Eastern Notes

The fine roads have given the farmers an opportunity to secure their winter's work. Business is dull in these parts. It was hoped that the advent of a liberal government would end the cry of "hard times," but considering present prices of farm produce, it is a low great disappointment!

There was one thing mentioned in your paper of last week which our politicians would do well to consider, i. e. the extension of the telephone to East Point. That is something we need very badly.

The Eastern Gem Lodge, which meets at North Lake on Saturday night of each week, is progressing and was never so strong as at present. The members of Great Eastern Lodge Kingsboro intend celebrating their anniversary, on the night of Thursday 25th inst., by a free entertainment. On the programme we notice a dramatic dialogue, "Loved and Lost." In this act will appear the developed talent of Mrs. Ennis Bailey, Miss Ennis McVane, Miss Mary C. Bailey and Mr. Stanley McVane. A good time may be expected.

The temperance people are actively preparing for the plebiscite promised by Mr. Laurier. The vocal talent of the young people of North Lake, is being trained under the efficient care of Mr. J. McInnis.

Mr. C. C. Dingwell has secured the contract of building a new residence for Mr. J. E. Fraser. This building is to be heated with a hot air furnace, and fitted with all other modern improvements. Mr. John Arsenault is the architect.

A meeting was held in North Lake school-house on the evening of Jan. 29th, for the purpose of organizing a farmers club. Mr. E. H. Morrow was appointed President. Mr. W. H. Morrow Secretary. The object of the club is the importation of pure bred stock. The president has already some very fine animals, among which is the fine Jersey Bull, Polyphemus, and the Cotswold Ram, Khal-manthus. The Secretary has also some very fine imported stock.

Mr. Everett Fraser has caught an immense quantity of smelts and eels, and also some very fine trout. The fish were brought by Mr. E. D. Fraser, who ships them direct to Boston.

The large number of people, who assembled on North Lake ice, to see the race between Mr. Wallace Fraser's Billy Minnie II, and Mr. E. Bridge Morrow's mare, Lucy K., were much disappointed. Shortly after starting the latter threw a shoe, fell and hurt her knee. The race was postponed until a later date.

Our school at South Lake is progressing under the tuition of Miss Linnie Dingwell.

Mr. Ivan McDonald has returned from Boston, accompanied by one of the fair sex, and taken up his residence among us. We wish him success in his new home.

A happy event took place at the residence of Mr. Angus McPhee, Elmhurst, on the eve of February 2nd, when Mr. E. J. Dingwell and Miss Mary McPhee were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. James Furlong. The presents were numerous and beautiful. Among them was a silver butter cooler, presented to the bride by Mr. J. B. Conway. We extend to the happy couple our hearty congratulations.

DR. GUTHRIE.—The lecture given last evening by Dr. F. F. Fallerton in the basement of Zion Church was not so largely attended as it would have been were it not for the storm which prevailed. But those who did attend thoroughly enjoyed the intellectual feast to which they were treated. The lecturer dealt with the life of Dr. Guthrie, and through it ran a rich fund of Scottish humor. At the conclusion of the lecture Rev. Mr. Fallerton was tendered a hearty vote of thanks to which he replied in fitting terms. Rev. D. Sutherland presided at the request of the W. C. T. U. under whose auspices the lecture was delivered.

LOUIS RUBENSTEIN'S ADVENTURE.—Louis Rubenstein, the champion fancy skater of the world, was in the city yesterday, en route to Montreal. Mr. Rubenstein has been in Charlottetown, P. E. Island, for a few days, and while there gave a short exhibition of fancy skating in one of the rinks to a large crowd of people. While returning from Charlottetown via the Capes on Monday, the champion skater fell from the ice, and on a piece of broken ice, and half of his body went into the cold water. He was pulled out, however, and had about two hours' walk in his wet clothes before he got a chance to change. He luckily escaped catching cold.—St. John Telegraph.

FOR THE FAMINE FUND.—The concert in Howe's Hall, Brackley Point, last evening was very successful, and the performers as well as performers were well sung by the Misses Dodi, Collins, McLean and McKay, and Misses Cotton and Dodi sang a duet in excellent voice. The readings by Miss McKenzie and Mr. T. A. McLean were also splendidly rendered and deserved an encore. Dr. Maloney played a cornet solo in his usual style, and Mr. James Henderson gave a violin solo. Both numbers were greatly appreciated and generously applauded. The vocal trio by Misses Cook, Lewis and Wheat was also a number, and well deserved the applause it received. There was a fair attendance notwithstanding the storm, including a large number from the city. The sum of $27 was realized.

