AIDING IMMIGRANTS.

There are certain societies in Eng- which not only help immigrants to this country with their passage money, but who when the parties have got settled send out agents to visit them in their homes, wherever the latter are, with the object of seeing how they are progressing. Whether settlement has been made in the province of Quebec, in Ontario or the west, the visits are conscientiously made, and with results of the most gratifying nature. The government returns and reports. however, are perhaps still more reliable, as to the change which results in the circumstances and prospects of the immigrants who come to Canada from all parts of Europe, and these make a gratifying record of material success The eastern Townships, for example, are being practically resettled by English-speaking immigrants, who acting as laborers for a time, become independent farmers after a few years' hard work, as is testified by both the English visitors and the government officials. In the North-West especially the change which comes over the poor man's prospects is surprising. The government agents who have been interested in fixing new settlers on the soil, report that the change begins to be noticeable in the first year. In four years the sense of independence is complete; the home is not merely a frame house, with four walls, but a place which sentiment has had fresh birth; and those who came from the poorer parts of the old country or from central or southern Europe, with little but their courage and health, are transformed into an independent and comfortable class, fitted for the best citizenship.

The government agents and the visitors from the old country will tell you of most affecting incidents, which the blue books cannot be snpposed to be bothered with—the latter being essentially dry and formal. A letter from the old land brought in the pocket four thousand miles will put a lump in the throat;pleasant reminders of old friends who have been left behind will bring a glow to the eye; the knowledge that friends are coming out to be neighbors in the new world—friends who were dear to them in the old land—will give a new interest to life. The visitor can tell of old scenes and places and people and his welcome to the new home is a cordial one; but, after all, the improvements he notes in the new environment and the sense of comfort and content which prevail, are the things which interest alike the government agent and the visitor, for they are the best advertisements which the country can have. You can see the immigration record in the recently issued blue book; but the stories of humble lives, the records of endeavor, of courage and heroism in the wild could only be obtained through conversation, and then only with difficulty, for the agent is chiefly concerned with tabular statements showing the result in acres or cattle or sheep or horses. But the season which is about closed has been a good one for the country, for the quality of the immigrants has been, upon the whole, an improvement, although there were considerable numbers who would have become a public burden had it not been for the interposition of a local charity. The chief thing to note is that the English laborer who comes to Quebec or Ontario becomes an independent farmer; that the man with a little money is transformed into the successful rancher in the North-West; that the sturdy young men from England, mechanics and the like, develope the mining resources of British Columbia, and in time share in the profits which their labor made possible.—Exchange.

SIR CHARLES' SELF-ABNEGATION.

Mr. Joseph Pope, the private secretary and friend of Sir John Macdonald in his biography of the great Conservative leader gives an instance of Sir Charles Tupper's readiness to set his own interests aside when the interests of the country could be served thereby After giving the names of the members of the first Cabinet of the Canadian Dominion sworn in on the 1st of July, 1867, he says:

"Upon looking over this list it will be observed that two prominet names are wanting—Charles Tupper and D'Arcy McGee? Why were they not included? The reason is to be found in the attitude of Mr. Cartier, who insisted upon having three French-Canadian representatives in the Cabinet. The Protestant minority of Lower Canada had also to be represented. Mr. McGee sat for a Lower Canadian constituency, and was an Irish Roman Catholic. To have brought in three French-Canadian representatives, a Protestant representative and Mr. McGee would have raised the number of Quebec's ministers to five. Messrs Howland and McDougall insisted on Ontario having one more Cabinet Minister than Quebec. To satisfy all parties would mean that Ontario and Quebec should have eleven members between them. To this Mr. Macdonald would by no means consent, on the ground that when the other provinces were proportionately represented the Cabinet would be so large as to be unworkable. There seemed to be no solution of the difficulty and Mr. Macdonald was on the point of advising the Governor-General to send for Mr. Brown when Dr. Tupper, with rare disinterestedness, placed his portfolio at the disposal of his leader, at the same time suggesting to him a means of overcoming the difficulty. We can imagine him saying, 'As leader of the Confederate party of Nova Scotia I am entitled to office. In order to remove this difficulty which has arisen, I am willing to foreigo my claims, and in foregoing them to satisfy the legitimate aspirations of the Irish Catholic body. In my place appoint an Irish Catholic from Nova Scotia.' Not to be outdone in generosity, Mr. McGee also withdrew his personal claims."

