Inquest

Studebaker sedan, the latter resting on its hood. The deceased was lying on a blanket at the intersection of the road. He was able to identify himself to the police. An ambulance rushed him to the Charlottetown Hospital.

Const. MacDonald then produced several photographs indicating the relative positions of the two vehicles and the damage caused to each. He also produced a sketch showing the positions of the roads converging at the intersection. He told of finding a bottle of beer and a bottle of rum which he had been told by one of the bystanders had been thrown in the grass by one of the occupants of the overturned car.

He ordered Elmer Richard and Gerald Gallant into the police car and upon instructions from Dr. J. R. Murchison took them to the Charlottetown Hospital. Const. MacDonald said that both men smelled of liquor and neither of them would state who was driving the car. Gerald Gallant claimed the liquor was his.

Dr. J. R. Murchison of Hunter River told of being called to the scene of the accident and of finding the deceased lying on the road. Upon superficial examination he noted that the victim was suffering from cuts to the face and head. His ribs on the right side were crushed in, his blood pressure was abnormally low and the doctor gave him little chance of reaching the hospital alive.

Questioned as to the condition of Anthony Gerald Gallant and Elmer Richard, he said that they complained of sore knees and he ordered them to be taken to hospital for further examination. He saw no evidence of liquor on these men. One limping badly and the other was supporting him, he said.

OTHER DRIVER TESTIFIES

Clarence Henry Gallant, carpenter and driver of the 1937 Chevrolet told of returning from early Mass at Hunter River. When he approached the intersection at Cudmore's corner he moved his car slowly towards the intersection so as to see in either direction. Before he knew what happened, he was hit on the right front wheel and was thrown into the back seat of his car.

After the dust cleared away, he saw the Studebaker car with its four wheels in the air and saw Alfred Rene Gallant walking towards him. He saw that the injured man was about to collapse and ran to hold him up. Feeling weak himself, he called for help and Mr. Cudmore, the store keeper, grabbed a blanket out of the Chevrolet car and laid him on the road. Clarence Henry Gallant said he was suffering from a pain in his back and later fainted in Mr. Cudmore's store.

The witness said that he had seen a bottle of beer under the hood of the Studebaker car. He did not know the deceased nor did he know the other two occupants of the overturned car, who were sitting, on the bank of the road. He was taken in the ambulance to the Charlottetown Hospital with the deceased, Alfred Rene Gallant.

Mr. E. M. Cudmore storekeeper at Oyster Bed Bridge told of hearing a crash. He corroborated the evidence of Clarence Gallant in so far as the condition of the deceased. Mr. Cudmore said that he saw a bottle of beer and what looked to him like a bottle of rum near the Studebaker car. He would not pass an opinion as to the condition of any of the accident victims.

J. Leonard Peters and Mrs. Earl Clow of Oyster Bed Bridge told of seeing the Studebaker car immediately prior to the crash. Mr. Peters said that the car passed him a short distance from the intersection and in his opinion the operator seemed to have control of the vehicle. He placed his speed at about 40 miles per hour. Mrs. Clow said that the machine was travelling fast on the left side of the road when it passed her.

UP ALL NIGHT

Anthony Gerald Gallant who was a passenger in the Studebaker car in which the deceased met his death testified that on Saturday night abotu 10 p.m. he met Vincent Pineau and the two decided to hire Elmer Richard to take them to Charlottetown. They met Richard in his car. With him at the time was the deceased, Alfred Rene Gallant. The four started for Charlottetown and went to a bootlegger's where they got a couple of beers.

Upon further questioning he admitted getting a case of beer and two pints of rum from "Slick" Rhynes near the Water Works. They started for home, got four chicken sandwiches at "Minnies" Restaurant at Rustico, after which they decided to go to Henry Pineau's where they drank more of the liquor. Vincent Perry fell asleep as did Rene Gallant. Some time early in the morning, Rene woke up and asked Elmer Richard to take them to town again.

On the second trip to Charlottetown they again called at Rhynes' where they got another quart of rum. After visiting several places in Charlottetown where he did not know the names of the people, he said they started for home. He did not know the time. He thought they were driving about 35-40 miles per hour. Elmer Richard was driving all the time. On the way out he said that they stopped in a lane in the woods and had a sleep.

Joseph Elmer Richard the driver of the fatal car stated that he was employed at the Canadian National Railway Stores in Charlottetown and lived in Rustico. He told of being hired by Rene Gallant to take him and Gerald and Vincent Pineau to Charlottetown He corroborated the evidence of Gerald Gallant during the first trip to town and back. He said that he did not join the others in drinking and did not take a drink until he got home. He then took a couple of drinks of rum and later a bottle of beer at Henry Pineau's.

He said that he was urged to return to town early in the morning and agreed. On the second trip they got a quart of rum from Rhynes and made several calls around town. He told of being stopped by a City Policeman as he was coming from the C.N.R. Stores at about 5:30 a.m. and as a result left his car on Water Street and took a taxi.

WANTED TO COME HOME

He urged the other members of the party to make up their minds about coming home and told them if they did not come he was going without them. He said they started for home and drove at a normal rate of speed on Route 2 to Milton and then on Route 7 to where the accident occurred. He said they made no stops whatsoever. When he was reminded of Gerald Gallant's evidence wherein he stated that they stopped in a lane for a sleep. He said that he did not recall such a stop but admitted that it might have occurred. Richard said he had no drinks, except the ones that he took on the previous night. He said that he had had no sleep since the previous Friday night.

Const. Hugh MacKinnon of the Charlottetown Police said that on Sunday morning at 5:40 a. m. he noticed a couple of men coming from the freight shed. "On account of a series of breaks that have occured in this area, I stopped them and asked them what they were doing," said the police officer.

Richard identified himself and when it was suggested by Const. MacKinnon that he, Richard, had been drinking, he admitted having a few.. Richard said that he had lost the keys of his car. Constable MacKinnon told him not to drive the car until he was entirely free of liquor. He checked on several occasions to see if the car was still there and found that it was, until 7:40 he found that the car had been moved.

After deliberating for about a half an hour the jury returned the above verdict.
