

Radio In Cell Seen As Aid In Escape Of Double Agent

LONDON (AP)—Fugitive double agent George Blake may have received coded escape instructions through a radio in his cell, informed sources said Sunday. Blake, serving a 42-year sentence for passing top secret information to the Russians, fled from Wormwood Scrubs prison Oct. 22.

He had a transistor radio in his cell, ostensibly to help his language studies, an expensive set capable of receiving clear signals and broadcasts from remote foreign stations.

One police source described the radio as "special and powerful" and suggested it would have been simple for Blake, acting under a previous arrangement, to pick up coded messages concerning the method and timing of his escape.

The home office said "long-term prisoners can earn the privilege of having a radio in their cells, but we cannot discuss arrangements concerning Blake."

SECTION CLOSED OFF
All work in the prison radio shop was stopped last week after a search by an inquiry team. Prisoners working there were moved to other jobs; the section sealed off and all equipment impounded.

One report said investigators were checking possibility that Blake may have used a short-wave transmitter to make contacts outside the prison. Every member of the prison staff and all the 350 long-term prisoners, these serving three years or more, have been questioned.

Police are checking further possible clues found in the getaway car believed to have been used by Blake. These included a microphone, the wrappers from 14 bundles of 100 £1 notes, and a map drawn on the back of a brochure from a lake district hotel.

SEEK COMMUNIST
As the hunt for Blake switched to the Irish Republic, police sought an Irish-born Communist for questioning about the escape.

The man security officers and detectives want to question served part of a seven-year prison term in Wormwood Scrubs and was released last August. He was a close friend of Blake.

Detective Superintendent Arthur Cunningham of Scotland Yard's special branch, which deals with security and political crimes, and a detective sergeant are handling investigations in Ireland in co-operation with Irish authorities. Cunningham said: "We have seen the mother of the man we want to interview. She has been of very little help to us in our inquiries."

Another police officer said: "There is nothing on this man to warrant him being arrested. The only thing is that he might be able to help."

WILL ACCEPT AID
KARACHI (Reuters)—President Ayub Khan said Tuesday Pakistan will accept from friends abroad any offer that will aid its development and is in its national interest. In his monthly broadcast he cited recent United States food aid and a shipping agreement with China as examples of this policy. Pakistan's friendship with other countries was not motivated by selfishness but by mutual respect and goodwill.

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition MPs complained in the Commons that government policies are contributing to severe housing shortages.

George Chatterton (PC—Esquimaux-Saanich) said it has become practically impossible to get a mortgage in British Columbia. The construction industry was forced to lay off workers.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg-North) said slums are spreading and housing construction is off sharply. The situation was so bad in Toronto that homeless families were being lodged in jail cells.

He said apartment rents recently went up by 10 to 20 per cent. Interest rates on commercial mortgages had soared to eight per cent or more.

PINPOINT REASONS
The opposition spokesmen said the situation is due partly to the government's tight-money policy, the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and the lack of government mortgages.

They gave before the Commons first reading to a series of amendments to the National Housing Act designed to stimulate residential construction.

Mr. Orlikow said the amendments are ill-designed and will not solve housing problems. Millions were living in deplorable tenements and paying high rents.

Mr. Chatterton said the extension of federal mortgages to existing homes, provided the purchaser improves the house, is a belated implementation of a promise the Liberals made in the 1963 and 1965 election campaigns.

SEEK LOWER RATES
Both urged Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to make more direct loans to home buyers and at lower interest rates.

The amendments sponsored by Labor Minister Nicholson provide that:

—Aggregate amount of all loans that may be insured by CMHC would be increased by $1,000,000,000 to $9,500,000,000.

—Loans for apartment buildings and other rental housing would be increased to 9 per cent of the lending value, up five per cent.

—The maximum charge on the government for CMHC lending would be boosted by $750,000,000 to $4,000,000,000.

—Loans for municipal sewage-treatment projects would be extended for three years to March, 1970.

Rens Tremblay (L—Matapédia-Matane) said he hoped no problem of federal-provincial jurisdiction would result from the legislation.

SAYS ALL BENEFIT
Objections by some provinces, especially Quebec, had led to opting-out legislation in some cases but all provinces had benefited from federal housing aid and he was sure of them, including Quebec, would support the amendments.

H. W. Hertridge (NDP—Kootenay West) said he supported the amendments, but thought the government should concentrate on co-operative planning with provinces and municipalities and lower interest rates on CMHC loans.

He urged the government to look into the possibility of joint federal-provincial land purchase to halt speculation and keep costs down.

Maurice Allard (Ind-PC—Sherbrooke) said CMHC loans for student residences are another federal intrusion into provincial fields.