Gentlemen,—While driving down a very steep hill last August my horse stumbled and fell, cutting himself fearfully about the head and body. I used MINARD'S LINIMENT freely on him and in a few days he was as well as ever.

PARDON OF REBELS.

There was somewhat heated scene in the House of Assembly recently the occasion being the report on the Treason pill. Ex-Prime Ministers Schreiner moved the adoption of a new clause authorizidg the Governor to pardon anyone convicted of treason when the Legislative Council and the House of Assembly adopted a joint resolution requesting it. Mr. Rose Innes, Attorney-General, said that such a clause was entirely unnecessary as the Governor had a constitutional right to grant pardons. Mr. Sauer and Mr. Merriman, who were Commissioner of Public Works and Treasurer, respectively, in the Schreiner Capinet seized the opportunity to discredit Mr. Schreiner, stating that he was thrwing obstacles in the way of pardon. There upon the President of the Afrikander Bond said that the Afrikanders wanted no pardon. After conviction they would sooner bear the punishment imposeb on them than to beg for pardon. Several Afrikander speakers declared that Mr. Schreiner was attempting to throw dust in the eyes of the Afrikander party. Mr. Schreiner replied that this was an example of how a man might serve and be served. The House refused to accept the clause.

Save Your MONEY.

To save your money, by getting more for it, ask your dealer in medicine to show you the new 50 cent size bottle of JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT. It contains over three times as much as the old 25 cent style, which is a great saving to those who use this valuable family medicine. The superior quality of this old Anodyne has never been equaled.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

Fifty years ago this month, Dr. Johnson left with me some Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. I remember him distinctly, and could tell you just how he was dressed on that day. I have sold Johnson's Liniment ever since. Can truly say it has maintained its high standard from that time to this. No medicine today possesses the confidence of the public to a greater extent. JOHN B. RAND, North Waterford, Me., Jan., 1891.

As a family remedy it has been used and indorsed for nearly a century. Every Mother should have it in the house for many common ailments, Internal as much as External.

MR. RUSSELL'S ATTACK.

Mr. Russell, the "new Liberal" member for Halifax, came out the other day with a long letter attacking Sir Charles Tupper violently on the subject of the South African contingent. He said in the letter and has since repeated in a speech that there was really no necessity for Canadian aid to Britain in the Boer war, and that Sir Charles Tupper had a mean and discreditable motive when, declaring that he should assist, he forced Laurier to act. Dr. Russell must be sorry now that he spoke. The Halifax Herald cites the following answer to his assault upon Sir Charles from a speech which he himself delivered to the Halifax Board of Trade on January 16:—

"He (Mr. Russell) personally had taken the stand in private conversation, nearly a year ago at Ottawa, when the idea of Parliament adopting a resolution upholding the claims of the Uitlanders for redress of their grievances was discussed, that any expression of opinion of this kind by Canada should be backed up by a subsidy or a contingent. It was not thought then that Kruger would actually go to war, but the unexpected happened, and the crisis was upon us. He was glad Canada was unanimous in backing up her loyalty in a substantial manner. It was the opportunity and the privilege of the leader of the Opposition to initiate the proposal to offer Canadian troops for service in South Africa. It was a proud, enviable, and distinguished opportunity."

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

Said Brown unto his wife one day,
"We've nothing left to eat;
If things go on in this queer way,
We can't make both ends meet."
His wife replied in words discreet,
"Oh, we won't be badly fed;
If you can make but one end meat,
I'll make the other bread?
