Pearson Makes Plea For Trade Expansion

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canada should adopt a trade expansion program—and be prepared to make tariff concessions—if the country is to meet the effects of Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market, Liberal Leader Lester Pearson said here.

He suggested that Canada can best adjust to British ECM membership by working with the United States to negotiate trade and tariff arrangements with Common Market and the North American countries.

Even if the United Kingdom does not join the Common Market, Mr. Pearson told a service club luncheon here, "it is quite unrealistic to think that we will carry on as before with Commonwealth preferences intact and GATT (General Agreement on Trades and Tariffs) used for tariff reductions in the old way."

SUGGESTS ALTERNATIVE

As an alternative—if the move toward a North Atlantic trading community should fail—the Opposition leader suggested a "continental Common Market . . . between Canada and the United States . . . to be brought about in a way that could be reconciled with our Commonwealth and world trading requirements."

In a brief reference to defence at the luncheon and again later in a speech to the Women's Canadian Club of London, the Liberal leader said Canada's role in maintaining world peace also lies in collective effort with other countries.

He told the women's club "the only sure defence that we have in the nuclear age is peace itself."

Power is necessary to preserve peace, he said. "As long as one side of the cold war has power, it is necessary on the other side."

While the ultimate objective for all countries should be disarmament, "I don't think there is a profit for one side" to reduce armaments.

College Of General Practice Disagrees With Toronto Book

TORONTO (CP)—The College of General Practice of Canada has disagreed strongly with many implications made in Dr. Kenneth Clute's survey - based boo' The General Practitioner —to be published by the University of Toronto Press today.

The college's criticism came after controversial excerpts from the book were made public.

Dr. Clude, on the staff of the school of hygiene at the University of Toronto, said in the report that the present system of medical education is obsolete in some aspects.

A college spokesman said Friday: "The college recognizes the fact that many improvements can be made in the standards of medical practice. But we would like to make the following points."

1. Canadians can be proud of the standards of medical care in Canada by both specialists and general practitioners; and

2. It is the experience of the college that the majority of Canadian doctors are conscientious, well-trained and competent.

The book is the result of a six-year study instigated by the college.

SURVEY TWO PROVINCES

The study surveyed almost all aspects of the practice of 86 general practitioners in Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Dr. Clute's report says more than four-fifths of the Ontario practitioners and between one-half and three-quarters of the Nova Scotia practitioners consider medical training plus one year of rotating internship to be inadequate.

It said: "From this it is quite obvious that this training is not meeting the needs of the young man who wishes to make general practice his career.

Canadians Second In World In Electricity Consumption

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians use more electricity per capita than any country in the world except Norway, the president of the Canadian Electrical Association said here.

R. E. Tweeddale, general manager of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, said Canadian consumption of electricity totalled 115,200,000,000 kilowatt hours for the year ending in October, 1962, an increase of five per cent compared with the previous year.

He told a press conference the capacity of thermal - electric generators installed during the year exceeded that of hydro-electric installations for the second consecutive year. The trend to thermal - generating plants "undoubtedly will become more pronounced."

Nuclear power still was in the research stage, although no dou' electricity produced from nuclear fuels will be extremely important to our future power requirements."

He cited Japan, India and the United Kingdom as countries "very interested in Canadian techniques" in this field.

Mr. Tweeddale said there is a trend toward interconnection or pooling of power systems and toward recognizing electric power as an export commodity.

"There seems to be a clear-cut pattern developing across the country that the export of surplus power to the United States or other parts of Canada is a good thing."

Opening lead—king of clubs.

One way to improve your game is to ask yourself, after you've been defeated in a contract, whether you could have made the hand. This type of self-analysis sometimes helps to prevent the repetition of an error.

Here is a case where South made a mistake in the play and lost the contract as a result. West led a club and South ruffed and drew two rounds of trumps. He then played a spade and double-finessed, losing the ten to the jack.

East returned a low diamond and West took the trick with the queen. West played back a spade, the queen losing to the king. East then cashed the ace of diamonds and South went down one.

Of course, South was unlucky on the deal. He took three finesses and lost them all. He would have made the hand if West had had the king or jack of spades, or if East had had the queen of diamonds. The odds against losing all three finesses were about 7 to 1.

It was only in later analysis that South realized he should have made the hand, despite the bad luck he ran into. He had missed a sure way of making the contract that did not depend on the lie of the cards.

After drawing two rounds of trumps, he should have led diamonds, not spades. This would have guaranteed the contract against any adverse distribution.

The best play is to lead the king of diamonds at trick four. The aim is to force out the ace and later the queen of diamonds in order to be able to discard a spade from dummy after two diamond tricks have been established. Only one spade trick can be lost, at worst, with this line of play.

The outcome would be assured even if it turned out that West had the ace of diamonds. In such case, West took it and returned a spade, South could finesse the queen with complete safety.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
