S'ide Street Delivery Regarded As Possibility

SUMMERSIDE—Street delivery of mail is Summerside can be introduced when the minimum of 2,500 letter calls is reached, Postmaster General William Hamilton said in Summerside yesterday, and smiling in recollection of the town's interest in this matter, assured "with the pressure from Summerside there will be no chance of it being overlooked."

Discussing the matter freely, the friendly postmaster General said that 128,000 Canadian homes had been added to the letter carrier delivery service last year, and explained that the minimum of 2,500 calls was necessary because of postal delivery requirements which placed each street carrier on a delivery route of from five to six hundred calls per route each day.

A survey of Summerside made in January of 1958 by F.A. Coyle, area superintendent of Post Office department in P.E.I., indicated 1,949 individual calls.

Since that time many new houses and apartments have been constructed within the area,

20th Anniversary Of War Is Marked

BY REUTERS NEWS AGENCY

Europe marked the 20th anniversary of the start of the Second World War by praying it would not happen again.

West German newspapers played up the anniversary of Hitler Germany's attack on Poland Sept. 1, 1939—a move that saw Britain and France honor their treaty with Poland and declare war on the Third Reich, two days later.

Comment from Communist Eastern Europe underscored the alleged danger of the revival of "militarism" in West Germany, a member of the NATO alliance against the Soviet bloc.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda charged that with Germany now in the Atlantic Pact "little had changed since 1939 and the 'capitalist powers' were still aiming a blow against Russia."

CONDEMNDS WAR MONGERS

One West German newspaper, the independent Westdeutsche Allgemeine of Essen, says the German people condemn its previous rulers not only because they lost the war but because they ever began it.

Duesseldorf's independent Der Mittag asks how the "madness" of war came, answering: "It seems to us to be too cheap merely to say in reply that Hitler was a madman."

"The British-French pact with Poland was not taken seriously," the paper adds, arguing that Britain and France might have halted Hitler by being firm with him.

The pro-government Bonn newspaper General Anzeiger comments on Chancellor Adenauer's broadcast on Monday night in which he expressed his desire for German-Polish friendship.

"The paper says it was 'a suitable time to send a conciliatory word to Poland,' but cautions against believing 'this gesture of reconciliation will suddenly lead to a European springtime.'"

ANGRY REACTION

In Warsaw, the chancellor's radio talk produced an angry reaction from Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz. The premier said the West German leader was "shedding crocodile tears" over the Hitler attack and attempting

Market Search Urged By APEC President

TRURO, N.S. — (CP) — APEC and the resulting newly established shipping service from our ports to Labrador, one of the region's major problems is finding more markets for our products.

"I emphasize the importance of developing new markets like this one (the North)", he said. "The north is growing rapidly. It is not a food producing area while we are. Here is a golden opportunity for us and I hope every distributor of our agricultural products will get up north and sell, will bid on tenders for northern bases and will take advantage of the new shipping service."

"And there are other trade opportunities", he continued, "for instance, we need to do much more exploring of the West Indies and European markets. We need to be more sales conscious. No one is going to take our products off our hands." We must sell them.

The president of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council said "our agriculture products are second to none anywhere. But we do not always pay sufficient attention to marketing them."

"A quality product well packaged, well advertised and properly sold is essential in agriculture as in any other line of business", Dr. MacKinnon said. "He would like to see exhibitions held as late in the season as possible so that agricultural emphasis can be maintained."

"There is much to be said for holding them in summer, when tourists are around", he said. "But I think a greater advantage is served by them when farm products are at their best."