A SNOW ESCAPE.—When the west bound train arrived at St. Louis station on Tuesday night last a crowd had assembled on the platform. As the train was about to start John Perry, brother of the acting inspector of Fisheries, either having been jostled by the crowd or from having made a misstep, was thrown from the platform and was on the point of pitching headlong beneath the cars. Edward Hackett, M. P., who was standing on the platform, saw something of his great strength and presence of mind by seizing Perry and rescuing him from what, in all probability, would have been an untimely death. The train pulled out the bystanders freely came during the late election trial, as well as upon the latter's timely rescue of Perry.

SOCIAL AT CARDIGAN BRIDGE.

The Social in aid of All Saints Church, Cardigan Bridge, took place on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16th, and was a decided success. The weather was all that could be desired. The bidding was lively, some of the baskets going as high as $4.00. Whilst the purchasers were enjoying the contents of the baskets the following articles were disposed of and fell to the persons whose names are opposite:—
Manicure Set, Annie B. Pratt, Lot 66.
Gold Watch, John Alley, Cardigan B.
Sofa Cushion, Lillie McMillan, Brook-lyn, N. Y.

The pastor and people of All Saints Church desire to express their thanks to all those who assisted in making their social such a success.

ANNANDALE JOTTINGS.
The winter is passing away very quietly with very little snow. Great quantities of ice are off the harbor, and horses are crossing between the wharves, which is only done during an exceptionally cold winter.

The liquor traffic is dull here, owing to the vigorous action of Prosecutor Bears. Verily this is an age of pie socials, five coming off around here this winter. One was in aid of the W. M. A. Society, one in aid of the Butter Factory, one in aid of the Presbyterian Church, one in aid of the Big Run School, and one at Rev. F. A. Kidson's last night, gotten up by the members of the Annandale Baptist Church and Mr. Kidson's friends around Dundas and Annandale, at which the sum of $25 was realized. Mr. Kidson was also given a nice donation of groceries, flour and meat and other things very useful in a family.

Politics are very dull just now, especially the Grinstead. As for Freddy Peeper, all he there is no low as to do his reverence; and to want their right they have sent subscription lists to all the other School Districts for the India fund, while we get none. But then we're so mean we wouldn't give any—but the day of reckoning is at hand.

ONE OF THE DOGS WAKENED.

Sir,—The Hon. Daniel Davies in last week's Examiner, under the heading "Do not wake sleeping dogs," justifies, the high-handed action of his nephew, Hon. L. H. Davies, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in dismissing without cause a lighthouse keeper at Murray Harbor. Mr. Davies, who does he mean by the heading of his letter? Does Mr. Davies wish the public to forget that the late Conservative government of which John A. Macdonald was the honored leader, did not apply the axe to his brother the Hon. Benjamin Davies, Paymaster of the Prince Edward Island Railway, who was retained in his office by Sir John A. Macdonald, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Davies' son, the present Minister of Marine, was session after session, opposing every action of Sir John's government. Had he read Pope's life of Sir John, wherein it is stated that every six months he was absent from duty under full pay, when by a stroke of the pen he could have refused the request and without superannuation. Are these facts, the sleeping dogs that Mr. Davies does desire to wake? If he thinks so, he will be mistaken; for the independent electors will not only wake them, and get out which they will send after Mr. Davies and his party of executioners who are now thinking for the sweets of office.

How different is the treatment accorded by Mr. L. H. Davies now towards his political opponents; and what a contrast to the treatment accorded towards the party which he now represents! A day of reckoning will come when his actions are discontinued by every right-thinking voter, and they will be found to be against the Liberals on account of the removal of every efficient official.

THE CURFEW BYE-LAW.

Sir,—Your correspondent "Curfew" makes a weak defence for the introduction of that bye-law in this City. (But perhaps the defence is as strong as could be put forward. He mistakes however the fact that the new bye-law prohibits boys and girls from being abroad after the bell has struck. The fact is that no notice whatever is taken of the bell, and the whole affair is treated as a piece of non-sense emanating from some good ladies whose intentions may be better than their wisdom. But as an educator of how to disrespect laws the Curfew bye-law will be a grand object lesson suitable for a place in the Kindergarten school. Whoever framed the bye-law however has most admirably succeeded in making its provisions so that no one can enforce them. If a person were allowed to imagine what the framer meant, it might be said that on every evening after eight o'clock in certain months, all children should be out the streets until a certain hour of the following morning, when they would be allowed to go to bed. But the bye-law says nothing of the kind but reads instead that after eight o'clock of the 1st of November the children are to be rung off the streets and it does not say when they are allowed back on them. Again the Town Bell is to be rung. By whom is it to be rung? By the Mayor? No. By the Marshal? No. By each of the Council members as used to be the case in "ye olden time" when they sat with the Mayor trying simple drunks and after hour vagrants? Upon this question the bye-law is silent, and on this point the weaker than the Scott Act which does name a prosecutor but who never starts a prosecution. Will the public next be asked to employ a bell ringer, as they are now asked to employ and pay Matthews? We shall see. Out of all this the responsible parties are making a farce of the law, such as it is, for every one knows that it is not in force and cannot be for some days after its publication, yet every evening the solemn farce of striking eight o'clock on the bell is made, and it is responded to by boys and girls from the children all over the city.

