Poor girl. How it would have thrilled her heart, if she could have known the meaning of these mysterous beacons.

She passed into the chapel, leaning upon the arm of the man whom she loathed, and whom she was to marry.

The obedient Priest was seated within the railing of the altar.

Hans hastened up the broad isle, and as soon as he reached the altar, he said:

'Proceed with the ceremony—we are in haste.'

The Priest arose, and commenced the service.

The solemn, measured tones of his vioce sounded in Viola's ears like a funeral knell.

When the first signal fire flamed up against the sky, Carl Knipper and the Blue Brother were sitting at the foot of the tall, dried pine, that the former worthy had prepared for an answering signal.

Carl had been relating to the soldier the intended marriage of the Patroon, and he added:

'It will kill Bryan Blonday as surely as the halter of the king.'

'Oh! if they would only come to-night,' exclaimed the Blue Brother 'It would be worth a sceptre to spoil this unhallowed match. I feel deeply for young friend.'

'Perhaps they may come, said Carl.

'But why does this girl consent to the wedding, if she really loves Bryan?'

'To save his life.'

'How?'

'Hans swore he would execute him forth with, if she did not at once consent to the union.'

'A curse upon him——'

The trooper was interrupted by Carl, who exclaimed

'They have come.'

'True' yelled the trooper, leaping to his feet, and drawing from his pocket the materials for a light.

'We are not to late!' cried Carl.

In a short time fire was procured and placed at the base of the pine. As soon as the flames commenced ascending, Carl said:

'Now for the boat.'

And they ran to the river bank.

Carl leaped into his light skiff, and cried:

'Now, my good fellow, the time for energy has arrived I will hasten to your friends, and urge them forward without delay. You proceed to the chapel at once, and if the accursed ceremony has commenced interrupt it. You can easily do this, for Carl Knipper has not lived with the Patroon for so many years, without knowing his character. If you maintain your ground firmly, he will not dare to molest you. In a little time you shall have friends at your back.'

'Excellent!' cried the trooper. 'Speed Carl.'

'Pretend to be a relative of the girl's, and forbid the match,' replied Carl, and he dashed his oars into the water, and shot out into the river.

'Who would suspect so much cunning from such a stolid exterior,' exclaimed the Blue Brother, as he turned and walked swift ly towards the settlement

Occasionally he turned to gaze upon the fires.

'Ah! they blaze gloriously,' he exclaimed his eye kindling with animation. 'It is a glorious spectacle.'

Through the thronged streets he hastened Many accosted him, asking the meaning of the lights, but he heeded them not, and passed on towards the chapel

Discovering the light he boldly entered the door.

Hans and Viola were before the altar, and the Priest was reading the ceremony.

The Blue Brother stalked at once to the altar

Hans heard his heavy and determined step, and he turned to gaze upon the intruder

'Hold!' cried the trooper in tones of deep and startling accents. 'I forbid this union.'

The Priest ceased his reading and looked up in dismay.

'Who are you, that interrupts the sanctity of this place thus irreverently?' asked Hans, pale as the snow, and deeply enraged.

'You will know presently,' replied the trooper. 'At present content yourself with the knowledge that this accursed purpose will not be accomplished. I forbid this union.'

'Proceed,' cried Hans sternly, turning towards the Priest, and grasping Viola's arm tightly.'

'At your peril,' said the trooper, eyeing the pale face of the preacher. 'At your peril.'

The Priest was silent.

'Do you not hear me.' Hans almost roared. 'I repeat to you proceed with the ceremony. What right has this wretch to interfere with my affairs? Complete the ceremony.'

'Not another word,' said the trooper, drawing from his bosom a long knife, the bright blade of which flashed in the dim lamp light. 'This woman is already the wife of another in the eyes of Heaven and of earth. She is forced into this mockery of a proceeding by the artifices and falsehood of Hans Van Kempen. I will not permit the sacrifice.'

'And who are you,' thundered Hans, fearfully enraged, and trembling lest he should yet be foiled in his plans. 'Answer me, who are you?'

The clear strains of a bugle, soft and mellowed by the distance, stole through the half-lighted chapel, and died away in gentle cadence in the surrounding wood.

The eye of the Blue Brother instantly brightened and a smile of confident assurance lit up his features

'I am your prisoner's friend, your master. I am one that stands between you and your victim.'

