet down the Spring Park Brook Valley and if possible enter the existing City system and discharge through their facilities. "This matter was discussed briefly with City authorities and the information received was to the effect that the City mains in the Spring Park valley were inadequate in capacity and that further, as the contributory sewage was pumped, their pumping facilities were now overtaxed without handling any addition in volume. There appears to be no obstacle to the construction of outfalls to the North or Hillsborough Rivers and in view of the inadequacy of the City system to handle sewage from area 'C' it is the writer's belief that it would be better to pump the sewage from this area into the North River outfall system and this brief is based on that idea. "The matter of discharging raw sewage into these rivers has been given consideration and in view of good bathing beaches on the shores, it is the writer's feeling that some degree of treatment should be used such as sedimentation of sewage to retain the solids and the chlorination of the effluent before discharge to these

Survey Necessary

The report concludes: "One of the two above plans should solve this problem. In the event that there is sufficient interest to proceed with this project, it will be necessary to carry out complete instrumental survey, design the systems, prepare the construction drawings and specifications before tenders can be called for. This will cost about $10,000 and the writer could, if desired, have all this work done and be ready to award a contract for the coming spring and thereafter supervise the work to completion. "The whole matter of future action appears to be one for the Government of Prince Edward Island to determine. "A project such as this to be financed over a term of forty years. The conventional bond dealer or financial house, while interested in municipal bonds or debenture based on a maturity of twenty years, is entirely uninterested in issues runned forty years. The writer hap-