The whole housing field should be a provincial responsibility under the constitution and he called for the removal of the sales tax on building materials.

Second reading—approval in principle of the bill was put off. The Commons was to move to study of labor department estimates.

Churchill Grandson To Turn Sod

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Sir Winston Churchill's grandson and namesake will share official sod-turning duties with Newfoundland Premier Joey Smallwood at the site of the proposed Churchill Falls hydroelectric development in Labrador, the premier announced Monday.

Mr. Smallwood said in a prepared statement the son of Randolph Churchill "has accepted my invitation to join with me in turning the first sod." The ceremony is set for Nov. 12-13 and a 200-man delegation is expected to be on hand.

"The Churchill Falls was named by the house of assembly as a mark of the honor in which Sir Winston's name ever will be held by Newfoundlanders," Mr. Smallwood said. "I know that every Newfoundlanders will be deeply touched that Sir Winston's grandson will officially represent the family." Premier Smallwood's visit to Sir Winston Churchill in the early 1950s is believed to have led to the premier's contact with the Rothschild financial interests, which are behind the British Newfoundland Corp., developers of the $700,000,000 hydro scheme.

ANNIVERSARY KISS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hallman, married and parents of three children, celebrate their sixth wedding anniversary with an "out-of-this-world kiss." The couple, he with 450 parachute jumps to his credit, she with 375 jumps, dived from a plane over New Hanover Airport near Gilbertsville, Pa., and kissed in mid-air. The Norristown, Pa., divers were photographed by Jerry Irwin, another jumper who leaped from the same plane. Harry is on left and his wife, Patricia, is on right.

United Appeal Drives Lagging In Some Cities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
United Appeal campaigns in many Canadian cities are falling behind.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that cities from coast to coast were failing to meet appeal objectives. Many were extending deadlines.

A few cities, however, were doing well.

The Brantford and Brant County United Community Fund exceeded its $251,048 objective in 17 days, the first appeal to do so. Brantford also was first to reach its target last year, when $241,180 was collected in 18 days.

Ottawa and Edmonton exceeded their targets Friday. Ottawa, with a goal of $1,520,000 in a campaign that continues to Nov. 3, had collected $1,521,538, the 15th consecutive year in which the campaign had succeeded. Edmonton, with an objective of $1,370,004 collected $1,381,000.

Moncton, N.B., had collected 96 per cent of its objective of $117,311, and Sydney, N.S., had the same percentage of its $221,000 goal.

SAINT JOHN BEHIND
In Saint John, N.B., Friday only 81.4 per cent of the city's $308,700 goal had been reached. Last year at the same time 95.4 per cent of the objective was collected.

Fredericton's campaign had achieved only 73.9 per cent of its $122,884 objective—and the campaign was extended from its original closing date of Oct. 15.

In Charlottetown, 61 per cent of the $258,191 target had been collected and in Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S., $365,670 had been collected and in Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S., $365,670 had been collected of the $588,739 objective. The campaign was scheduled to finish Nov. 3, but officials said it would be extended till the objective is reached.

Montreal has had five fund drives. The Red Feather campaign closed Oct. 4 and realized $2,278,564 of its $2,590,000 target. The drive of the Federation of Catholic Charities closes next Thursday and Friday—$628,000 of its $692,500 objective had been collected.

The Combined Jewish Appeal doesn't begin until Nov. 7 and it hopes to gain $4,732,000. The Federation des Oeuvres de Charite Canadiennes Francaises campaign in the spring and this year achieved its $2,825,000 objective.

The Combined Health Appeal and Red Cross drive closes Dec. 31 and now has $1,740,000 of the $2,870,111 it seeks. Last year it got only $1,814,048 of its $2,074,605 goal.

WON'T EXTEND DRIVE
In Toronto, the appeal which ends Monday, was short $408,072 of its $10,650,000 objective. Campaign chairman W. H. Palm said the closing date would not be extended.

Moose Jaw was $30,000 short of its $100,000 goal when the campaign ended Oct. 28. However, officials still are collecting and they hope to have $95,000 within the next few weeks.

In Saskatoon, 66 per cent of the appeal's $430,000 goal had been collected. At the same time last year 87 per cent of the objective had been received.

A fund official in Regina said he was doubtful if the campaign would realize its $512,595 objective by Monday, the closing day.

He said the campaign was more than $100,000 short of its objective Friday.

In Calgary, 65.7 per cent of the appeal's $1,286,000 objective had been collected. The campaign ends Nov. 1.

In Vancouver, 62.1 per cent of the $3,224,000 had been collected for the appeal which ends Oct. 31. Victoria had collected 56.3 per cent of its $452,000 goal. Last year at the same date 57.7 per cent had been collected.