Hans felt that the rage that boiled within was impotent The tall, athletic form of the trooper, the glance of his eye, and the gleaming weapon in his hand, were conclusive testimony that he was not to be trifled with. A heavy pressure upon his arm, and the gradual sinking of her form, told him that Viola had fainted.

The mind of Hans was prompt and subtle in emergencies. He raised the form of the girl in his arms, placed it within the altar, and then rushed to the door of the church where a party of his servants were standing.

He cried:

'Arouse my friends, and bid them hasten to the chapel. Run at once for a file of soldiers. Here is treason in our midst.'

The mandate of the imperious patroon was obeyed. A file of soldiers were called, and in a little time the chapel was again surrounded by the gaping settlers.

As soon as Hans departed for the door the rooper unceremoniously entered the altar, and bore from thence the body of Viola He removed it to a distant corner of the room, and laid it gently upon a seat, and said:

'Poor girl, she has fainted. I will not attempt to restore her, for it is better that she should remain insensible during the scene that is to follow.

The Most Reliable Friend

Holloway's Ointment

Its Searching & Healing Properties are known and recognized throughout the World.

The number of years this invaluable Ointment has stood the test of public opinion, (and the longer known the better appreciated) is a testimony of itself more convincing than anything that could be written in praise of its truly wonderful healing properties In the cure of bad legs, bad breasts, sores, wounds, and ulcers, its effect is marvellous For ring-worm, scald-head, scrofula, and diseases of the scalp generally, there is no remedy to be compared to it When assidiously rubbed upon the skin (previously well bathed in warm water this Ointment is quickly absorbed into the system and cleanses, in its passage, every part to which it is applied

Glandular Swellings, Mumps Bronchitis, Quinsey, Sore Throats and Diptheria.

In any of the above diseases, immediate and permanent relief is obtained by effectually rubbing this detergent Ointment, twice a day, upon the neck, chest and back Its acts upon the very mainsprings of life; for through the glands pass all new matter required for the body's reparation and all old particles detrimental to its preservation The Ointment, used conjointly with Holloway's Pills, will act so searchingly and certainly as to effect cures in the most hopeless cases

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Contracted and Stiff Joints.

Many thousands of martyrs from the above complaints have found life almost unsupportable; yet if Holloway's Ointment be briskly and perseveringly rubbed upon the parts affected, ease may be safely guaranteed, especially if the pores of the skin be previously opened by fomentations with warm water The gross humors require expulsion from the system; it is therefore necessary to have recourse to Holloway's admirable Pills, which, by purifying and strengthening the system, greatly assist the operation of the Ointment and facilitate and confirm they cure

Bad Legs, Bad Breasts, and Ulcerations of all kinds.

There is no medicinal preparation in the world which may be so thoroughly relied upon, in the treatment of the above ailments, as Holloway's Ointment Nothing can be so simple or safe as the manner in which it is applied, or its action on the body, both locally and constitutionally The Ointment, rubbed around the part affected, enters the pores just as salt enters meat It quickly penetrates to the source of the evil and drives it from the system

Erysipelas and Scrofulous Sores

In all irritations of the skin, sores, ulcers, burns or scrofulous enlargements of any kind, Holloway's Ointment presents a ready and easy means of care It manifests a peculiar power in restraining inflammation, removing stagnation, cooling the heated blood, and checking all acrimonious and unhealthy discharge

Diseases attendant on Childhood.

Diseases incident to early life fall more under the management of the mother than the medicine man Holloway's Ointment should therefore be regarded by her as a "Household Treasure," as it never fails in bringing out the rash in measles and scarlatina; and for the removal of all skin diseases its effect is miraculous In cases of whooping cough and croup, this invaluable Ointment should be rubbed twice a day upon the throat and chest, and the youngest invalid will derive therefrom the most soothing relief Two or three of Holloway's famous Pills, reduced to a powder, will augment the curative powers of the Unguent

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bad Legs	Corns (soft)	Rheumatism
Bad Breasts	Cancers	Scald heads
Burns	Contracted and Stiff Joints	Sore Nipples
Bunions		Sore Throats
Bite of Moschetoes and Sand Flies	Elephantiasis	Skin Diseases
	Fistulas	Scurvy