Even if the law was all right how do its promoters imagine it can be carried out, and has the idea struck them how many policemen would be needed to see that his command in order to escort home every child found abroad after the prohibited hour. Put his hands on a child to arrest him or her no policeman dare do, for he would soon get taught that citizens have rights as well as policemen, as these gentlemen have found out before their cost, yet to escort home these children is all the police dare or can do, for the bye-law only authorizes such constable to take the child to their homes! If the policemen attempt to perform this extraordinary duty they will be kept walking for the good of their health as it will not be long before the children will discover the extent of Mr. Policeman's power, and the fun in giving an officer a walk by their side.

In conclusion, I would suggest to the City Council to pass a bye-law compelling the closing of all clubs and other evening places say at nine o'clock every evening, and that all married men be in their homes say at ten o'clock to look after their children, and let a curfew bell ring at an early hour next morning as a warning for all to get up of bed, and if this part of the bye-law is not enforced let the parents be fined. A bye-law of this kind would be as sensible as the present one and saved just about as much while it would be a little more efficacious and that account might better suit certain people.

Our buyer may not have made as many trips as some of our competitors, but he has made enough to know that he can get just as good goods and get them for less money by paying the hard cash than others who get them on six or twelve months time. Our importations consist chiefly of goods that cannot be procured in Canada, and our buyer would think twice before he would bring an article from the Old Country and use it merely as an advertising medium when he could get a much superior article on the Island for the same money.—Prowse Bros. 42—21.

SYLVESTER McDONALD AGAIN.

Think He is Clothed With a Mysterious Influence of the Supreme Being.

(Halifax Evening Mail.)

Sylvester McDonald, whose reported faith cures have produced a small ripple of excitement in Dartmouth and Halifax within a fortnight past, is an interesting personage in the eyes of the curious. But as a matter of fact he is an ordinary individual only, though shaven and clad in a semi-clerical manner. He affects mystery to a large degree, but is shrewd enough in the presence of professional men and others to throw aside this application and profess the utmost willingness to discuss his alleged powers and faith cures.

An Evening Mail reporter accused McDonald last night on the Dartmouth ferry. The reporter's first polite good evening was unheeded by McDonald as though unheard. The P. E. Island "doctor" strode by without turning his head. The newspaper man met him again a minute afterwards, and this time McDonald came to attention. He shook hands. He denied that he had ever talked to talk to newspaper men. He said he was prepared to talk with anybody. He denied that he had performed miracles or worked wonders. He cured some and could not cure others. He was asked what were the facts of a case reported in Dartmouth of a dumb girl having been caused to speak after 23 years' silence by the mysterious influence of his power. McDonald said the girl in question had never been able to speak. She could mumble words. He claimed he enabled her to speak quite clearly.

This case was previously investigated by the reporter. It was found that at first the girl's speech had appeared to improve. The wish of the girl's relatives was mainly father to the thought that it had. The improvement after a few days was not so apparent, and is now quite impalpable. That is the report received. McDonald is a man of 35 years or thereabouts. He wears a round, soft felt hat, black cloth overcoat, white muffer, and at present is clean shaven. He is rather tall, well built, has dark eyes and a somewhat nervous manner. He is, however, quite cool and unembarrassed in conversation.

He said to the reporter: "Some people think I can in this make money. That is a mistake. I will pursue my calling even if there is no money in it at all. Bread and butter is all I want."

The reporter asked him if his cures, if there were any authenticated, might not be secured by hypnotism, mesmerism, or some natural rather than supernatural cult which he possessed naturally to a greater degree than the average mortal.

He said: "No. It is nothing of the kind. I have a gift of feeling direct from God. It is not by hypnotism."

It is understood that it is not a faith cure which McDonald claims to possess. Whether his patrons have faith or not he considers it possible for him to cure certain forms of disease. He does it by "feeling."

He thinks he is vested with a divine influence which flows from his hands to the afflicted parts of bodies.

McDonald showed his hands. He does not see them glowing. There is nothing particular about them different from other people's hands.
